Big 3 Parley Projected in Washington

Ike to Ask Mollet and Macmillan to March Conference

WASHINGTON (UP)—The first Big Three meeting since the Suez invasion probably will be held here in March, officials said Saturday.

Preliminary talks are under way in London between the U. S. Embassy and the British Foreign Office to arrange for Britain's new Prime Minister, Harold Macmillan, to visit President Eisenhower.

Once a date is fixed an invitation will be extended to French Premier Guy Mollet to join the conference.

Chief goal of the meeting is to restore the harmony of Big Three relations, severely strained when Britain and France invaded Egypt without prior notice to the United States.

President Eisenhower told his news conference last Wednesday that strengthening the western alliance is one of the main purposes of his second-term administration.

DIPLOMATIC sources said every effort is being made to create a constructive atmosphere for the talks. Working parties of lower-level diplomats will hold preliminary meetings to explore areas of agreement and disagreement, prepare an agenda, and identify problems requiring priority attention.

Former British Prime Minister Sir Anthony Eden sought a Big Three meeting immediately after his Suez adventure backfired, but President Eisenhower rebuffed him.

U.S. to Back U.N. Demand Upon Israelis

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (UP)—The United States disclosed Saturday that it would join in sponsoring a new U.N. resolution to get Israel out of Egypt and establish security between the two countries.

The General Assembly is to start debate Monday on a report from Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjöld saying Israel should withdraw promptly and suggesting ways to satisfy her wish for freedom of navigation in the Gulf of Aqaba and freedom from attack in the Gaza area.

U. S. DELEGATE Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. and Canadian Foreign Secretary Lester B. Pearson talked privately for about an hour in Lodge's office. Afterward a U. S. spokesman said:

"The U. S. delegation and the Canadians are working closely on a proposed resolution in line with the Secretary-General's recommendations, which we think are very constructive and which we think express the general view of the Assembly."

The spokesman said the resolution probably would have a number of other sponsors but was unlikely to be introduced before midweek, after a full debate on the report.

Other sources said Australia, New Zealand and Norway were among other delegations taking part in talks on such a resolution.

L.A.C. Says: Your Bank Account

It is probable complete confidence in our banking system is our greatest safeguard against a serious depression. The Federal Deposit Insurance program gives that confidence to the people whose pay checks and savings are in the banks. That insurance program is just 24 years old. It was started under the New Deal policies of Franklin D. Roosevelt. When it was conceived, every bank in the nation was closed by order of FDR in an effort to stop a run which would have endangered every bank.

The nation has seen several panics during its history. They were terrible demonstrations of mob frenzy. The people fought to get into banks to withdraw their money. Some rumors, often unfounded, started the runs. Since banks lend most of their deposits, it is impossible

Humphrey Demands Dulles Should Quit

By ROBERT E. LEE
(U. P. T. Capital Bureau)

WASHINGTON—The resignation of Secretary of State Dulles was demanded Saturday by Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn). "Mr. Dulles has outlived his usefulness, if he ever had any, and I think he should follow the example of British Prime Minister Eden and resign," Humphrey told The Independent, Press-Telegram Washington bureau.

Humphrey is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, which jointly with the Senate Armed Services Committee has been putting the heat on Dulles over the administration's handling of the Middle East crisis. Dulles is scheduled to return Monday for a closed door session with the two committees.

Humphrey has been one of Dulles' sharpest and most consistent critics in the Senate. But the Minnesotan never before has called for the embattled secretary's resignation.

THE DEMAND for Dulles' scalp came as another Foreign Relations Committee member, Sen. Fulbright (D-Ark), conceded that his request for a State Department White Paper on everything it has been doing in the Middle East for the last few years won't hold up Senate action on President Eisenhower's request for authority to act to check Communism there.

Fulbright expects to make a formal move Monday for a full department presentation before the Senate acts on the resolution Eisenhower wants to strengthen his hand.

But the House is expected to pass such a resolution this week. It has been predicted that

AF's Thor Missile Misfires

WASHINGTON (UP)—An Air Force attempt to launch a test version of its Thor ballistic missile was reported Saturday to have ended in failure, with the multi-ton rocket in wreckage.

The incident occurred at Patrick Air Force Base, Fla., the missile test center used by all the armed forces and from which weapons are fired out over the Atlantic Ocean in a southeasterly direction.

The usual tight secrecy concerning all missile tests was thrown around the Thor launching attempt.

OFFICIALS at Patrick, when asked about the report, replied tersely that "anything like that would have to come from Washington."

The Pentagon flatly refused to discuss the reports.

However, from unofficial sources the story seemed to add up this way:

The Thor, the design specifications of which call for 1500 mile range, had been placed in position for firing some weeks ago. If earlier attempts at firing had been made, they obviously hadn't succeeded.

FINALLY, the rocket motor was touched off. The huge tube of steel lifted slowly from the launching pad, climbed a short distance into the air—and toppled back to crash and burn from the flames fed by the fuel tanks.

Orange Demo Panel May Lose State OK

By BOB BECKMAN

SANTA ANA—The Orange County Democratic Central Committee may be cut off from all recognition by the state party headquarters.

This was the opinion of some observers after 13 members of the county group met Saturday in Santa Ana in a session billed as one that would end the rancor that has existed in their ranks for nearly four months.

Instead, it appears their actions may have caused a permanent split in the committee.

Twelve members refused to attend the meeting.

The 13 present—the same group that stalked from a state central committee-called meeting only a week ago—in quick order:

1. Declared Eugene Greenwood no longer a member because he reportedly has moved from the supervisorial district in which he was elected to the committee.

2. Elected Joseph R. White, 809 W. Broadway, Anaheim, to fill Greenwood's chair.

3. Ratified an earlier appointment of Rosemary Deur as a member filling the vacancy created by the moving of Mrs. Jean Allen.

4. Accepted the resignation of William H. McNulty, committee chairman from Yorba Linda who has been arrested by Orange police on a morals misdemeanor charge.

5. Ratified action in the by-laws providing for the elevation of vice chairman Fred Wilson of

WASHINGTON (UP)—Vice President Nixon announced Saturday he is buying a new house and said he thinks the government should provide a permanent home for future vice presidents.

The sale price of the house was $75,000.

He disclosed that he has entered into a sales contract for a big stone house owned by the estate of the late Homer S. Cummings, former U.S. attorney general, in the fashionable Wesley Heights section of the northwest section of the capital.

BUT HE and his family do not expect to move in for about two months. The Nixon's now occupy a $41,000, two-story, white-brick with three bedrooms which figured prominently in his financial accounting during the stormy phases of his first vice presidential campaign in 1952.

During that campaign Nixon was called on to explain outside financial aid of $16,000 to $17,000 contributed by wealthy supporters over a two-year period. In his famous TV reply Nixon went further and gave a full account of his family resources.

HE SAID HE was heavily mortgaged at that time to pay for the home he is now vacating.

It will be sold after they move.

As to a future home for vice presidents, Nixon made public a letter he wrote to Rep. Stuyvesant Wainwright (R-N.Y.), author of legislation to provide such a home. Nixon said it should be amended so as not to apply to him.

He said instead that the house should be made available when the next vice president takes office on Jan. 20, 1961.

Movie Actor Bill Eythe Dies at 38

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—Movie producer William Eythe died Saturday night of a liver infection.

The 38-year-old actor and producer was admitted to Good Samaritan Hospital last Monday. His doctor said serious complications had developed and his condition grew steadily worse.

Death came at 9:15 p.m. At Eythe's side was his longtime friend, former actor Lon McCallister, who was producing travel films with Eythe at the time he was stricken.

One of the last visitors at Eythe's room was actress Carol Channing. Eythe discovered Miss Channing in Hollywood in 1948 when he produced "Lend an Ear."

'Beediatrix' Stung to the Quick Over Sad Plight of Infant Buzzers

By BEN ZINER

It's high time that something be done for the sick baby bees in this state, insists George S. Biggers, whose latest interest is beediatrix.

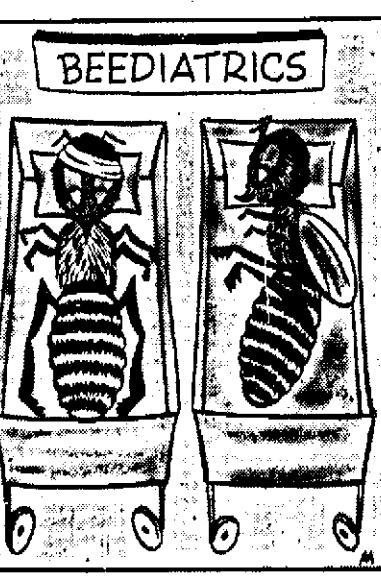

Biggers, best known for his bee-beard stunt, which once was featured by Ripley, buzzes into Long Beach Monday to represent the 150-member Associated Beekeepers of California.

He's coming here from his Beestown at Melners Oaks in the Ojai Valley to smoke out some 400 delegates to the American Beekeeping Federation in the Lafayette Hotel on the subject of bee children's hospitals.

Beekeeper Biggers is upset by what he terms the "antibee" regulations of the California Agricultural Code. As far as he is concerned, the law is for the birds—certainly not for the bees.

Seems as if there's an infectious disease known as American foul brood that sometimes runs rampant among baby bees. The law now states that hives containing such diseased bees have to be burned in a move to stop the spread of the disease. If a beekeeper doesn't comply, he's subject to penalties ranging up to a $500 fine or six months in jail.

Biggers claims such bee-burning is unnecessary.

Actor Dick Long Weds Actress

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Actor Dick Long, whose first wife was cancer-stricken Susan Ball, was married Saturday to actress Mara Corday. They were wed by Justice of the Peace Art Olsen at the Sands Hotel, where they will honeymoon.

Long, 29, is from Chicago. Miss Corday, 27, is a Hollywood starlet. It was her first marriage.

Navy Bomber Crashes

OSLO (UP)—A U. S. Navy Neptune bomber with between 11 and 13 men aboard crashed into a hangar while landing here Saturday. There were no casualties. Minutes before the accident, more than 40 workers in the hangar had left at the end of their work shift.

Rain Here, Freezing in Citrus Belt

Flurries Hit S.F.; 2,000-ft. Elevations Will Be Blanketed

Scattered showers are predicted for Long Beach today and Monday and snow is expected in nearby areas.

Snow fell on the Mojave Desert north of Los Angeles Saturday night.

If snow hits the Los Angeles vicinity it will be the first time since January 1949, when a storm brought snow flurries even to the beach cities.

The Weather Bureau predicted freezing temperatures for most outlying Los Angeles areas and snow above the 2,000-foot mark in foothill communities. The forecaster said that some may hit the Hollywood Hills between Hollywood and the San Fernando Valley.

SNOW FELL after dark Saturday at Palmdale, on the Mojave Desert, where temperatures as low as 25 degrees are expected early today.

Sub-freezing temperatures were predicted for many key citrus areas by the Weather Bureau's fruit frost warning service. Readings of 28 were predicted for Riverside and Cucamonga.

Snow fell even in San Francisco Saturday night. Flurries were observed in several sections of the city.

THE TEMPERATURE was 42 degrees and the snow melted as soon as it hit the ground.

Snowplows kept the Ridge Route, U. S. 99, open between Bakersfield and the Southland. Traffic kept rolling despite four to six inches of snow.

Chill showers early Saturday and late Friday brought 39 of an inch of precipitation to Long Beach, upping the season total to 3.22 inches. At this time last year the season rainfall here totaled 8.22 inches.

Storm totals from other Southland areas: Santa Ana, 62; Anaheim, 62; Compton, 45; Garden Grove, 67; and Torrance, 25.

THE STORM brought snow to the mountain areas above 3,000 feet. Winter sports areas reported fair to good skiing conditions. Mt. Baldy resort officials said six inches of new snow fell on top of a 14-inch base. California Highway Patrol officers said chains are required on most mountain roads.

Meanwhile, a new snowstorm centered in the southwest part of the nation headed for the Midwest, and the Montana area was gripped in some of its coldest weather in years.

Snow from the storm system spread across the Sierras eastward into Colorado and parts of Kansas.

Borchers Found Sane

PASADENA (UP)—A Superior Court jury which convicted insurance executive Walter G. Borchers of second degree murder in the death of his red-haired sweetheart, Mrs. Mary Dorothy McCully, Saturday ruled that he was sane at the time of the slaying.

The jurors deliberated eight hours and 35 minutes before reaching the verdict in the sanity hearing for Borchers. Superior Judge James G. Whyte set Mar. 1 as date for sentencing.

The 45-year-old insurance man was convicted of shooting Mrs. McCully last Oct. 9 while they were in his car parked near the Rose Bowl. He faces a possible sentence of five years to life in prison.

Should New Driver Tour Morgue?

Teenagers 'Brainstorm' Ways to Cut Down Toll

By BOB WHEARLEY

If you're worried about today's increasing traffic death toll, why not—

Order traffic policemen to wear undertakers' clothes, drive black hearses and measure speeders for coffins?

Hang all drunk drivers who kill?

Require applicants for drivers' licenses to tour a morgue?

These are some of the ideas a group of teenagers came up with in a tape-recorded "brainstorming" session with Dean Bauer of 5415 Daggett St.

A little bit on the wild side, huh? Well, wild ideas are encouraged because they often "trigger off more practical notions," Bauer explained.

Bauer, who identified himself as a professional "industrial brainstormer," got together with a group of teenagers to draw some new ideas from them on the subject of traffic safety.

The kids came up with 118 ideas in 62 minutes. Prowess of their imaginations compared favorably with experienced industrial and commercial brainstorm panels, Bauer said admiringly.

HERE ARE SOME of the teenagers' other ideas—

"Give drivers tests where you expose them to other drivers who are crazy and mixed up, to see if they can keep cool and not get shook and become crazy, mixed-up drivers themselves."

"Make seat backs higher to prevent broken necks caused by headlamps."

"Install outrigger wheels on cars, to keep them from flipping over."

"Install an electronic device on the dashboard that can tell if a driver has alcohol on his breath, and automatically cause the ignition to conk out. Breath sweeteners can't fake it, either."

"Because railroad crossings are death traps, have electronic trips built into highways two blocks before the crossing. Speeding cars would be warned by blast horns and flashing red lights all the way to the tracks when a train is coming."

"LARGE PANELS covered with brake lining to be installed on the bottoms of cars. To be pressed against the road for emergency stops."

"Design cars so the driver has to sit in a glass-enclosed cockpit in front of his car. He will have to drive carefully or he'll bust his bubble."

"Pass a law that no little kids can stand on the seats while the mother or dad drives."

"Traffic cops should carry red paint grenades to throw at crazy drivers to mark their cars."

SOME OF THE suggestions made by the teenagers already have been the subject of serious research by traffic engineers and police safety specialists.

These included such possibilities as automatic pilots for cars, controlled by electronic gear alongside or underneath highways; highways in the form of moving conveyor belts; and equipping cars with anti-magnetic devices to keep them from colliding.

A few of the ideas already are practiced in some parts of the country—ideas such as painting parts of automobiles with luminous paint for improved night visibility, better-lighted highways that would rule out the need for glaring headlights, and restricting the licenses of persons convicted of drunk driving.

But, safety measures can't fully cope with the human element, the teenagers decided.

(Caption by Bill Bennett)

DREAMED UP by teenagers in a "brainstorming" session on traffic problems are these suggestions to reduce highway toll: 1. Order traffic policemen to dress like undertakers and drive hearses. 2. Have driver sit in glass cockpit. "He will have to drive carefully or he will bust his bubble."

AMA Opens 100 Pct. Salk Polio Drive

CHICAGO (AP)—Medical leaders Saturday opened a new campaign to administer anti-polio vaccine to everyone this year—particularly persons under 40.

The ultimate goal of the renewed campaign, to vaccinate adults as well as children, is protection for every one and elimination of the dread disease.

Dr. Jonas E. Salk, who developed the successful vaccine that bears his name, spelled out the challenge to the profession and the public this way:

"NEVER BEFORE have we been faced with the opportunity to wipe out a disease in such a short order."

Urging all to join in the program, he stated: "We need not put up with the prevalence of polio in 1957."

Dr. Salk and representatives of state medical societies met at a conference sponsored by the American Medical Assn. (AMA).

Dr. Salk was asked at a news conference if every one should be inoculated.

"ULTIMATELY, yes," he replied. "Nobody can depend on his neighbor's immunity."

He recalled that the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt had been stricken with polio at the age of 39.

Dr. Salk figured that, if all under 30 were vaccinated, the polio incidence would be slashed 90 per cent. To deliver a total knockout, those over the age of 30 would have to get the vaccine.

Dr. Dwight H. Murray, AMA president, said fees and procedures for the inoculation program will be determined on a local basis.

Knew Slain Sister, Says Suspect

CHICAGO (UP)—A Skid Road dishwasher was quoted by Sheriff Joseph Lohman Saturday night as saying he toured taverns with the slain Grimes sisters the day after they disappeared from their home—but that he left them alive.

Lohman said Edward (Ben) Bedwell signed a statement identifying the Grimes girls, Barbara, 15, and Patricia, 13, as his companions on a Skid Road drinking party.

Bedwell's new statement, Lohman said, followed an oral admission and quick retraction that he saw two men kill the girls and dump their bodies beside a road southwest of the city.

The sheriff said Bedwell's signed statement tells of being with the girls Dec. 29, the day after they disappeared from their home. Lohman quoted Bedwell as saying he made a round of taverns with the girls and another man whose name he did not know. The statement said the group finally went to a movie where the girls "ditched" the men.

Lohman said Bedwell told of seeing one of the sisters Jan. 4 and then again Jan. 5 on West Madison Street, called Skid Road because of the large number of derelicts who frequent the area.

Bedwell told Lohman that on the first encounter he spoke to the girl but she did not answer. He said the following day he saw the same girl walk by the bakery where he was working, and added: "That's the last time I saw either of the Grimes girls."

Bedwell said he did not know the identity of the Grimes sisters when he was with them.

Bedwell was seized by police after several witnesses told of seeing the tall dishwasher and odd-jobs man with the Grimes sisters. Identifying pictures of the girls, these witnesses said Bedwell was with them in West Madison Street taverns.

Until he signed the new statement, Bedwell had contended the girls he had escorted were not the Grimes girls.

Meanwhile, at a wake for the girls, their mother, Mrs. Loretta Grimes, 48, haltingly told a newsmen:

"They (the police) are not looking for my daughters when they look in bars and hotels. My daughters would not be on West Madison Street unless they were dragged or drugged."

Police Take 2-Knife Man for Assault

A 56-year-old man who assertedly attacked a pair of police officers with two knives was arrested for assault with a deadly weapon early Saturday.

Frank J. Casterot was booked at city jail after officers overpowered him at his home, 618 W. 21st St., and took an 8-inch butcher knife and a 3-inch paring knife from him. He later was released on $1,000 bail.

Sgt. Edward N. Meza and Officer James E. Miller said they were called by Mrs. Jack Barton, 620 W. 21st St., who said Casterot had beaten on her door and demanded entrance.

Officer Miller said Casterot opened his front door when Miller knocked, hit the officer, knocking him to the sidewalk, and then slammed the door shut.

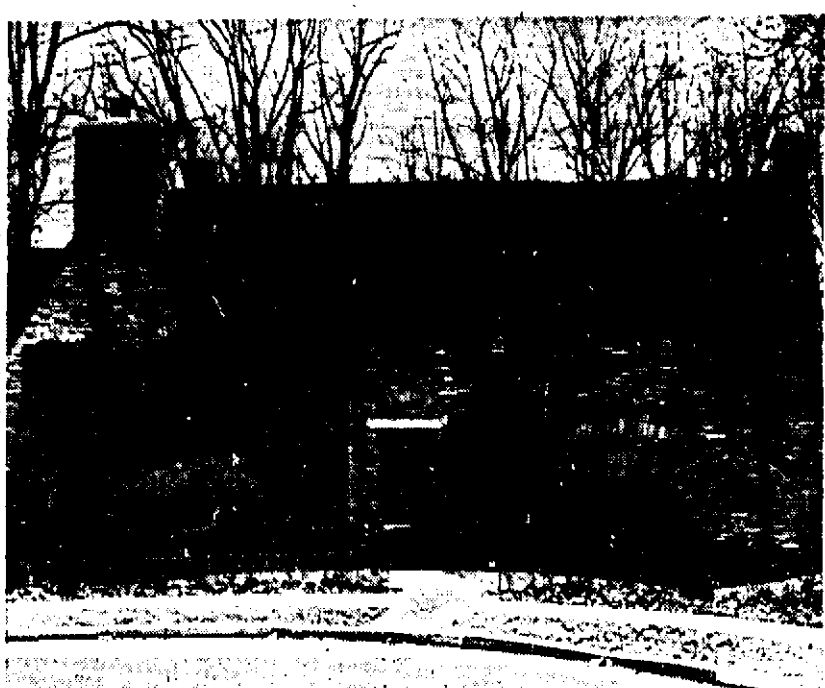

Sgt. Meza then smashed the door open with his nightstick and the two officers rushed Casterot and overpowered him.

Air Passenger Dies on Way to See Dr. White

DENVER (UP)—An American Air Lines plane en route from Los Angeles to Chicago made an unscheduled landing at Denver Saturday after a passenger, Mitchell Becker, 68, Rouse, Va., died of a heart attack.

The coroner's office said an appointment slip to see Dr. Paul Dudley White in Boston was found in Becker's trouser pocket. Dr. White is one of the heart specialists who has treated President Eisenhower.

Becker's body will be sent by plane to a brother, Levi Becker, in Birmingham, Ala.

'Traffic Cop' Drug Checks Tuberculosis

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Reporter

DENVER (UP)—A two-punch drug treatment here is winning more victories over tuberculosis, for a curious reason.

One drug is sometimes speedily neutralized by the human body, not staying in active form long enough to have full effect. The second drug acts like a traffic cop to slow down this process.

The drugs are Isoniazid and PAS. Isoniazid is a potent anti-TB drug. But people vary in how their bodies handle it, explain Dr. Sidney H. Dressler, medical director, and Dr. Gardner Middlebrook, research director, of the National Jewish Hospital here.

Some persons inactivate the drug slowly. Others do it rapidly. The drug does most good when it is inactivated, or transformed into another compound, slowly.

Bigger doses must therefore be given to persons who are rapid inactivators. Blood tests can show how a person is handling the drug, and the dose can be adjusted to his individual needs.

PAS ALSO can help persons who inactivate the drug too rapidly. Both drugs are affected by the same chemical mechanism within the body. When PAS is given along with Isoniazid, it competes for this mechanism, and less of the Isoniazid is inactivated within a given period of time. More of it is preserved to strike at TB germs.

Fast destruction of Isoniazid is one reason why many patients don't respond to the drug as well as others.

Usually about 85 per cent of TB patients given usual doses of drugs become non-infective within five to eight months, Dr. Dressler said.

Here in a small number of cases, the percentage has been stepped up to more than 95 per cent, by measuring the Isoniazid destruction process and adjusting dose accordingly, or by also giving PAS.

RESEARCHERS AT the National Jewish Hospital, a free, non-sectarian medical center for TB and chest diseases, are seeking additional drugs which act like PAS in slowing neutralization of Isoniazid, without some of the drawbacks of PAS.

TB is still a very serious national problem, with some 80,000 brand new active cases still being reported each year.

New drugs and treatments have drastically reduced the death toll, but haven't smashed the chain of infection.

The advent of anti-TB drugs has radically altered hospital treatment.

Not long ago, patients had to lie abed quietly for months on end, to help natural body defenses stop the multiplication of germs within the lungs. The strict rest helped put the germs into a suspended and safe resting stage.

Now that is changing, here and elsewhere. Researchers here discovered the new drugs work best when the germs are multiplying, and physical activity by the patient helps the drugs work most efficiently.

Hit-Run Suspect Arrested After Death of Two Youths

Two 17-year-old boys lay on Gray, was arrested at his home a Gardena street for two hours at 2217 W. 161st St., after his car was found mired in mud run driver early Saturday, according to police.

A 22-year-old man, Donald J. Killed were Leonard Wayne Glass, 3220 W. 188th St., Torrance, and William Leroy Short, 1213 W. 186th St., Gardena.

Police said the boys apparently were walking south on Vermont Ave., 500 feet north of El Segundo Blvd., about 2 a.m. when they were hit by a car whose driver did not stop.

Their bodies were discovered by a passer-by about 4 a.m.

Gray was arrested on suspicion of manslaughter and felonious hit-run driving.

Heater Fumes Kill Young Santa Anans

ORANGE — The bodies of a couple had lighted the kitchen stove and an unvented heater in the closed house.

Miss Lacer, a student at Santa Ana High School, was found on the davenport in the front room. Townsend was slumped on the bathroom floor.

The elder Townsend found the bodies about 9 a.m.

Townsend's father, Clifford M., told Orange police he had rented the house at 143 N. Batavia St. for his daughter and her husband, Charles Lafton of San Diego to live in.

YOUNG TOWNSEND and the Lacer girl went to that address to arrange the Lafton's furniture and belongings.

F. Lloyd Wright to Design Iraq Opera House

SANTA BARBARA (UP)—Architect Frank Lloyd Wright has disclosed he will go to Iraq in March to design and build an opera house in Baghdad.

Wright, here for a lecture appearance, said in an interview that he was invited to undertake the project two days ago by the Iraqi government.

Petrillo Burns as L. A. Fiddles

"I have lawyers telling me to keep quiet..."

Labor's More Trouble Than Bosses, He Says

By SAUL PETT

NEW YORK (AP)—A labor leader today, says one of the country's most colorful labor leaders, has more trouble with labor than with management.

James Caesar Petrillo, the historically blunt president of the American Federation of Musicians, made the blunt point during a torrential monologue, which began as a two-way conversation.

An interview with the "Czar of American Music" must be explained, it is like trying to ride the end of a whip on a skating rink. You ask a question and he takes off, soaring. All you can do is hold on.

For example: "The part of my job I like best? You have to watch the membership more than the employers. I like to tell the members when they're wrong. The members — if a guy isn't working, he wants you to call a strike. If he's working, he don't want you strike.

"If a guy is working, he don't want you to split his job with another guy. If he's not working, he wants you to split the jobs up. Every union today has more trouble from the members than from the employers.

"WHEN A UNION is 100 per cent with its membership and faces its most serious intra-union fight, it's never 100 per cent. I should say 95 — and the situation. The musicians there, they're fair, you will recently elected an anti-Petrillo. I enjoy negotiating a contract. They also went to court seeking injunctions and 135 million in damages against the national union.

"You have to maneuver and dollars in damages against the battle. We get along all right. national union. If a guy gives you 10 per cent.

"A guy looking for a fight, he'll get it."

union's trust fund. As it stands now, the fund receives royalties from every musical record sold. It also gets "re-use" royalties from every musical movie or filmed TV show every time it is rerun on TV or in a theater.

PETRILLO SAYS the fund is out of his hands since it is administered by a neutral referee. The money is used to pay for free public concerts or performances in hospitals and charitable institutions by unemployed members of the union's 700 locals around the country.

"It's all aggravation and the money since they performed members call you this, the most or much of the 'royalty' bosses call you that, and the music in the first place. Petrillo press calls you everything. If he says no, no—fortissimo.

"These guys out there ain't known better — the same guys ain't going to get it — unless before. Who killed Mussolini? The people — the same people that cheered him and egged him on."

A MASTER of breath control, Petrillo swung into his next subject — the revolt of his Los Angeles local — without dropping a stitch. In fact, his gravelly voice, his short, stumpy frame, his fiery eyes gathered heat and momentum as he pounded the desk.

Now serving his 17th term as federation president, Petrillo faces his most serious intra-union fight in the Los Angeles No. 1. The fund is going very good. We had four million bucks. We're going to have five million, six million, seven million, eight million."

He denies having tried to squish the rebellion with union democratic processes, insisting:

the rebels were given a fair hearing at the national convention and voted down.

"What am I going to do about the Los Angeles fight? I can't say until we get out of the courts. I have this bunch of lawyers telling me to keep quiet, and they are not always right. The more lawyers you get the more damned trouble you get.

"Hell, I was just on the phone three hours getting them out of a squabble — fighting over big words, where to put them, what to do here and there. Hell, I say, fight the case, never mind the big words. That's why I talk to the lawyers on the phone. If they come in the office, they sit here for days trying to impress me how smart they are."

PETRILLO has been accused of perpetuating his power by loading his union membership with people who no longer earn their living from music and haven't for years. It is frequently said that once a boy plays in a college band he becomes a union member for life even if he never plays again.

"There's a million answers. You're a young fella, you join the union, so you study to be a doctor. Pretty soon you get your diploma, your certificate of operation, but you don't give up your union card, maybe for sentimental reasons. Am I supposed to throw you out?"

"These non-playing members don't get anything out of the union. They don't get anything from the fund."

"You have to remember this. We have 75,000 musicians who don't work steady. But somebody tells you half our membership is inactive, he don't know what he's talking about."

"This organization is absolutely unique. I dug that word up for you; I want you to know I talk English. ... Are we supposed to have one union for part-time musicians and one union for full-time and half-time and a third-time and no-time?"

Girls Score in Contest on Homemaking

Five Long Beach high school girls Saturday were named "Betty Crocker Homemakers of Tomorrow" in an annual contest sponsored by General Mills.

The winners are Mary Lynn Herenden of Dewey High School, Betty Nell Shaw of Jordan High School, Joan Ferguson of Millikan High School, Valerie Kay White of Poly High School and Linda Sams of Wilson High School.

Their examination papers will be entered in the statewide contest, to compete with the other 379 winning school entries in California.

THE STATE WINNER will receive a $1,500 scholarship and an expense-paid trip to Washington, Williamsburg, Va., and New York. The state runnerup will receive a $500 scholarship. Some 300,000 high school seniors throughout the nation are participating in the contest.

The national winners will be named May 2, and a $5,000 scholarship will be awarded the girl named "All-American Homemaker of Tomorrow."

Ike Will Try to Sell Saud on Peace Aim

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower is reported to be counting heavily on his forthcoming talks with King Saud of Saudi Arabia to gain wider understanding and acceptance in the Arab world for his Middle East program.

Specifically, the President is expected to assure the King that the United States is not seeking to fill the "vacuum" in the region left by the shattering of British and French influence there.

Officials said Saturday that the United States' purpose is not to replace Anglo-French power with American power but to try to make it possible for the Middle Eastern nations themselves to develop stable control of the region.

IT WAS SAID that this will be made very clear to King Saud while he is in Washington this week. He will arrive here at noon Wednesday and remain through Saturday. He will reach New York by ship Tuesday and the State Department said that he would address a session of the U. N. General Assembly there Tuesday afternoon.

The "vacuum" theory is expected to be a key point in the Eisenhower-Saud talks because it is a point which the Arabs themselves have raised. They have indicated they don't want the United States or any other country to establish a "sphere of influence" over them.

Saud will come here directly from talks with the leaders of Egypt, Syria and Jordan in Cairo on Jan. 19. After the Cairo conference the Egyptian government declared that the leaders of the four countries had agreed to reject the "vacuum" theory.

According to information obtained here, the President intends to reject the theory also and thereby try to remove this central point of criticism of the Eisenhower program.

EISENHOWER HAS asked Congress to approve the use of United States armed forces if necessary to protect the Middle East against Communist attack. He has also asked for broadened authority for the use of economic aid and military assistance funds to help the countries develop greater internal strength.

In testimony before congressional committees, Secretary of State Dulles has said the President would act under the program in response to appeals from nations in the area. He has emphasized that the administration will not try to impose the program on any Middle Eastern country.

Diplomatic officials reported that the talks between Eisenhower and Saud would cover problems of the whole Middle Eastern area as well as specific problems of primary interest to the United States and Saudi Arabia.

In this latter category, continued United States use of the Dhahran Air Base is expected to come up. The base is an important link in the chain of military positions which this country built up abroad in the early postwar period to counter Soviet military power. The agreement covering the use of the base at Dhahran expired last June. Negotiations for renewal have been under way since May.

THERE IS SOME possibility that an agreement in principle on renewal could be reached while King Saud is here. Parallel with the base negotiations, Saudi Arabia has proposed that the United States provide extensive military and economic assistance. Some estimates have put the Saudi bid for economic aid as high as 200 million dollars.

While State Department officials take the line that this is not a "price" which Saudi

Little Girl Has a Busy Day

FORREST DE BUTTS, whose mother thought she might be lonely during her visit to Long Beach, Saturday was caught up in a merry-go-round of entertainment—and all on the house. A letter composed by the 10-year-old stirred interest which brought her an open-handed welcome here.

Ten-Year-Old's Visit Filled With Big Events

A 10-year-old girl whose parents' farm at Malibu was damaged by the recent fire spent her first night away from home here Saturday—and it was a night to remember.

For Forrest De Butts and her father, Edward D. de Butts, the whole week-end has some resemblance to a fairy tale.

When father and daughter arrived at the Wilton Hotel Saturday—he to attend a board meeting of the California Rural Lettercarriers' Assn., of which he is president—they found a fifth-floor suite had been reserved. And the bill was on the house.

NEXT, Fern Medeiros, long-time catering manager of the Wilton's Sky Room, whisked Forrest to the Pike where she went on a dizzy round of rides, ate hot dogs, went swimming, and then to a movie—again, all free.

The all-out reception had its beginnings in a letter which Forrest's mother wrote recently to the Wilton. Forrest was accompanying her father here for his board meeting, the letter said, but mother had to stay behind and tend a small army of pets on their "Squeaky Mesa" farm at Malibu.

Mrs. De Butts was worried, she wrote, that Forrest might become restless and bored. She requested information on a post-war period to counter Soviet military power. The agreement covering the use of the base at Dhahran expired last June. Negotiations for renewal have been under way since May.

Arabia wants for renewing the air-base agreement. It is apparent that unless the Saudi Arabian demands are substantially met, the agreement will be in serious difficulty.

Saud is also expected to urge more vigorous support for his side in his long and sometimes violent argument with the British over the Durrat al-Nasir, which has been called a geographic key to the development of new oil resources in the southern part of the Arabian Peninsula.

Foreign Relations Annapolis Asked

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Fred W. Ladd (R-NJ) suggested Saturday the creation of a foreign relations academy on the order of West Point or Annapolis.

He said the "great questions of war and peace" have developed to the point where "we must give far greater attention to training experts in the field of foreign relations."

Ladd said he plans to introduce legislation providing for the academy.

Yowling Cat Wins, Couple Leaves Home

GLENDORA (AP)—A frustrated couple Saturday surrendered their home to a durable cat which has been living inside their walls and subjecting them to eerie serenades for 20 days.

Vincent Carta and his wife, Eunice, retreated to the home of friends after all efforts to lure the tireless Tabby from her dark retreat failed. The hole-in intruder flitted ignored holes that were cut in the walls to give her an easy out.

Carta said his wife, who is pregnant, became so distraught over the incessant caterings that her doctor insisted she leave the house.

And it looks as if the Cartas will be moved out of house and home even if the cat succumbs. Mrs. Carta says she'll refuse to live in the house again if the spooky guest dies in its narrow hiding place.

U.S. Ousts Soviet Aide of Embassy

NEW YORK (UP)—A Russian Embassy military attache was ousted from the United States Saturday in the aftermath of the smashing of a Soviet spy ring here.

Maj. Yuri P. Krylov was expelled for improperly purchasing "quantities" of electronic equipment and trying to buy U. S. military secrets. He left with his wife and two small children aboard the French liner Liberte.

There were indications that U. S. government officials planned to implicate other Soviet officials in the spy ring, regarded by the FBI as the biggest such case since Ethel and Julius Rosenberg were executed in 1953 for wartime atomic espionage.

THE INVESTIGATION of the alleged new spy ring spread to Canada where authorities sought possible links with the three Lithuanian-born defendants being held here in $100,000 bail.

Krylov's ouster was ordered last week as FBI agents closed in on Jack Sobel, 53, his wife, Myra, 52, and Jacob Albam, 64, who were arrested in their homes here Friday. They were charged with conspiracy since 1947.

U. S. Attorney Paul Williams said Sobel had succeeded Soviet Embassy Second Secretary Vasily M. Zubilin "as a dominant figure in the espionage ring after World War II." Zubilin, who returned to Moscow in 1944, was identified by the FBI in 1953 as head of the NKVD in North America. The NKVD was described by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover as "one of the primary branches of Soviet intelligence in North America."

A FEDERAL grand jury investigation of the Sobel-Albam case was set for Monday. U. S. officials were expected to introduce evidence implicating Soviet officials and others believed to be involved in the alleged spy ring. There were reports that other arrests would be made.

Krylov, young, thin, blond, assistant military attache, and his family were accompanied to the Liberte by Col. Victor Fomin, another Russian assistant military attache. The Krylovs had no other visitors and locked themselves in their cabin until the ship sailed.

"I am happy to return to the motherland," was all Krylov would tell newsmen who trailed him up the gangplank as soon as it was opened at 8:30 a.m. The ship sailed three hours later.

Dry Laws for Hindus, Not Thirsty Zhukov

NEW DELHI (AP)—India's prohibition laws don't bother Soviet Defense Minister Georgi Zhukov on his tour of the country. Sources close to his entourage said he brought wine and vodka with him, as well as caviar and smoked salmon.

NEW YORK (AP)—When Mrs. Henry Carballo decided it was about that time, her Army-sergeant husband bundled her into a taxicab and they headed for the Army hospital on Governor's Island.

For a while they thought their fifth child was going to be born in the cab on the ferry to the island. A military police officer with some experience in such matters hopped into the cab to help out.

BUT CARBALLO breathed easier when the ferry docked and the cab sped toward the hospital with the littlest Carballo still unborn.

The delivery still was in progress with the MP helping out when the sergeant got his wife to an elevator. Doctors and attendants crowded in with her, and the useless husband was crowded out.

"What floor?" he shouted.

"Fourth," he was told.

Carballo raced up the three flights of steps, and arrived just as the elevator doors slid open.

An Army doctor stepped out, carrying a baby in his arms.

"I got the shock of my life," said Carballo.

Chou Declares U.N. Won't Aid Pakistan

KATMANDU, Nepal (AP)—Visiting Red Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai told a civic reception Saturday:

"Pakistan's reference of the Kashmir issue to the U. N. Security Council will not yield any good result and I hope India and Pakistan, as sister nations, will solve this problem by peaceful negotiations between themselves."

Knight Ready to Sign Bill for Huge Dam

SACRAMENTO (AP)—Gov. Knight was reported, Saturday, ready to take action early this week to carry out his Legislature-approved program for starting the giant Feather River Project.

Paul Mason, the governor's legislative secretary, said Knight would sign the $25,000,000 appropriation measure by Wednesday, thus permitting an immediate start on clearing the Oroville damsite, the key unit of the statewide project.

The money bill was agreed on late Friday night, just before the lawmakers quit their short January session for a five-week recess. They'll be back March 4 to begin 105 days of deliberations on over 7,000 measures introduced during the three-week opening.

KNIGHT GOT his funds for Oroville after a week of wrangling between the South and North over the project itself and question of water rights for the two areas.

It was successful also in two other parts of his legislative program—three million dollars for free polio shots and funds for 110 additional Highway Patrolmen.

Mason said those bills also would receive the governor's signature just as soon as they reach his desk.

The polio money is to be split among local health departments. They'll do the actual inoculating.

Dr. Malcolm Merrill, state public health director, said the speedy action on the money was requested so the shots could be administered to about two million adults before the beginning of the polio season, usually late in May.

HE SAID $2,450,000 will be spent for vaccine, $380,000 for handling the inoculations and $170,000 on promotional work to inform Californians the shots are available and where to get them.

Patrol Commissioner B. R. Caldwell said the 110 new officers will be hired in March and will be on the highways in June after three months training at the patrol academy in Sacramento.

He said the men will be sent to areas showing the highest accident rates. Knight is asking for 270 more patrolmen in his 1957-58 budget, but their training—if the Legislature approves them—won't start until July.

The governor also is asking for 33 million dollars more to complete the highway-railroad relocation job at Oroville.

SOUTHERNERS, however, served notice before they went home that they'll fight any more FIP funds until they get Northern agreement on a constitutional amendment spelling out water rights.

The Southerners, predominant in the Assembly, say they need definite assurances of a continuing supply before they will help finance the Northern projects. And the Northern Senate is equally insistent in retaining enough water for future development before it accepts any constitutional amendment assigning water rights.

THE FIGHT OVER water is but one of a flock of issues bound to generate steam in the final part of the session.

There's Knight's two-billion-dollar budget to consider, his request for increased aid to welfare recipients and increases in weekly unemployment insurance and disability benefits.

He's asking mandatory jail sentences for drunk drivers and a change in the speed limit.

Legislation was introduced levying a three-cent cigarette tax and hiking the beer tax to raise more money for schools.

DANDY LION HUNTRESS

A one-girl safari into the Palos Verdes Hills was made Saturday by pretty Marti Fowler, 18, of Lomita. She was hunting for the mountain lion reported spotted in the scenic area at intervals during the past seven years. Although well armed with bow and arrow, air rifle and trusty hunting dog, "Cookie," she had no better luck than other expeditions that have combed the hills looking for the legendary animal.—(Staff Photo)

80 Former Staff Aides Fete MacArthur at 77

NEW YORK (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur celebrated his 77th birthday at a big party at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel Saturday night.

The dinner party, given by retired Maj. Gen. L. J. Sverdrup, of St. Louis, was attended by some 80 former officers who were on MacArthur's staff when he was supreme commander in the Pacific Theater.

Among invited guests were Gen. George Kenney, Gen. Walter Krueger and Adm. Thomas Kincaid, who headed MacArthur's air, land and naval forces respectively in the Pacific campaign.

John Boardman, 24, told newsmen the university's dean of students called him in and advised him that because he had violated State Board of Control segregation policies he was being refused admittance for the new term starting Feb. 7.

Councilman Baker Seeks Re-Election

By THE LOOKOUT

City Councilman John F. Baker on Saturday started what is expected to be a parade of re-election declarations from incumbent Council members.

Outlining a nine-point platform, Baker said that he will file for nomination in the Seventh District, from which he first was elected three years ago.

His declaration invited other incumbent Councilmen to get into the swim.

"As a member of the present Council, I am proud of its record and achievements and hope the great team that has faced many problems and surmounted them during the present term will elect to continue to serve our city," he said.

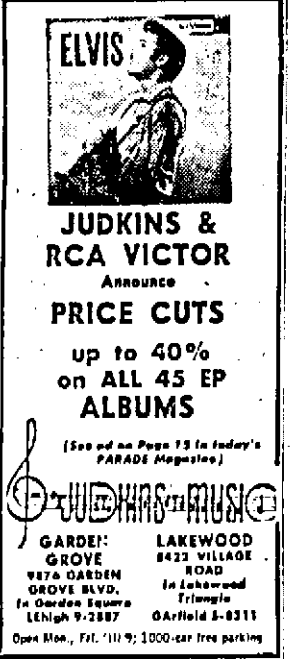

Baker, a retired Navy lieutenant commander, has lived here since 1935. He is past president and present secretary of The Fleet Reserve Assn., and was executive director of the first Mrs. America Contest. His home is at 2230 Daisy Ave.

1. To hope finally to solve the problem of subsidence by applying the corrective measures found necessary by the best engineering minds;
2. To complete authorized civic improvements as mandated by the voters.
3. To maintain economy and efficiency in local government.
4. To advocate industrial expansion to provide additional employment and payrolls for our increasing population.
5. To continue watchfulness on the Washington scene to insure preservation of the Naval

Brazil Justice Dies

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP)—Jose Linhares, 71, longtime Chief Justice of Brazil and one-time president for three months, died Saturday of a heart attack.

Shipyard and related waterfront activities.

6. To continue the policy of reducing costly city elections.

7. To maintain the civil service system of the city at its present high level of efficiency and morale.

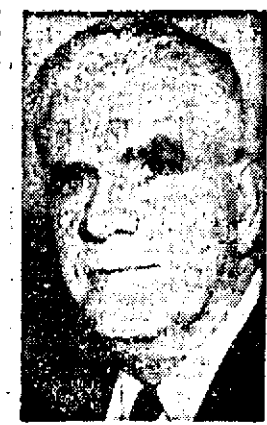

8. To submit to the voters large expenditures of money and complex policy matters after a careful and thorough investigation.

9. To reappoint the very valuable mayor and council's advisory committee for public improvements.

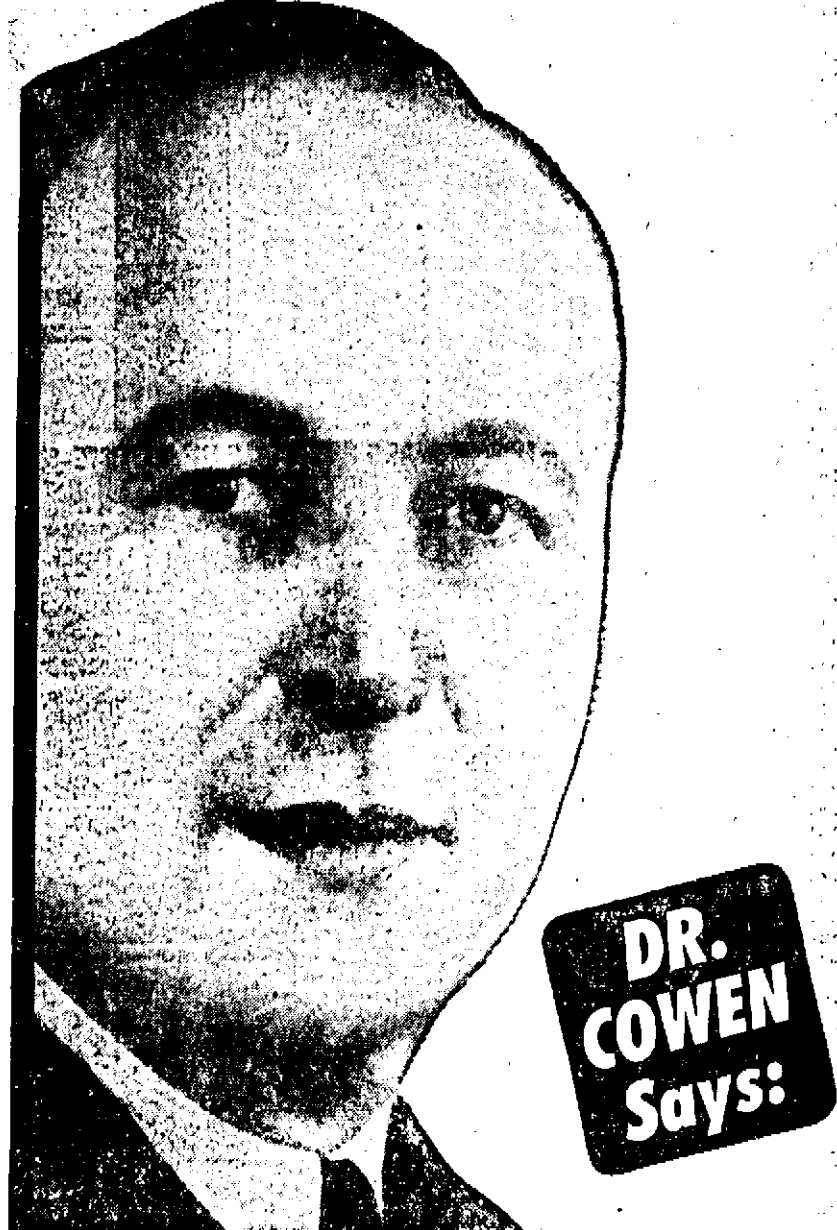

The municipal primary will be held on May 14.

POLITICAL BRIEFS:
Assemblymen W. S. Grant and

Herbert R. Klockston are returning home this weekend for the legislative recess. The lawmakers will go back to Sacramento March 4... West Side Democratic Club has adopted a resolution attacking the Eisenhower-Dulles doctrine on Middle East economic and military assistance. Economic aid for the Middle Eastern countries, the resolution said, should be handled through the United Nations... Gov. G. Bipartisan ProgramBy WALTER T. RIDDER, ROBERT E. LEE
AND WILLIAM W. BROOM
(Independent Press-Telegram Capital Bureau)

WASHINGTON—President Eisenhower's second administration is slowly acquiring a measure of bi-partisanship through recent and expected high-level appointments.

The lineup of prominent Democrats in responsible posts is headed by former Sen. Walter E. George, who actually was appointed ambassador to NATO last year when he announced he'd retire from the Senate. The elderly Georgian was chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Others are former Rep. James P. Richards, George's opposite number in the House, named special adviser on Midwest affairs, Gordon Gray, who is leaving the Defense Department, where he also served under President Truman, to become chief defense mobilizer, and Ellsworth Bunker, who served in diplomatic posts under Truman, has just become ambassador to India.

The list is expected to grow. Among others being considered for the post of ambassador to France is John Nicholas Brown, who was one of Mr. Truman's assistant secretaries of the Navy.

ONE OF THE union officials who refused to testify before a Senate committee about alleged misuse of workers' dues money was asked by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark) where he lived.

He said he came from Brooklyn, but McClellan wasn't sure of the reply.

"Did you say Brooklyn?" asked the senator, and the witness replied:

"Yeah, where da tree grows."

secretary of defense, is one of the best phrase-turners in the government. Sometimes, Charlie's way with words gets him into trouble. Remember those kennel dogs and bird dogs?

Recently he was complaining about the number of assistant secretaries of defense cluttering up the Pentagon.

And then he confided how he handles them.

"A successful executive," Charlie said in reference to himself, "is a man who wears a worried look on his assistant's face."

SEN. BILL LANGER (R-ND), who doesn't think enough people vote in national elections, has put in a bill to allow a $25 income tax credit to anyone who votes for federal officers.

This raises a question of considerable interest to residents of Washington, D. C., who want but don't have the right to vote for anyone. Under the Langer Bill Washingtonians would not only continue to be taxed without representation, as they are now, but would be further penalized by Congress for the deprivation of Congress of their constitutional right to vote.

However, residents of the U. S. territories, who are represented by non-voting delegates in the House, would get the tax reduction.

CAPITAL PROTESTS MOUNT

Four congressmen pose in Washington, D. C., Saturday with petition asking President Eisenhower not to invite Yugoslav President Tito to visit this country. From left: Reps. Ray J. Madden (D-Ind.), Kenneth Keating (R-NY), John W. McCormack (D-Mass) and Gordon McDonough (R-Calif.). Petition is to be circulated among House members, beginning Monday.—(AP Wirephoto)

Dirksen Again
Seeks Limit on Income Tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) was trying to keep interest alive in a proposed constitutional amendment to limit federal income-tax rates to 25 per cent.

He told the United Press on his proposal "in hope that interest will become more widespread."

The project seems to have no chance of congressional approval this year—if ever.

The assistant Republican leader in the Senate proposed the tax-limit proposal this year, as he has in the past. He continued his support after President Eisenhower sent Congress a record, one-time budget of $71.8 billion. The President said no tax cut was possible now.

THE PROPOSAL. If adopted by two-thirds of Congress and three-fourths of the states, would put a top 25-per-cent rate on income taxes for individuals whose rates now run as high as 91 per cent, and corporations, which pay 52 per cent.

It also would abolish gift and inheritance taxes which now bring the Treasury about $1 billion a year.

Dirksen conceded that a nationwide drive by backers to have state legislatures call for a constitutional convention on the question is largely window dressing to put heat on Congress.

Four GOP Solons Propose Studies of Immigration

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four Republican Senators proposed Saturday that presidential commission be set up to study the nation's basic immigration policies.

They announced that they would introduce a bill to create a commission appointed by President Eisenhower. They said the commission should study operations of the four-year-old McCarran-Walter Immigration law and give special attention to the "national origins quota system," which determines the number of immigrants who may be admitted from various countries.

THE FOUR were Sens. Irving M. Ives (R-NY), Clifford P. Case (R-NJ), Jacob K. Javits (R-NY) and H. Alexander Smith (R-ND). All were among sponsors of a bill introduced Friday to amend the McCarran-Walter law.

Eisenhower is scheduled to outline his proposals for amending the law in a special message to Congress, Wednesday.

The President's proposals and the amendments proposed in the Senate are sure to encounter formidable opposition in the House from Rep. Francis J. Walter (D-Pa.), chairman of the Judiciary Committee which handles immigration bills, and co-author of the present law.

Walter has made clear that he is adamantly opposed to any substantial changes in present restrictions on immigration.

American Motors
Strike Deadlocked

KENOSHA, Wis. (AP) — Negotiators met for four hours Saturday trying to settle the five-day American Motors Corp. strike but adjourned until 1 p.m. Monday without announcing any progress.

The meeting followed a five-hour session Friday night, the first meeting of company officials and United Auto Workers' leaders since the strike began Tuesday.

DICTATOR CALLED REPUGNANT

Against Visit of Tito

WASHINGTON (UP)—Protests against the impending state visit of Marshal Tito of Yugoslavia mounted Saturday, with no signs from the State Department the invitation will be withdrawn.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin (D-NC) and four house members, including Democratic leader John W. McCormack (Mass) lodged new complaints. Ervin said he was opposed "because no good can be served." The House members drew up a bipartisan petition, to be circulated starting Monday, asking President Eisenhower to cancel the invitation.

The protests coincided with reports Tito will be invited to come here during the Easter recess when most of the legislators will be out of town.

ERVIN SAID he opposed Tito's visit because it would "increase his prestige and thus strengthen his control over people who are opposed to his dictatorship." He also said state visits "are habitually accompanied by requests for so-called foreign aid." He said this country already has granted Tito more than $1 billion in the past without winning any assurance he will stand with the west.

The House petition grew out of previous protests in the House and Senate.

IT SAYS that because of the Communist leader's "record and affiliation with communism and the Kremlin, his position as Communist dictator of Yugoslavia, his persecution of Cardinal Stepanic, his attacks on American fliers which killed five American airmen, his forceful return of escaped Hungarian freedom fighters to their country for execution, as well as countless other despicable acts have made him repugnant and detestable in the eyes of the American people."

Earlier this month Secretary of State John Foster Dulles asked Yugoslav Ambassador Leo Matos to call on him at the department and discuss the invitation which would be calculated to drive a wedge between Tito and Moscow.

Not-So-Sweet Leilani to Dock

City to Salute Cruise Ship on Her Visit Here

By LEE CHANG

With a 36-foot artificial beach and a 100-foot artificial lagoon, the Hawaiian Steamship Co.'s Leilani will sail into Long Beach Harbor Thursday morning, her reputation for service and her scheduled cruises to Hawaii.

The 18,500-ton converted troopship made a triumphal departure Jan. 14 from New York, carrying more than 600 passengers on a 17-day intercoastal cruise through the Caribbean and the Panama Canal to bring her to Long Beach.

But when the Leilani arrived at Balboa, Panama Canal Zone, reports indicated the cruise until then had not been one of unmitigated pleasure for the passengers.

THE REPORTS stated that 77 passengers had left the ship at Balboa because of an outbreak of food poisoning, necessitating hospital treatment for 16, rough water which caused five passengers to break arms and legs in tumbles, poor service and a surly crew. Even the ship's doctor, Zachary Sagal, left the ship.

The uproar brought Elmer J. Martin, Hawaiian Steamship Co. president, flying from San Francisco to investigate the situation personally.

In answer, the company stated:

1. Some crew members were replaced because they weren't "performing well," but that it was a good crew.

2. News about fractured arms and legs among passengers was "news to us."

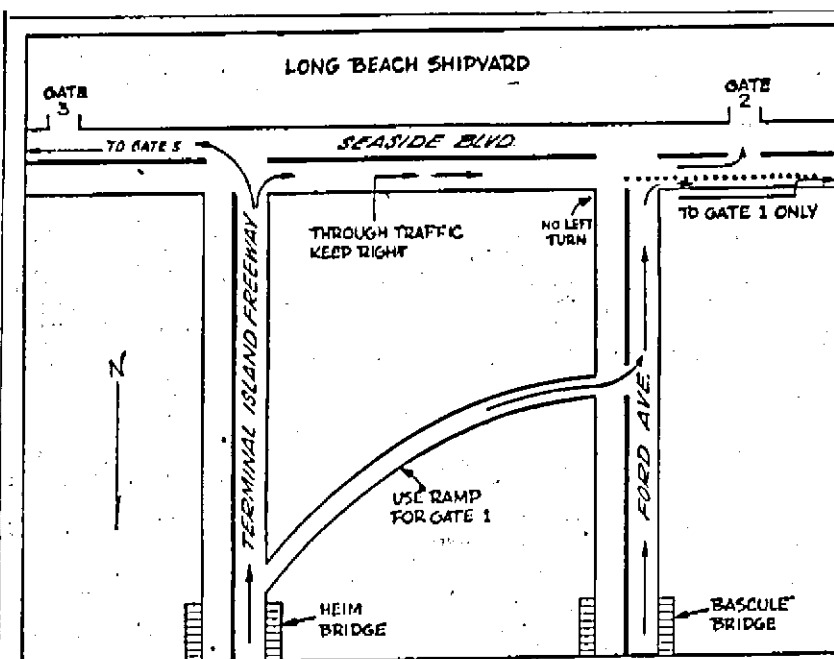

3. Dr. Sagal left the ship because "he couldn't take the grind. He is an older man and he has peptic ulcers."

A DEFENSE of sorts for the company was reported by Lester Arellanes, passenger agent for Pacific Far East Lines, the Hawaiian company's agent.

Arellanes said that two women who had left the Leilani at Balboa came to his Los Angeles office to give their version of the voyage.

The women—whom he didn't name—asserted the so-called food poisoning was really dysentery contracted by some passengers who ate contaminated food during the stop at Port-au-Prince. After treatment at Balboa, the passengers rejoined the ship.

The women also said that no rough water was encountered and that no passengers were hurt through falls. One seaman, however, broke his leg when he fell down a ladder.

ISLAND TRAFFIC CONTROLS SET

They praised steamer service aboard the ship, although they mentioned that passengers usually waited two hours for breakfast and up to four hours for dinner.

The reason they left the ship, they said, was to escape loud complaints by the other passengers regarding the service.

NEVERTHELESS, local harbor officials plan a big welcome for the vessel.

Tentative plans call for the ship to be escorted into port by a convoy of Coast Guard cutters and other vessels, including the city's two fireboats.

The Municipal Band and harbor and civic officials will be waiting at Pier A, Berth 7, to greet passengers as they disembark on a gangway encircled by another huge orchid lei.

Friday night, local steamship officials will board the Leilani for a party and reception featuring Hawaiian entertainment. A similar affair for Southern California travel agents will follow Saturday.

A scheduled television appearance for the ship Friday on the "Richfield Success Story" was canceled because Hawaiian Steamship Co. officials said, workmen would be aboard the Leilani repairing her plumbing system.

Mariner Ship Slated for L. B. Christening

A 15,000-ton, 20-knot Mariner class vessel, a new addition to the States Line-Pacific Transport Lines, Inc., will be christened here Wednesday at 3 p. m.

The modern cargo liner, recently commissioned in Seattle, is one of two Mariners recently purchased by States-PTL from the Federal Maritime Administration.

The other vessel, the SS Buckeye Mariner, will join the fleet next month as the SS C. E. Dant, named for the late Charles E. Dant, one of the founders of States Steamship Co.

IN CHRISTENING ceremonies at Pier C, Berth 20, the fleet's first Mariner will be named the SS M. M. Dant after

New Records at City Library

The record section of the Main Library suggests that serious composers can produce light music. Here are new recordings that illustrate this: Borodin, "Polovets Dances" (Eduard Van Beinum conducting); Copland, "Music for the Movies"; "Music of Offenbach" (Luzerne Festival Orchestra); "Rhapsody" (favorites conducted by Rodzinski); Tchaikovsky, "Nutcracker Suite" (Boston Pops Orchestra); and Tchaikovsky, "Swan Lake" (Williams conducting). The two Tchaikovsky titles are always among those most frequently requested by the borrowers.

War on Malaria

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Three hundred thousand houses were sprayed with insecticides in the first three months of Mexico's anti-malaria campaign. The government hopes to wipe out malaria in two years.

Fewer Crimes Mar Inaugural

WASHINGTON (AP)—About half as many crimes were committed in the nation's capital over the recent inaugural weekend as were reported during President Eisenhower's first inaugural celebration. Washington police attribute the drop to the larger police force used to patrol the city. During the recent inauguration, 137 serious crimes were committed, compared to 235 four years ago.

Island Traffic Control Slated

Motorists bound for Terminal Island via the Heim, bascule and pontoon bridges will encounter new rush-hour traffic controls beginning Monday.

The controls will be in effect Monday through Friday from 6:30 a. m. to 8 a. m. At the Seaside Blvd. intersection with the Heim bridge-Terminal Island Freeway route and the bascule bridge-Ford Ave. route, motorcycle officers will control the flow of traffic to prevent changing of lanes.

MOTORISTS are urged to observe these points:
1. No left turns will be permitted from Ford Ave. onto Seaside Blvd.
2. Ford Ave. vehicles must turn right at Seaside and may not enter either Gate 2 or Parking Lot D of the Naval Shipyard.

3. Traffic approaching Terminal Island from the north and bound for Gate 1 of the Naval Station and points west is requested to use Ford Ave.

4. Freeway traffic over the Heim bridge bound for Gate 1 will be routed via the approach ramp to Ford Ave.

5. Freeway traffic bound for Gates 3 and 5 at the shipyard must avoid using the right-hand lane in approaching the left-hand turn at Seaside Blvd.

6. Pontoon bridge traffic may enter Gates 5, 3 and 2, but should use the right-hand lane for Gate 1 and points west.

7. Vehicles leaving Terminal Island during the rush period will not be permitted to turn left from Seaside Blvd. to Ford Ave.

ADULTS HAD THEIR DAY

Quit Worrying About Presley

By VERA WILLIAMS
Adolescence is a time of "crushes." Don't get too worried if your youngsters go crazy over Elvis Presley, even to aping his dress and mannerisms.

YOU shouted over Frank Sinatra, didn't you? And your mother probably swooned over Rudolph Valentino.

"This, too, will pass" is the counsel that Joseph McDonald, executive director of the Family Service of Long Beach and his staff give to parents worried over Elvis, and to youngsters who think that their parents don't understand them because they shriek at Elvis records, movies and TV appearances.

"PRESLEY AUDIENCES are normal kids," says Joe. "They are the kind of youngsters who a short time ago helped to put out a grass fire near the Millikan school, which had endangered property. . . . They are the kind of youngsters we all get to serve as baby-sitters, and they do a good job of it, too."

"It is important for youngsters to feel that they belong to a group, and the king figure of that group is not their father or mother, but a peer of the group who is about their own age. At the moment, that's Elvis Presley. It used to be Sinatra, and before him, Valentino."

"REMEMBER," adds Joe, "that our teen-agers were born when their fathers were in the war, or at least they were small when their fathers were gone to war. It was hard for the mothers to give them a feeling of security."

This also is a time of high speed cars. "We haven't found out yet where the cars go," grins Joe. He feels that supervised drug strips help control recklessness and channel a love for speed. "But we don't have the answers yet," he admits. "If we did, insurance rates for men drivers under 25 wouldn't skyrocket."

AGGRESSIVE instincts of youngsters—hair-pulling, fights,

FRANK SINATRA AND FANS . . . You Shouted, Didn't You?

failure to observe school and home rules, etc.—often can be traced to marital conflict at home, according to the Family Service counselors.

"Children are distressed at trouble between their parents, and their worry and uncertainty takes the form of making them aggressive."

"Often we can trace the beginning of a child's bad behavior to a serious argument between his parents, to a family crisis of some kind such as when Father lost his job and there was not enough money for a while, or when the child was uprooted from a familiar environment to a new one."

SOMETIMES this aggressive-ness goes back to jealousy over the birth of a new baby which is getting all the family attention, or jealousy over a brother or sister who got a better grade in school, or more praise or petting from a parent.

"Youngsters out of whole cloth can imagine that their parents don't love them," says Joe. "This can be carried over into adolescence or even adult life and become a serious thing."

Family Service, 1213 Cedar Ave., counsels parents and children, husbands, wives, in-laws, neighbors. The service is non-sectarian. Clients pay if they are able to pay—all get the same service, whether or not they pay.

Joe now is on his fifth year as executive director. New officers who took over their duties this month are Ely E. Somerville, president; Jack R. Matlock, vice president; Mrs. Edwin Harvey, secretary; Thomas W. McKin-

80,000 Moslems Riot in Pakistan
KARACHI, Pakistan (CP)—More than 80,000 Moslems rioted here Saturday to protest India's annexation of the state of Kashmir.

Police armed with long wooden staffs flailed at screaming Pakistanis to little avail. The mobs surged through the main thoroughfares of this capital city burning hundreds of effigies of Indian Premier Jawaharlal Nehru and screaming "Nehru . . . murder." A number of casualties were reported.

Traffic Rap Nabs Fugitive
DES MOINES (CP)—George Dietrich, 51, who "lived in fear" for 22 years after escaping from a Wisconsin prison farm, waited patiently Saturday to be returned to serve out his time and "get it over."

Dietrich, whose secret life came crashing down because of an arrest for reckless driving, said "It relieves me to know that this farce is all over." Dietrich was arrested at the home of a friend at Independence, Iowa, Friday by state agents.

10,000 Police Purge Hungary
LONDON (CP)—A 10,000-man secret police force has begun a ruthless purge of government opponents in Hungary, iron curtain dispatches said Saturday.

The reports said the Soviet-backed regime of Premier János Kadar has commented an all-out drive against "counter-revolutionaries" through the use of secret police.

Russ Propose Alaska Bridge
WASHINGTON (CP)—A "science fiction" article in the new issue of Russia's English-language propaganda magazine envisions the construction of a huge dam between Alaska and Siberia to change the climate of the whole north Pacific region.

The article, by Soviet writer Vasil Zolotarevskiy, will appear in the Feb. 1 issue of USSR Illustrated monthly, a magazine which Russia distributes in this country under a reciprocal arrangement which permits distribution of the U. S. propaganda magazine America in the Soviet Union.

Frogmen Dismantle Nazi Mine
LONDON (CP)—British Navy frogmen Saturday night dismantled a 1,600-pound German mine under 25 feet of murky Thames River at the busy West India docks.

The mine, which had been imbedded in the mud since wartime while ships plied back and forth over it was discovered Friday when a tug skipper reported striking an underwater obstruction.

Deny Abdication of King
OSLO, Norway (CP)—Both the government and the royal court Saturday denied reports that 81-year-old King Haakon is planning to abdicate in favor of his son, Crown Prince Olaf.

The king has been in virtual retirement since he fell and broke his hip in June, 1955. Olaf has been regent of Norway since then.

Area Reports $30,000,000 Loss in 1956

By JOHN QUIET

Stealing from the boss, or embezzlement, is on the increase in Southern California.

Last year alone, this area suffered a 30 million dollar loss, in the estimation of one bonding firm, and newspaper articles like—"Area bookkeeper who graciously gave up her vacation for years in order to keep the books juggled, finally takes 180-day vacation by request"—appeared more frequently than ever.

The increase in this area reflects a national trend that saw U. S. embezzlement losses jump 400 per cent during the past year. The educated guess was ventured by another bonding company that 7 per cent of all business failures are due to this form of white-collar crime.

A SPECIAL AGENT for Fidelity and Deposit Co. of Maryland, points out that the increase is synonymous with the current inflationary period. Two conditions, the agent says, help promote this increased embezzlement:

1. Excessive installment buying that can mean mounting financial pressure for the breadwinner and billpayer.
2. The tight labor market, which often means inadequate screening of potential employees.

Recently a Southland clerk admitted taking $8,000 in store funds because she wanted good clothes and trips. Once started on the habit of helping herself to company funds, she admitted she couldn't stop, until police stopped her.

In another case, a schemer, who carefully worked his way

How to Curb Theft

Here are precautions against embezzlement urged upon employers by a nationally known CPA, Lester C. Pratt:

- RIGID CHARACTER Investigations of employees hired for a position of trust.
- REGULAR ROTATION of employees in trusted positions.
- PERIODIC VACATIONS for bookkeepers, to enable an outside check on the books.
- ADEQUATE INSURANCE against theft. Only 10 per cent of today's firms are covered against embezzlement, while 90 per cent are protected against fire.
- INSISTENCE ON countersignatures on all checks.

The final solution to the problem, of course, lies within the employee himself. He must weigh the consequences against the temptation to steal the boss's money. A few nights of painting the town usually mean a lot of days pining in a cell.

into the front office of a California firm, left the office one day with $17,000 of company money.

ACCORDING to the directors of the Chicago Crime Commission, Virgil W. Peterson, examination of past cases indicates that many apparently honest employees resort to embezzlement because of:

1. Gambling—Heavy losses at the races drove one Harbor area businessman to abscond with $4,000 of company funds. Another local bookkeeper, who couldn't distinguish between a racehorse and a plug, "borrowed" a few hundred before being caught.
2. Extravagant Living Standards—The drive to keep up with the Joneses often causes a trusted employee to drift into dishonesty. In the celebrated case involving cashier William Nickels' $800,000 swindle from a Brooklyn, New York firm, Nickels' craving for expensive clothes, cabin cruisers and fine jewelry was cited.
3. Unusual Family Expenses—Probably the most pathetic swindles are those prompted by financial crisis arising in a family. One bank teller was refused a loan for his wife's operation, so he "borrowed" the money from his till. Like many small-time embezzlers, he fully intended to pay back the loan, and was adding $10 or $15 a week to the till when caught.
4. Bad Associates—A 45-year-old father of three squandered $20,000 of the boss's money on gifts for a cute carhop. There are also cases of the Milquetoast-type clerk falling in with fast-living, heavy-spending companions who persuade him to steal to help finance the fun.

5. Inadequate Income—Among the most common smalltime embezzlers are the underpaid employees who claim that the boss "owed" them the stolen money. Refused a raise which he felt was due, one $1,900 per year bank assistant felt justified in taking an amount from the till each payday equal to his meager paycheck.

SURETY COMPANIES can list a hundred ways that an employee can steal, but in the opinion of one such company there are seven common methods. The seven are:

1. Collecting doubtful bills and reporting them non-collectable.
2. Pocketing the proceeds from cash sales and not recording the sales.
3. Issuing and cashing checks for "returned goods" not returned.
4. Paying bills to nonexistent companies and cashing the checks with fake signatures.
5. Padding payrolls, time and production records.
6. Raising the amounts on checks, invoices and vouchers.
7. Invoicing goods below established prices and getting a cash bribe.

The permit of theft from the boss starts with pocketing a company pencil and ends with bookkeeping tricks that would make Univac compare with adding on your fingers.

Lonely Post in Antarctic Dedicated

McMURDO SOUND, Antarctica (CP)—The world's loneliest outpost has been dedicated her in ceremonies which included a message from President Eisenhower.

The ceremonies honored the Amundsen-Scott International Geophysical Year South Pole Station where nine scientists and eight Navy men will pass the long antarctic winter.

The base was named in honor of Roald Amundsen and Robert F. Scott, two of the antarctic's pioneer explorers.

Flags of the United States, Britain and Norway fluttered from their standards during the ceremony and messages from President Eisenhower, Norway's King Haakon and Britain's Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd were read.

Space Travel Parley Slated

SAN DIEGO (CP)—Scientists and military experts will talk about space travel at a three-day meeting here next month. Convair Division of General Dynamics Corp. said Saturday.

The statement of subjects for discussion said it would be the first national scientific symposium on problems associated with space travel.

Labor Chiefs Fear Drastic U.S. Rules Unless Rackets Halted

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (CP)—AFL-CIO leaders Saturday were reported concerned that Congress might impose rigid government controls over union affairs unless they quickly clean racketeers from the labor movement.

Sources close to AFL-CIO President George Meany said leaders of the 15-million member federation are afraid disclosures in a projected Senate investigation may stir up public opinion and compel Congress to act to regulate unions.

It was such a wave of public opinion, generated by the rash of strikes following World War II, that resulted in Congress adopting the Taft-Hartley law with its heavier restrictions on union activities.

Meany has put down as a first order of business for the policy-makers' executive council at its opening session Monday consideration of the big union organization's whole attitude toward the coming congressional probe.

Adoption of a still stronger ethical practices code applied to AFL-CIO unions is indicated. This likely will include a strong

Golda Meir Back in Hotel After Hospital Check

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (CP)—Mrs. Golda Meir, Israeli Foreign Minister, returned to her New York hotel Saturday after a three-day rest and checkup in Mt. Sinai Hospital.

Acquaintances said exhaustion had obliged her to enter the hospital Wednesday night. Mrs. Meir has been heading Israel's delegation to the U. N. General Assembly during debates on the Middle East crisis.

High officials of the teamsters' union balked at giving testimony to the investigation subcommittee, headed by Sen. McClellan (D-Ark), contending it lacked jurisdiction. However, teamsters' president Dave Beck said earlier last week his union would cooperate with a duly authorized Senate committee.

Dinner to Attract 100-Plus Stars

Lavish Fete Set Tuesday

A host of champion and record holders in the field of sports will be honored Tuesday night when sports fans pay homage to more than 100 of the leading athletes from Long Beach and the nearby area at the first annual Long Beach Sports Night Dinner at the Lafayette Hotel.

A distinguished gathering of between 650 and 700 persons will pay honor to the sports greats at the lavish $10-a-plate dinner which the sponsoring Chamber of Commerce is hopeful of building into one of the outstanding events of its kind in the country.

Primary aim of the inaugural dinner will be to honor Pat McCormick, who capped a colorful and eventful career in diving by scoring an unprecedented "double" in the last two Olympic Games—winning two gold medals in the springboard and platform diving events at Helsinki in 1952 and repeating at Melbourne last December.

For her brilliant feat, Pat has received every honor that could possibly be bestowed upon her... Including her selection as the outstanding woman athlete of 1956 as well as winning the most coveted trophy in amateur sports—the AAU's Sullivan Award.

CHUCK HEARN, of CBS, one of the country's leading sportscasters, will serve as master of ceremonies for the impressive program planned. He'll be assisted by the colorful Beans Reardon, former National League umpire.

The guest list is dotted with some of the great names in the world of sports and includes some of Mrs. McCormick's fellow Olympians such as Charley Dumas, Olympic high jump champion and the only man ever to break the 7-foot barrier; Mrs. Earlene Brown, one of America's outstanding women track and field performers at Melbourne; javelin thrower Phil Conley; "metric miler" Jerome Walters; Dr. Sammy Lee, 1948 and '52 Olympic platform diving king; water polo stars Robert Frojen, Bob Horn and Ronald Severa; Wilbur (Moose) Thompson, 1948 Olympic shot-put champion, and Dr. Steve Seymour, former world record holder in the javelin throw.

From the world of baseball comes such stars as Bob Lemon of the Cleveland Indians, Lou Berberet of Washington, Del Crandall of the Milwaukee Braves, Rocky Bridges of Cincinnati and possibly Duke Snider of Brooklyn, among others.

FOOTBALL WILL BE represented by a strong delegation that will include Boonin Ben Agajanian, who put the "kick" in the world champion New York Giants; Johnny Olszewski, Long Beach's own Johnny-O of St. Anthony's and California fame who is now with the Chicago Cardinals; Bill Jessup of the San Francisco 49ers; Bob Davenport, ex-UCLA All-American now playing in the Canadian League; and Jim Martin, former Notre Dame All-American, Detroit Lion star and now an assistant coach of the Lions.

Two of the great auto racing drivers—Troy Ruttman, winner of the 1952 Indianapolis "500" classic, and Chuck Stevenson, former National Big Car champion and two-time winner of the Mexican Road Race—will be joined by one of the bright newcomers to racing... Jerry Unser, who established a new record for stock cars in the grueling Pike's Peak event last year. Jockey Willie Harmsatz heads

IN THIS CORNER with DICK ZEHLIS

Spinning the sports wheel... IGNORED. Among the 10 most promising young Hollywood Stars who will train with the parent Pittsburgh Pirates late next month are three outfielders. Long Beach's Joe Duhem is not included.

Joe made a big hit with the Twinks and their gray-haired skipper, Clay Hopper, last spring. He showed enough promise to be given a regular assignment. He came to camp unheralded, but caught Hopper's eye.

For a time he was one of the Pacific Coast League's numerous 300 hitters. Gradually he played less and less. His batting average skidded. Somewhere along the line somebody has fouled up. He was heralded by Twink executives as a find early last summer. By September little was said of Joe, particularly by Hopper, who since has been succeeded by Clyde King at the Twink helm.

Have the Stars given up on Duhem? It would appear so, since his name is excluded from the most promising 10 Pirate chaffers. In other words, Joe will have to hustle full throttle at La Palma Park, Anaheim, all over again to make an impression on the new Twink skipper. On paper, at least, Joe doesn't figure in the top 10. This would infer that he may be ticketed for New Orleans of the Southern Association, a lower classification.

There's one redeeming feature—a new, young manager. If Joe can show him what he showed Clay a year ago, perhaps his chances of sticking will be much better. But right now, Joe's future with the Stars hangs in a balance. Let's go get 'em, Joe!

★ ★ ★ THE REASON. Pro football's "player of the year," ex-Trojan Frank Gifford of the New York

Giants, has his own ideas why IGNORED. Among the 10 Eastern Division, NFL, teams win more world championships than their Western Division brethren.

"We in the Eastern Division play a different type of game," he reasons. "We are a running team, supplementing our ground game with passes. We use a tighter formation. Most of the Western Division clubs pass first and run second. We're the other way around. I think our attack is sounder."

The Chicago Bears probably agree, Frank.

★ ★ ★ BREACH. There's a growing rift between the collegiate "big four" of the San Francisco area in basketball. USF and Santa Clara of the California Basketball Association and Stanford and California of the Pacific Coast Conference are involved. Scheduled policies are the crux of the trouble. Stanford's been mad at the Dons for quite a spell. The Tribe may go it alone, because Cal's Pete Newell is inclined to favor competition with two CBA powers.

★ ★ ★ THE MAIL BAG. "Dear Dick: Thought perhaps some of our old friends in Long Beach might like to know of the arrival of another Rowland cheerleader.

"My wife, Lorna, gave me another girl Tuesday morning, Jan. 15. Think we'll call her Sandra Lyn Rowland. "That makes three cheerleaders and one football player. Mother and daughter are doing fine.

"We hope to get O'Jay Bourgeois into school at College of Pacific in February to bolster our quarterback position. He will make a fine replacement for Tom Flores, who was No. 4 in the nation

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex. — The long and short of the Caliente program for today are a two-furlong fling for juveniles and a mile and three quarters marathon for tried routers. The marathon has 10 entered among them such tried long distance runners as Whirligaway, Copper Bullet, Pucketeer and Yontedega. Real headliner of the card is the March of Dimes Handicap, a six furlonger with another band of 10 going. Damp Abbey, leading sprinter here, will carry 120 pounds and give two to Gay Marvel. Two smashing winners last week end, My Urelin and Skip Khal are real threats. A third feature, the mile and a sixteenth Jasmine, will see Toy Fox from the Harry James-Betty Grable stable carry 121 pounds and give five to 15 to 10 rivals.

Swindle, a mud-running 3-year-old owned by C. H. Jones of Long Beach, splashed to a wire-to-wire win in Saturday's six furlong feature. Lo May was second by three lengths and Jigs Jr., was third. Swindle paid $11.20, $7.00 and $4.20. Lo May returned $3.60 and $2.60 and Jigs Jr. was worth $5.60.

So Tony Learns French

HOLLYWOOD — Tony Quinn didn't read the fine print in his contract—so now he can speak French.

He recently completed "The Hunchback of Notre Dame" in Paris opposite Gina Lollobrigida. One of the toughest scenes in the picture is when Gina first meets Quinn as the hunchback. "I dreaded it for days before we shot it, even when first reading the script. As luck would have it, it was the first scene we shot. It was tough but we got through it okay."

"I started back to my dressing room and the director yelled, 'Okay, Tony, we're ready to shoot the French version.'"

Tony stormed and then the contract was brought out. It was there okay.

Tony couldn't speak or read French. A tutor gave him a two-hour course in French phonetics on the lines and he shot the scene again in French. A friend who was on the set said the French crew cheered the performance.

All-Negro Opera Group Here Wednesday Night

High points from three American operas, including a first-class performance of the controversial "Four Saints in Three Acts," will be offered by an all-Negro company of 55 when Leonard De Paure brings his Opera Gala to Long Beach Civic Auditorium for one night only, Wednesday at 8:30 p.m.

"Four Saints" is a witty commentary on the religious life by Gertrude Stein, with music by Virgil Thomson. Opera Gala will perform a condensed version starring Inez Matthews, who sang the role in Paris and New York.

In the title role of the Bizet-Lamster opera, "Carmen," James "She" will be supported by tenor Luther Saxon, who starred in the record-making Broadway run. Opera Gala will then progress to Catfish Row, New Orleans, for highlights from the immortal Gershwin score of "Porgy and Bess."

Lawrence Winters, baritone star of New York City, Royal Stockholm, and Hamburg State Opera, will portray the crippled beggar Porgy, a role he made famous on Broadway.

Tycoons Flunk Pupils' IQ Test

LONDON (UPI)—Six top-flight industrial managers failed "abjectly" in an intelligence test for 11-year-old children. Socialist Ian Mikardo has told the House of Commons.

A teacher saved their wounded pride by saying, "Adults often can't do these tests because their worldly experience blinds them to the simple solution. Bright 11-year-olds take them in stride."

E. Berlin-Vienna Rail Link Restored

BERLIN (UPI)—Direct train connections between East Berlin and Vienna have been restored after a 12-year interruption. The old connections were broken at the end of World War II when the Russians took over the East Germany railways. This forced travelers to switch trains in Prague.

Chief Eagle Chants With Band

An American Indian whose tribal name is Chief Big Eagle will appear as guest vocalist with the Municipal Band at 3 p.m. today in Concert Hall, Municipal Auditorium.

His legal name is John B. Waterman, and he was born on the Seneca Nation's Cattaraugus Reservation in New York. For 50 years he has made an avocation of band music, performing as baritone soloist and also playing the tuba and mellophone.

He will sing popular selections here, among them the familiar "Indian Love Call." He will appear in native costume.

Preferably the South, South-west and Midwest who really know, like and appreciate "REAL" pit, hickory-smoked barbecue. No frills, no fancy decorations or high prices. We are writing about the Pit Barbecue at 2120 E. Anaheim where you can get a really good beef or pork sandwich for 45¢ or an over-the-top plate of chicken, spaghetti, beef or pork with country cole slaw and barbecue beans for $1.25.

The owner, a transplanted Texan, says he started this because he individually likes good barbecue and couldn't find it. Why don't all of you authorities on the subject go out and try it? Maybe you can prove a Texan wrong.

He has take-out service and plenty of tables inside and out. It is open from 11 a.m. to 3 a.m. every day. Closed Mondays. You might even meet a friend at the Pit Barbecue.

National Praise for Long Beach Hospital Drive

LONG BEACH came in for some public praise on a national scale this week.

Dr. Dwight H. Murray, president of the American Medical Assn., took note of the ambitious, $14,500,000 hospital expansion program this city has undertaken.

Long Beach, he observed, is one of a group of cities that are facing up to the critical shortage of hospital beds and doing something about it with their own civic resources.

CURRENTLY, the United Hospital Fund campaign seeks to raise $4,000,000 to equip the hospitals provided when the voters approved a $10,500,000 bond issue last February.

The drive for $4,000,000 in voluntary contributions "might sound overly ambitious to some skeptics," said Dr. Murray. But recognition of community responsibility can put it over.

Such recognition put across a $12,000,000 voluntary campaign in Indianapolis, Ind.

"They were able to raise the money because the people of Indianapolis were told of the dire need for new and more extensive hospital facilities. I'm sure the people of Long Beach will support the expansion there if they only understand the need."

By their approval of the $10,500,000 bond issue for construction of hospitals the people of Long Beach demonstrated that they understand the need. We believe that enlightened citizens will now complete the job.

CERTAINLY the doctors of this community have offered a splendid example by setting a goal within their own profession of $1,000,000. Thus a group which forms but a tiny fraction of our population has agreed to take on the task of raising among themselves one-fourth of the total goal.

Let the rest of us stand shoulder to shoulder with them and finish the job which has had such an encouraging beginning.

Open Letter to a Union President

GEORGE MEANY, President, AFL-CIO,
Miami Beach, Fla.

Dear Mr. Meany:

When your executive council meets on Monday morning, the agenda will be crowded with matters of vital concern, both to the AFL-CIO and the country as a whole.

The merger of two great labor organizations was bound to create a series of difficult problems, especially in the early stages of that merger. I know that you, Walter Reuther, David J. McDonald and other responsible leaders in the labor movement are striving to solve these problems.

Still, it would seem that more progress might have been made since Dec. 5, 1955, when the AFL and the CIO were first linked together.

For despite the merger, and all that it promised in the way of a unified labor movement, member unions of the AFL-CIO are still fighting fang and claw to disrupt that unity and preserve their individual prerogatives.

The result is that businessmen, manufacturers and union members themselves are being unjustly penalized by the arbitrary attitudes of unions apparently determined not to yield even a trace of their authority to the common good.

IN AKRON, OHIO, for instance, the Burt Manufacturing Co., has lost more than $1 million in business because the Sheet Metal Workers International Association, with some 50,000 members, refuses to install its products.

Burt, a relatively small company with 200 factory workers, has been organized by the giant United Steelworkers of America since 1946.

But its products are being boycotted, and the company's future endangered, by the refusal of one union to install the products made by another union.

IT WILL BE INTERESTING, too, to see what the AFL-CIO executive council does about racketeering and corruption in the labor movement.

Here again, a sharp split exists between the United Automobile Workers and the Teamsters Union, the two largest unions in the AFL-CIO.

The UAW executive board has asked your council to urge Congress "to authorize an appropriate Congressional committee to conduct a thorough and exhaustive investigation into corruption and racketeering in all phases of American life . . . to expose without fear or favor, corruption in labor, in industry, and all other phases of the problem."

This is an admirable statement. But Teamster officials have already balked at answering any questions about alleged racketeering or the alleged use of union money to pay personal expenses of union leaders.

AN EVEN GREATER PROBLEM, Mr. Meany, than that of resolving conflicts between unions, is what labor's artificial restrictions are doing to our economy.

According to Mill & Factory, there are bans against paint spray and the use of windows with panes installed at the factory site.

In Birmingham, N. Y., the drivers' union contract restricts a route man to the delivery of 250 quarts a day, or less than a half day's work.

In Los Angeles, the Safeway food stores report that Teamster locals insist that ice cream be delivered on separate trucks from frozen food items—because two Teamster locals have "product jurisdiction."

Manufacturers of women's blouses in New York were required to pay $60,000 to the Garment Workers Union because they imported Japanese goods.

We hear a great deal these days, Mr. Meany, about the plight of small business. Competition, as Sylvia Porter says, is getting fiercer in every line of industry and commerce.

Merger follows merger and the big get bigger. The little firms are being crushed by developments over which they have no control.

Three men in Detroit, your Mr. Reuther and two industrialists, set the wage pattern for the automobile industry.

Your Mr. McDonald and a representative from the steel industry can determine what all of us must pay for the hundreds of items we need.

A mere handful of men wield tremendous economic power, far more in fact than the members of Congress who pass laws governing competition and the restraint of trade.

But this power also imposes a great responsibility—the responsibility, as the President has said, "of leaders of business and labor to reach agreements on wages and other labor benefits that are consistent with productivity and the maintenance of a stable dollar."

I believe, Mr. Meany, you are entirely sincere in your expressed desire to root out labor racketeering, and resolve the inter-union conflicts which are today penalizing small companies like the Burt Manufacturing Co. of Akron.

But since the wish is not always related to the fact, your forthcoming deliberations will be judged not by what is said, but by what is done.

Respectfully,
JOHN S. KNIGHT.

Nixon Would Admit Red Army Men Who Escaped to Austria

WASHINGTON—Vice President Nixon reported at a recent cabinet meeting that over 3,000 Soviet soldiers who refused to fire on Hungarian civilians have fled to Austria. He suggested that it would be a ten-strike for the U.S.A. if they were admitted into this country. The psychological effect on the Red Army, he pointed out, would be terrific, and more desertions might take place from the Red Army and satellite armed forces.

Secretary of State Dulles, however, was skeptical. He warned that this might cause more trouble to our relations with Russia; and he also seemed worried as to what American reaction would be to opening our doors to ex-Soviet soldiers—even 3,000 of them.

American diplomats abroad generally concur with Mr. Nixon's view. They point out that if some system could be arranged whereby Soviet Army deserters could be given a small plot of land in South America with tools and seed, not only would Latin America benefit, but the Iron Curtain would become almost like a sieve. Mr. Nixon when a Senator once introduced legislation to explore this possibility.

MOST ENGAGING diplomat sent to Washington in some time is Ambassador Hollington Tong, Nationalist Chinese envoy to the U. S. A.

Educated at Park College, Mo., and the University of Missouri, Ambassador Tong knows the U. S. A. better than many Americans, has a sense of humor that can win any American, he has even written a book on Japanese humor.

"My hobbies," says the ambassador, "are collecting friends, old clippings, and jokes."

"I have so many old clippings that my wife threatens to throw them and me out of the house. My friends will never be thrown out of the house. My jokes—well, you will have to pass on them for yourself."

Japanese and Chinese humor, Ambassador Tong admits, is a little different from American. Here are a couple of stories culled from his rich collection, illustrating the humor of both Japan and China.

"A Chinese farmer borrowed the donkey of his neighbor. He borrowed it so often that the neighbor finally put the donkey in his kitchen and told the farmer that the donkey was busy working at another farm."

"As the neighbor started to leave, the donkey brayed from the kitchen, and the neighbor, hearing the bray, changed the farmer with telling him a lie. 'If you don't want to loan me your donkey,' he said, 'just tell me so.'"

"Which do you believe," replied the farmer, 'My words, or the words of my donkey?'"

Foreign Policy Doesn't Come Out of a Machine

WASHINGTON—When President Eisenhower said the other day that the Russian rulers are "unpredictable," he disappointed a lot of captious and carping critics in Congress and elsewhere who talk as if they really believe the making of foreign policy is just a mere matter of advance "planning."

A WHOLE CULT has arisen both here and abroad which takes potshots regularly at the Eisenhower administration either for doing too much or too little or for allegedly having no foreign policy at all. The favorite theme of the critics, when a climax comes in international affairs, is to say that no "planning" was done or that America failed to prevent this or that contingency from arising, though few of the partisans who usually give vent to such quibbles face up to the main point. It is that there are two parties to every controversy, and the United States hasn't any control over the enemy's operations. To the cry that America must somehow "make the Russians behave," there is always the question of whether anyone wants this country to go to war to coerce or compel the Russians to behave differently.

THE CRITICS give the impression that all the Department of State needs to do is press a button and out of some electronic device will flow different envelopes giving the prepared questions and answers in certain categories of world policy—just like the machine that pours out the answers to the $64,000 question on TV.

Mr. Eisenhower at his Wednesday press conference said: "After all, we are dealing with people who are rather unpredictable and, at times, they are just practically inexplicable, so far as we are concerned. So you go along announcing your views about peace in the world, what you are striving to do, why you are doing it, and then, for the rest of it, you meet them from time to time, or your diplomatic representatives do, in order to see whether it is possible to ameliorate the situation in which we find ourselves."

NO MORE comprehensive description of the way foreign policy has to be made in a troubled world could have been given. But the President in his brief answer took it for granted that his listeners understood what he meant when he said, "You go along announcing your views about peace in the world." For it means that, while there can be a lot of speech-making about basic principles, there is also a line beyond which the aggressor must not be permitted to go without military retaliation.

But it is not realistic or practical to spell out exactly in advance everything the United States would do in certain crises. Members of Congress keep prodding administration officials nowadays unwittingly to give the enemy a blueprint of just what America will do in certain contingencies in the Middle East. No military commander falls for that kind of disclosure, and a "cold war" is no different in this respect from a "hot war."

Sometimes the petulant partisans in Congress today, act as if it doesn't make any difference to them if they increase the dangers to their own government—just so long as they put the administration politically in a hole. But the American people who watch with dismay the tactics of the political saboteurs are inclined to trust the President's good sense, his patriotism and his caution and restraint in one of the most complex adventures of all times—a heroic attempt to prevent a world war.

Veteran Campaign Pilot Heeds Sea's Call, Quits Politics Here

A VETERAN political campaign manager is about to go back to his first love, the sea, and to the piloting of ships instead of candidacies.

Capt. Robert Rife, who has handled eight successful campaigns here including campaigns for the three men now holding this area's Legislature and Congressional offices, is howling out of local politics to join the pilot staff at the U. S. Naval Station at Pearl Harbor.

In making the jump, Rife gives up his post as field representative for Rep. Craig Hosmer, whose campaign he has managed since the primary race in 1952.

Although not much in the public eye, Rife has been a key man in the political picture here, and his reminiscences, on the eve of his leave-taking, give intimate glimpses of local politics as it has run its course in the last seven years. It's something of a local political history of the period.

Then a retired master mariner who was dabbling in real estate, Rife accepted management of the campaign of Assemblyman W. S. Grant, a Republican, took both the GOP and Democratic nominations that time, and went into office without need for a general election campaign in the fall.

CITY COUNCILMAN Herbert R. Klockstein ran that year for the first time for Assemblyman, challenging the veteran Democrat, Carl Fletcher. After the primary, Rife moved over to manage Klockstein's campaign. It was a tight contest, so tight that it took the absentee ballots to decide it.

Two years later, Rife moved into Congressional politics. He made the acquaintance of Hosmer, who had chalked up a hard race for Congress in 1950 against Rep. Clyde Doyle, losing by a narrow margin. By 1952 reapportionment had cut the 18th District down to the area which Hosmer had carried in 1950, and Doyle moved out of the district.

With Rife as his campaign manager, Hosmer entered a warm contest with Assemblyman Grant for Congressional nomination. Raymond C. Simpson was the leading Democrat in the race, with all aspirants crossfiling. In the primary the two Republicans, both strong men and well known, grabbed off the lion's share of the votes, with an odd result. Hosmer got the Republican nomination and Grant received the most votes for the Democratic nomination. Under the crossfiling law, Grant couldn't accept the latter because he hadn't won in his own party.

The Democratic central committee picked Joseph Kennick as the Democratic nominee. Hosmer, with Rife again as manager, defeated Kennick and rode into office with the first Eisenhower victory. Rife, recalling the triumph for the Republican, says he thinks Hosmer had the power to win anyhow, but the young GOP'er was greatly helped by the strong trend toward a change and the fired-up Republican drive for national power.

Rife has handled Hosmer's subsequent successful campaigns in the springs and autumns of 1954 and 1956.

IRONICALLY enough, despite this long period of successful campaigning for others, Rife made one try for office himself, with negative results. He and eight other candidates entered the municipal primary for Councilman against the veteran Lynn Parmley, since deceased, who turned back the challenges handsly.

CAPT. ROBERT RIFE
Back to Ships

"Way back in 1940, Rife considered offering himself as a possible candidate for Congress to the GOP Committee of 100, but didn't make the try. The committee picked Hosmer and launched the latter's career in which Rife has had a part. Rife served as Hosmer's field representative from the time Hosmer became a Congressman.

Rife takes credit for a successful Hosmer project early in the Congressman's first term. He convinced Hosmer that the latter, after a few months in office, should come home and make a report to the people. He hired the Poly High Auditorium for the event, knowing that it would look bad if it weren't well filled. Some good apade work was done, and despite a rainy night, a big crowd greeted Hosmer.

LOOKING back over eight campaigns, Rife says that the fundamental factor in success is a good candidate. Beyond that, there must be a strong organization, good direction, and of course a lot of intensive precinct work. A good candidate, without the latter, can lose.

What appear to be minor factors make a big difference. Rife thinks the picture a candidate uses on his advertising is highly important, particularly in this heavily populated metropolitan area where many voters never get to see a candidate in person.

Before getting into politics, Rife spent most of his life at sea, and since has kept alive his master mariner's duty. He did two tours of duty at Pearl Harbor in the war, and became acquainted with a young pilot working there. Last Christmas, he exchanged cards with the Pearl Harbor man, who mentioned, in a note on his card, that he needed a pilot. By that time, he had become chief of the Pearl pilots.

Rife got the note, got the itch to go back to sea, and asked for the job. He got it, and will leave shortly for the islands. Mrs. Rife and their son, Bobby, will follow when residence arrangements are made.

It's a two-year commitment, so the 1958 campaign here, at least, will have to get along without Bob Rife.

TOWN MEETING

Police 'Cycles Disturb Peace

TO THE EDITOR:

I am all for enforcing the anti-noise laws, as I am plagued by noisy cars. I might add that the motorcycle officers of our police department contribute their share.

I never retire until 11 p.m., and the change of shift coming out Pacific Ave. have their motors racing when they reach 15th St., and retard their sparks and backfire their motors. This is very annoying to people trying to settle down for the night, and a very poor example for law enforcement officers to set.

WHILE THEY get away with this sort of thing, I receive a citation for a noisy muffler that just went out. I had it fixed within the allotted 10-day period, it costing me $23.50. Upon presenting the slip showing I had complied within the 10-day period, I was informed that I must pay a $3 fine. This I think is very unfair, and something should be done about it.

I feel terribly irate about this matter. Since I was a law-abiding citizen and took care of the matter promptly, this fine should have been voided, as to my way of thinking.

IRONICALLY, I was fined for a muffler that just went out though I had all intentions of having it fixed. Yet, motorcycle officers make a deliberate noise, and kids with their hot rods with twin-tailed exhausts, squealing tires and noisy motors disturb sleeping babies and wake adults in the middle of the night.

YMCA Program Develops Youth

TO THE EDITOR:

Nearly every community has its YMCA building, which is as familiar a part of the landscape as the postoffice, church or school. Yet many families are unaware of the many fine benefits awaiting their youngsters at the "Y." The familiar triangle, symbolizing "mind, body and spirit," tells the story of trained attention to every phase of youthful development into fine adulthood.

When the news first hits parents that their child is in trouble, they exclaim, "We've done everything for him (or her). Where have we gone wrong?"

OFTEN, THIS "everything" has only amounted to misguided indulgence, and there has been no well-rounded program which puts some emphasis upon spiritual as well as physical and mental development. Completely lacking in spiritual training, a good-sized segment of our youth today lives in ignorance of basic truths which form God's rules of right and wrong. As a result, we see irresponsible behavior, disrespect for parents and teachers, and a cocky attitude of "I am my own God. Anything that benefits me is right."

There is a saying that as the tree is bent, so the oak shall grow. Nothing could be truer when it comes to leading a child along the right path during those important formative years.

So, if you are wondering what you can do to insure a wholesome adolescent life for your youngsters, help them get started with the kind of help that if offered at your YMCA. You'll be glad you did.

Heart Drive to Start in L.B. Friday

Annual Heart Fund campaign for the Long Beach area will get under way Friday with a kickoff luncheon in Virginia Country Club. Daniel W. Farnham, drive chairman, announced Saturday.

The campaign, which will continue through Feb. 28, seeks to raise $72,000—or $14,000 more than last year's goal. It will reach its peak Feb. 25—Heart Monday—with a door-to-door collection by volunteer workers.

Other events scheduled for the campaign include the annual tea, a luncheon and a fashion show.

"Proceeds from Heart Fund events will be used largely to support scientific research on which we are depending for answers to many unknowns about heart diseases," Farnham said. "Some of this research is being carried on in our own community."

The kickoff luncheon is open to the public at $2 a person. Tickets may be obtained from the Long Beach Heart Assn., 921 Pacific Ave.

HOW'RE WE DOING?

L.B. State to Check Students' Progress

Next June, Long Beach State College plans to get the answer to a question it's been wondering about all its life.

How does the college's four-year course stack up against undergraduate courses of other colleges?

In June, State will graduate its first full, four-year class. These will be students who were the college's original freshman class in the fall of 1953.

Of State's original freshman class of 113, only about 40 will be among the 800 graduates who will receive their degrees in June. The others have left school—some to go to other colleges, some to go into military service.

ACHIEVEMENT tests will be given the 40 to see how well they've done in their college work.

"That way, we can compare our students' grades with the national norms," explained Dr. Earl T. Zwetschke, State's test officer. "Also, we can compare them with grades of students tests are for second semester arithmetic, English, handwriting and spelling. Proficiency tests in other upper division students. They'll feature such fundamentals as same period.

BARKER BROS. BROADWAY AT LOCUST (DOWNTOWN LONG BEACH — HE 6-9251)

With MALCOLM EPLEY

LATE in the day at Santa Anita, and at other racing emporiums when they're operating, the decks are carpeted with discarded mutual tickets, tiny mementoes of bets. They represent tens of thousands of dollars.

And occasionally, if you'll take time out from your own problems to look around, you'll see people casually or surreptitiously examining tickets on the floor, apparently hoping to find a good one some careless bettor has thrown away.

It would seem like a completely hopeless quest, even though at the finish of every racing meeting the track turns over to the state thousands of dollars representing unclaimed tickets. At Del Mar, a small track, the state got $38,000 in this fashion last meeting.

Probably most of these unclaimed tickets were purchased for final races, and carried home by bettors who intended to cash them on another day. If they proved winners, thereafter forgetting to do it. Maybe once in a million ticket purchases, a ticket is accidentally thrown away. Believe it or not, it happens to be a guy who picked up such a ticket.

IT WAS in the early days at Los Alamitos, maybe five years ago, Frank Vessels had excellent tote board and PA systems out there now, but in those pioneer times the equipment could go temporarily out of kilter. At least, it did for a brief time that day, and made me some money.

I was there with another newspaper man, Harry Karns. The last race of the day was run, and one horse was clearly out front at the wire. It wasn't our horse, and neither was the second horse, so we, as did all other "losers," started for the gates and home.

We happened to be a little hungry, and stopped for hot dogs at a stand back of the grandstand. Munching our dogs, we were strolling toward the gates when the PA system came on with an announcement. It told us that there was an inquiry on the last race. Some failure in equipment had prevented an earlier inquiry notice.

A FELLOW in front of us immediately began picking up tote tickets and examining them.

We quickly got the idea. I saw a ticket, face down, lying at my feet. Turning it over, I found it was a $5 ticket on the horse that had come out second in the race.

Karns and I took our prize and hiked back to the front of the stand where we could see the tote board, then operating o.k. And sure enough, in about five minutes, there was an announcement that the stewards had disqualified the first horse and that No. 2 had been promoted to the win spot.

The board flashed $11.40, the win pay on $2 tickets. We walked over to cashier's window, presented our find, and collected $28.50 for the $5 ticket we had picked up off the ground. It was a good day for us at the races.

I'VE OFTEN wondered who it was who bolted quickly for home that day after his horse came in second, tossing away $28.50 on the way out. He must have invited his wife to kick him where it hurts when he read the race results in the papers the next day.

I submit the story for what it is worth as a true incident, but not as a suggestion that anyone waste much time picking up discarded tote tickets. Some very unusual circumstances prevailed that day.

THERE'S a lot of fascinating human interest to observe in a race track crowd.

There are, for example, the people who go into a sort of trance, apparently summoning a hunch before buying a ticket. Others study racing forms like mad. Some people stay in the lounges or mutual rooms during races.

For the Santa Anita crowd, there's a dark skinned gentleman who wears a colorful robe and a crown of ostrich plumes, naturally attracting a lot of interest. If I go over there again, I'm going to try to rub up against him.

After a race, I saw him at the $50 win cashier's window.

City College Spring Term Roll to Open

Spring semester registration in City College Liberal Arts, Business and Technology and General Adult Divisions begins Monday for both day and evening classes. College officials expect a total of more than 18,000 students by the end of the week.

Enrollment for Liberal Arts Division day classes will be held in the Lakewood campus women's gymnasium, 4901 E. Carson St., from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. Liberal arts evening students will enroll from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. at both the Lakewood campus and Poly High School. Regular classes begin Tuesday.

Instruction will begin Monday in both Business and Technology and General Adult Division classes. BTD day students will enroll at the Student Personnel Office, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy., starting at 8 a.m. Evening students report directly to classrooms to enroll.

REGISTRATION for General Adult Division day and evening classes will be taken at the first scheduled class meeting of the week. Adult classes are offered at 37 locations throughout the school district, with major offerings at the Poly, Jordan, Wilson, Milikan, Lakewood and West Adult centers.

Combined City College spring term schedules are now available at schools and public libraries. Additional information may be obtained by telephoning HIE 7-6381 (Business and Technology) or GA 5-1221 (Liberal Arts and General Adult divisions).

ADULTS INTERESTED in working toward high school diplomas may make counseling appointments by telephoning the Evening High School office, HIE 6-9581, after 1 p.m. Monday through Thursday.

Starting date for the spring semester in public elementary, junior high and high schools will be Monday, Feb. 4.

W.F. Prisk Chairmans Fund Drive

William F. Prisk, former publisher of The Press-Telegram, Saturday was named honorary general chairman of the $4,000,000 United Hospital Fund campaign.

In announcing the appointment, campaign chairman H. E. (Bud) Hiddings Jr. hailed Prisk's half-century of community service to Long Beach.

Among his activities, Prisk is a member of the Sesside Memorial Hospital board of trustees.

"TODAY'S CRISIS in our Long Beach hospital facilities means that the program we are launching has been dictated by need," he said.

"We actually are facing an emergency situation which calls for immediate action. This action can spring only from a positive plan to expand and modernize our hospitals."

"The United Hospital Fund campaign is a positive plan and we dare not postpone action."

Money raised in the campaign will augment funds from a $10,000,000 bond issue approved by city voters a year ago.

THE CAMPAIGN began last Monday, with solicitation of doctors of medicine in the Long Beach area. The MDA have set a group goal of $1,000,000—one-fourth of the over-all goal.

Meanwhile, plans were shaping up for a drive by the fund's memorial gifts division, headed by J. Donald Locke. This phase of the campaign will begin after the doctors' drive is over.

Locke said he plans to meet with fund officials this week to complete selection of his campaign "sales force."

Leaders of the hospital employees' division also have scheduled a meeting Tuesday at Community Hospital to discuss plans. This division is headed by Don Gilliam and Betty Greer of Sesside Memorial Hospital, Don Fletcher of Osteopathic Hospital and Richard F. Roth of Community Hospital.

A second program report meeting will be held Friday by the medical division, headed by Dr. H. Milton Van Dyke.

City College Offers 12,000 Free Anti-Polio Vaccine

Free Salk vaccine anti-polio shots for 12,000 students at City College's two campuses will be available next month, Dr. George E. Dotson, assistant superintendent of City College announced Saturday.

The program, designed to give protection to persons 18 to 40 years of age, begins Feb. 6 and 7 at the Business and Technology Division, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy. The immunization program for students, instructors and personnel at the Lakewood Campus will begin Feb. 13 and 14.

Ceremonies for Lakewood Hospital Set

Ground breaking ceremonies for Lakewood's long-awaited hospital will be held Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. at the site, Clark Ave. and Candlewood St.

Turning the first shovel of earth will be Dr. Rustan H. Hicks, chief of staff for the new hospital, and Lakewood Mayor Angelo M. Jacoboni.

Construction of the 70-bed Lakewood General Hospital will start within two weeks, with the facility to be completed and in operation within eight months, said Eugene DeKoven, hospital administrator. DeKoven is also administrator of the Bellflower Hospital at 10250 Artesia Ave. in Bellflower.

THE BUILDING, 28,000 square feet, will include two surgical units, clinical and pathological laboratories, radiology department and a delivery room. The builder is King Construction Co.

Erection of the new hospital—first in the City of Lakewood—culminates a six-year effort to establish hospital facilities at the Clark-Candlewood site.

Douglas Officer Named by Chest

George E. Himmelbauer, employment manager at Douglas Aircraft Co.'s Long Beach plant, Saturday was named president of the United Neighbors Community Chest board of directors.

Himmelbauer was second vice president of the board last year, and served as budget committee chairman in 1955. He is a former member of the board of Family Service and currently is a member of the advisory board of the three Long Beach Day Nurseries.

OTHER NEW Chest officers named Saturday were:

James G. Craig Jr., first vice president; Vernon M. Fay, second vice president; Lyle Huggins, treasurer, and Henry H. Clock, Fredrick W. Combs, Mrs. Charles F. Duggan, David Feuer, Richard S. Hartwell, R. L. McLaughlin and John R. Mansell, directors.

Craig, vice president of the M. S. Walker Co., was vice chairman of the chest's fall campaign. Fay, manager of the downtown J. C. Penney Co. store, now is serving his third term on the Chest board.

The new treasurer is the owner of the Lyle Huggins Insurance Agency. He is a former president of Travelers Aid, and has served on the boards of the Armed Services YMCA and the Community Volunteer Office.

MEANWHILE, budget chairman Glenn K. Buss announced his 22-member volunteer committee had completed meeting with agency representatives to review proposed expenditures.

These 31 agencies, he said, will receive 88.5 per cent of all money collected in the campaign. Deducted from the total collections were 6.7 per cent for campaign expenses, 3.6 per cent for administration and 1.2 per cent for public relations.

Dinner Club Slates Talk on Espionage

Kurt Slinger, billed as an expert on espionage, will address the Long Beach Dinner Club Wednesday night in the Lafayette Hotel.

His topic will be: "Traitors and Spies."

Born in Vienna, Slinger said he operated an underground newspaper in Germany during World War II. He is the author of several books on the cloak-and-dagger business.

One of them was a biography of Hermann Goering — a book which caused considerable consternation among the German high command.

Everett Houser, Dinner Club president, will be in charge of the meeting.

State's Coach Talks to Masons

Mike DeLotto, head football coach at Long Beach State College, will speak on "What's Wrong With Football" at a meeting of Long Beach Masonic Club Thursday noon in the Wilton Hotel. Ken Hemphill will be chairman of the day and Lyle Huggins, president, will preside.

Some Elders Granted Tax Relief in New Federal Income Returns

The only significant change in federal income tax provisions this year is a retirement income credit which works to the advantage of certain taxpayers over the age of 65, according to Thomas H. Bradley, superintendent of the Long Beach office of the Internal Revenue Service.

The credit is fully explained in the instructions accompanying the 1956 filing forms which have been mailed to all persons who filed the previous year.

Those who have not received their forms as yet should phone the local office, HIE 7-7481 for a special mailing.

STATE INCOME tax forms also are in the mails, Long Beach branch manager Paul J. Erskine said. Taxpayers who have not received theirs by the end of the month may call HIE 6-4710 or pick them up at Room 308, Heartwell Bldg., 19 Pine Ave.

Boy Scout Parents Organized

A campaign to enlist 2200 parents of Long Beach area Boy Scouts as sustaining members of the Scouting organization will be conducted Feb. 5 to 12.

Using a western theme, the six districts of the Long Beach Council area have been set up as "ranches" with ranchers, sheriffs, trail bosses and wranglers handling campaign assignments.

Malcolm Epley is general chairman of the campaign as representative of the area council. District ranchers are Dr. Sam Woolington, Alamitos; Bill Underwood, Appaling; Ray Billee, Dan Beard; Wally Gerhart, Donner; Roy Nixon, Lakewood, and Walter Plante, Somerset.

Epley explained that the sustaining memberships will supplement Scout finances so that a full program can be carried on for the benefit of 12,000 Scouts in the area, which includes Long Beach, Signal Hill, Lakewood, Dominguez and Bellflower.

District kick-off meetings will be held simultaneously on Feb. 5, and the "rangers" will be canvassed by Feb. 12.

Boats Warned Away From Island Range

Fishermen and yachtsmen have been warned by the 11th Naval District Headquarters to avoid the area around San Clemente Island from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. Friday when the Navy will conduct shore bombardment exercises.

Join Adex and See World (Within Driving Range)

With a penchant for going places and doing things, members of Adex, a new club for single adults over 21 years of age, are looking forward to their scheduled visit to the Padua Hills Theater next Saturday.

Adex is sponsored by the Recreation Department, with Jack Minar, special events director for the city agency, co-ordinator of club activities.

"New members are welcome to join Adex," Minar said. "All information may be obtained by calling the Recreation Department offices in the Municipal Auditorium."

Expenses for Adex trips are prorated among the participants. Minar explained. First excursion by Adex members was via bus to Corriganville, western movie ranch near Chatsworth.

Group decisions will be made in completing the schedule of tours and visits for the ensuing months, according to Minar.

MONDAYS HAVE BEEN designated as "Tax Information Days" at the federal Internal Revenue Service office, 342 American Ave. More agents will be free on those days to help the public with tax problems, Bradley said.

Single persons with income of $2,000 or more and couples with combined income of $3,500 should file the state return, Erskine said. Deadline is April 15, the same as for the federal return.

New residents or others who are in doubt as to their state income tax status are welcome to call at the local office any week day from 8:15 to 5 p. m., the branch manager added.

Linn, Tucker Booked in Red Cross Benefit

ROBERTA LINN Sands ... Mocambo ...

ORRIN TUCKER Remember Bonnie?

Bandman Orrin Tucker and singer Roberta Linn will headline the 1957 Red Cross Festival of Fun and Fashion. Scheduled for March 7 at the Auditorium, this annual Red Cross benefit will center around a flower garden theme, according to the Long Beach Retailers' Assn.

Orchestra leader Tucker is perhaps best known for his work with Wee Bonnie Baker on the best selling record "Oh Johnny." Recently, he has had his own television show in Los Angeles.

HIS CO-STAR for the benefit has been in show business since childhood. Miss Linn's most recent work has been at the Copacabana in New York, the Sands and New Frontier in Las Vegas and the Mocambo in Hollywood.

Ticket information for the benefit, scheduled to start at 8 p. m., can be obtained by calling the Long Beach Red Cross or Retailers' Assn.

Boat Show Scheduled for Lakewood Center

A million dollars' worth of boats, motors and marine accessories will be displayed at a three-acre show grounds at Lakewood Center Feb. 7-11.

A flotilla of 300 boats will be anchored "dockside" along an expansive area paralleling the malls in the Center.

Boat builders from the entire West will be represented in the display, which will include pleasure boats, sail boats, cabin cruisers, power boats and a new fiberglass boat.

Motors—from tiny outboard jobs to the huge engines that drive yachts and larger ships—will be displayed.

IN ADDITION there will be many types and styles of marine accessories to make the display the largest outdoor boat show ever staged in this area.

Plans for the five-day event were announced Saturday by George Loeb, vice president of the Lakewood Center Businessmen's Assn. The businessmen's group is cooperating with the Southern California Marine Assn. in staging the boat show.

Loeb said his group expects between 100,000 and 200,000 people to view the spectacle.

CONGRESSMAN HOSMER SENDS GAVEL

Dupuy Tells Plans to Help Home Sales

Several major legislative objectives of particular interest to Realtors and property owners are on the agenda for action by the National Association of Real Estate Boards, said Reg. F. Dupuy, director, just returned from the NAREB's director's meeting in Washington.

Tight mortgage money was one of the major topics of discussion, Dupuy said. "FHA loans have not been particularly available due to the low interest rate in comparison with rates charged on conventional loans. The National Association is proposing that a flexible formula be adopted so that both FHA as well as VA interest rates may rise or fall in accordance with parallel trends in the money market.

"A proposal was approved for a five-man board to study the yield on government bonds of 15 years or longer in duration. The board would determine every six months what the yield would be and the interest rate would be at 2 1/2 per cent above such a yield. At present the yield is between 3 and 3 1/2 per cent. If this provision is adopted, FHA rates and VA rates would be 5 1/2 per cent with 1/2 per cent mortgage insurance premium added to the FHA rate.

"IN ADDITION," Dupuy said, "the National Association would endeavor to make certain, should the flexible formula on interest rates not be adopted, that the VA interest rate be raised at least to 5 per cent to restore its competitive position with the FHA rates, permitting continued functioning of the veteran's program.

"It appears that the House Bank and Currency Committee is in favor of a liberalization of the FHA program. The purpose would be to decrease the down payment requirements in levels that might be comparable to the VA home loan program. As

Realty Firm Acquired by R. D. Whaley

Announcement that ownership of Los Altos Realty, Inc. has been acquired by R. D. Whaley, executive vice president of the realty firm, was made Saturday.

The business transaction was completed through the acquisition by Whaley of the majority of outstanding shares of stock in the real estate concern. Terms of the transaction were not disclosed.

Established originally as the sales agents for the new home developments of L. S. Whaley, pioneer builder and developer of the award winning community of Los Altos, Los Altos Realty during the past few years has expanded and diversified its operation until it now handles all forms of real estate matters. Included in its services are coman example, an FHA appraisal of $10,000 at present permits a loan of $9,100 and under the new proposed change a loan could be secured for $9,700. A $15,000 appraisal at present permits a loan of $12,700 and the proposed change would permit a loan of $13,950.

"The Federal National Mortgage Association will be out of funds in about March. Therefore the Association is recommending that the law be amended authorizing the increase of $100 million in additional pre-ferred stock to be held by the Treasury. This would permit this mortgage discount bank to increase its borrowing an additional $1 billion to provide additional funds in the mortgage money market."

Prudential Loans in Area Gain

Real estate loans totaling $736,149 were disbursed in Long Beach by the Prudential Insurance Co. of America to finance residential, commercial and industrial, and farm projects during the year 1956, it was announced Saturday by Ed Day, vice president in charge of western operations.

This compares with a total of $296,303 loaned during the previous year, indicating an increase of 152 per cent during the 12-month period.

To Conference

Walter J. Hawkins, Long Beach general agent of Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Co., will attend a field management conference opening Monday, at the Arizona Biltmore in Phoenix. With top executives of Pacific Mutual's home office and leading field executives from all sections of the country.

REALTY OFFICE OF WEEK

J. L. Bentley's "Wheel Realty Co." was selected by the Long Beach Board of Realtors as the "Realty Office of the Week." Bentley came here in 1923 from Canada and has been engaged in realty since.

J. L. Bentley Came Here to Escape Canada's Cold

After herding model T cars over unpaved roads and fighting bitter cold and snow in Alberta, Canada, for several years, J. L. Bentley decided there should be some place in the world where he could sell real estate and yet enjoy better living. That was why he came to Long Beach July 19, 1923.

With the father and two other partners he formed the Wheel Realty Co., in "Virginia City" which later annexed to Long Beach and Bentley has been a successful real estate broker in North Long Beach since 1923. Since the death of his father and withdrawal of the other two partners, Bentley has continued to use the name of Wheel Realty Co. His office is located at 5151 Long Beach Blvd.

"FROM THE VERY first I found that Long Beach real estate was one of the best investments in the world," says Bentley. "And the only change since has been to prove the investment grows better each year."

For the past 6 years Bentley's hobby has been to develop the Skyland Ranch, Girl Scout mountain camp. He is a charter member of the Uptown Kiwanis Club and the club secretary. He also is secretary of the North Long Beach Improvement Assn. Bentley has been a member of

General Telephone Expansions Will Cost $ Half Million Daily

General Telephone Co. of California will spend a half million dollars per working day this year to improve service and bring 114,000 new telephones into its Southern California system.

C. E. Scott, General's Southern Division manager, explained details of a record-breaking construction program for the company's Long Beach exchange, at a press luncheon for community leaders in Brower's Restaurant.

THE COMPANY will invest over $1,550,000 for 1957 to expand and improve telephone service in the Garfield and Hemlock number areas, and $6,570,000 in 1958. The Long Beach exchange is comprised of six central offices — Alamos, Lakewood, Long Beach, Market, North Long Beach and Termino.

Largest single item in the budget is more than $2 million for dial and other equipment in the six central offices. Other major expenditures include $895,000 for telephone instruments, wiring and other equipment on customers' premises; $1,324,000 for outside telephone construction; $136,000 for land acquisition and tools.

About 10,000 customers can be served after a total $1,211,000 outlay for a new one-story Alamos central office, under construction on Garden Grove Blvd., west of Los Alamos Blvd.

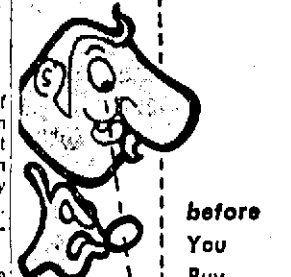

A SECOND-FLOOR addition to the Market St. office, which handles service to the northern portion of the Long Beach exchange, will cost $85,000. Other estimated expenditures include $200,000 for automatic switching equipment and $11,000 for outside plant work.

The North Long Beach office, which more than doubled its size between 1947 and 1955 to be able to now serve 17,640 primary telephone stations, will get a second-floor addition at $200,000 and $40,000 for automatic switching equipment.

Another second-floor addition, to cost $180,000, is scheduled for Termino, largest central office in the Long Beach exchange.

Equipment for Orange County extended service and the tie-in to the new Alamos office will cost $62,000. About $850,000 is budgeted for outside plant work in this area this year.

Big Medical Center Soon for Los Altos

PLANNED FOR LOS ALTOS

This is an architect's rendering of the big medical center which will be erected at the southwest corner of Bellflower Blvd. and Atherton St. in Los Altos. It will cost a half million dollars and will have 24 medical suites, pharmacy and coffee shop.

Termed the largest medical center of its kind in the area, a two-story modernistic half-million-dollar structure soon will arise on the southwest corner of Bellflower Blvd. and Atherton St. It will be known as Medical Center, Los Altos.

Already 80 per cent of the space has been leased and with all plans approved and working drawings ready, construction will start within 10 days, the architectural firm of Powers, Daly and De Rosa announced.

Urges Ease in Money on Construction

Containing 30,000 square feet, the structure will have 24 suites for dental and medical specialists. There also will be an emergency receiving room, an X-ray laboratory, a pharmacy and a large coffee shop.

Dr. J. Fagin heads the group erecting the structure. Charley Curtis will be structural engineer. J. C. Hayes is leasing agent.

WITH WIDE expanses of glass used in the construction, plus steel, native Palos Verdes stone and some imported Italian stone, the two-story structure will have an all-glass enclosed elevator to serve the second floor.

Two large wings will extend from the front section and will be separated by a patio effect with suspended walkways leading to the various suites.

The large coffee shop will be of novel design with a parabolic roof.

The firm of Powers, Daly and De Rosa has designed many outstanding structures throughout the Southland. They also are the architects for the Whaley Park clubhouse and the large Los Altos Brethren Church now being built near the medical center.

THE FIRM ALSO is widely known for designing bowling alleys and their work includes Lakewood Bowl, Imperial Bowl, Covina Bowl and Whittier Recreation Center. They also are architects for the big addition to the Wilbur Clark's Desert Inn Country Club.

The new medical center will have 270-foot frontage with ample parking in both the front and rear. Each office will be soundproofed and air conditioned.

A heating and air-conditioning executive urges home owners and all elements of the home building industry to write their congressmen and urge support in a "mail lobby" for easing of federal tight-money policies in home construction.

"Congress has given FHA the power over home-building credit regulations and members of Congress have the responsibility to see that this power is exercised for the common good," said Robert N. Hall, vice president of Southland Heating & Air Conditioning, Inc., Long Beach, and president of the Institute of Heating and Air Conditioning. The Institute represents manufacturers, utilities, suppliers and contractors of Southern California.

"Congress could also help," Hall said, "by giving the home industry the same rapid tax-right-off advantages now enjoyed by the manufacturing industry. We need healthy home industry payrolls for a healthy mass economy purchasing power."

A HOME OF CHARM

Here is one model of the Skylark Terrace Homes which offer 1,500 feet of living area and are loaded with luxuries. Priced from $18,000, they are available under FHA or VA financing.

Show Electronic Cooking at Skylark Terrace Units

Electronic oven demonstrations will again be made today in the Skylark Terrace developments in Garden Grove and Lancaster. It was revealed by Bill Tietz, president of Tietz Construction Co., builders and developers of the 3 and 4-bedroom, family room and 2 and 3-bath homes.

The demonstrations, being conducted by Edison Co. home economists, will show muffins being baked in 1 1/2 minutes and potatoes in 3 minutes.

On large lots, with frontages of up to 85 feet, the homes in Garden Grove, Lancaster and Riverside offer more than 1,500 square feet of living area. Kitchens are equipped with all-electric built-in appliances including range and wall oven, automatic dishwashers, disposal and ventilating fans. Family-size breakfast bars are also built-in with genuine formica work surfaces and natural birch cabinetry adding to the beauty and efficiency of the rooms.

SWIMMING POOLS may be contracted for as optional equipment installed during construction of the new homes, Tietz said. Living rooms with sliding walls of glass are accented by massive fireplaces of sandstone or used brick. Baths, equipped with Pullman lavatories, electric heaters, etched glass stall shower doors are surfaced with tile and formica.

Brick trim exteriors with both Provincial and Contemporary architectural stylings and heavy shake or crushed rock roofs are more features of the homes, constructed of genuine lath and plaster.

Priced from $18,000, Skylark Terrace homes are available on both FHA and VA financing. From Long Beach, visitors drive out 7th St. to Brookhurst and continue to the models north of Chapman Ave. From Los Angeles, drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Brookhurst (La Palma) and continue south to the homes.

Sunny Hills Signature Estates Have Many Attractive Features

Features of convenience, as well as beauty—ranging from all-electric kitchens to entries and porches with flagstone floors—have helped to push sales to high levels at Signature Estates in the Sunny Hills area of Fullerton, it is reported by James H. Waters, sales manager.

Rising in one of the last remaining estate-class sites of the fashionable Sunny Hills district, the new homes are on display daily on Highland Ave., just east of Richman Ave., off the Santa Ana Freeway.

The all-equipped General Electric Kitchen, Waters said, has proved one of the key sales factors in the new developments.

THE MODEL HOMES, furnished by Lloyd's of Long Beach, display the kitchen appliances in a variety of attractive colors, such as turquoise green, wood-tone brown, petal pink and canary yellow, matching various decors.

Sales manager James H. Waters reported consistently high sales in the new community, and credited popularity of many features, including select hardwood floors, sliding aluminum windows, walls of glass, beautiful paved patios and wood-burning fireplaces of flagstone.

FIRST EDITION

Typified are the "First Edition" series at Signature Homes' twin communities in Garden Grove. Offering four bedrooms and two baths, the homes are displayed at Magnolia and Cerritos Aves.

Big Signature Home Priced From $11,700

Attracting large crowds to the Garden Grove area, it was reported yesterday, is the presentation of Signature Homes' new "First Edition" series of conventionally constructed 3-bedroom, 2-bath homes with raised foundations, hardwood floors and cedar shingle roofs, priced from $11,700.

Jerry Snyder and Max Levine, who head the firm, also reported heavy sales in the larger "First Edition" series of 4-bedroom, 2-bath residences. The two series make up Signature Homes' twin communities.

The "Special Edition" homes are exemplified by a display of furnished models on Dale St., between Ball Rd. and Cerritos Ave. The larger homes are represented by furnished model residences located at Magnolia and Cerritos Aves. They are priced from $15,800.

"LARGEST AND MOST important factor in the rising sales of the smaller homes is the opportunity they present to buyers to own a genuine Signature Home at a low price, thus enjoying traditional styling and the same construction features as in the larger homes," it was stated by James H. Waters.

VA and FHA terms are available on both series in the twin communities, he noted. The larger "First Edition" homes have monthly payments from $68.42 principal and interest, while the three-bedroom, two-bath "Special

Sun Gold Sales Are Climbing

Rapid development of the Whittier Center on Whittier Blvd. and Santa Gertrudes Ave. is stimulating buying of both homes and homesites at Sun Gold Hills. It was reported by Robert H. Walter, president, Sun Gold, Inc.

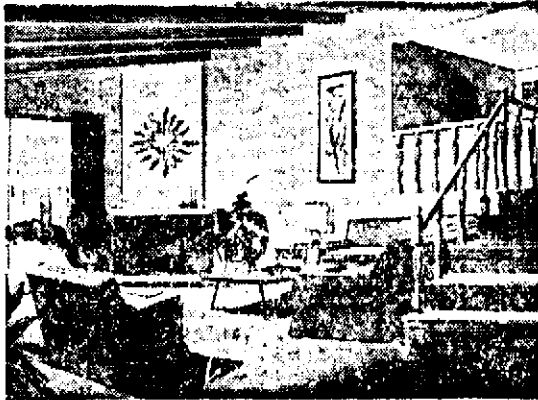

In operation at the center are a bank, two markets, a chain drug store, restaurant and bowling center, he noted, with other stores now rising.

The Sun Gold Hills residences are exemplified by a display of model homes near Santa Gertrudes and Janine Aves., north of Whittier Blvd. Selling price of the new homes is in the $19,500 to $25,000 range with buyers able to choose from 56 different architectural stylings.

TERMS FOR BUYERS are approximately 25 per cent down, FHA financing is offered and monthly payments from $110, including all costs, are being arranged.

According to Robert H. Smith, sales manager, a strong demand is being manifested in a limited number of homesites which are priced from $7,500 to $10,000. The lots range in size from 30 feet by 120 feet to full acres. The full acre sites are priced from $8,900, and may be purchased for 25 per cent down.

SMITH SAID that both the new homes and homesites are selling rapidly because the public knows that such property in the foothill area of the East

NOW ON DISPLAY

1957 Prudential Models Now Opened for Viewing

Seven different 1957 Prudential models are on display featuring such innovations as split-level design and a new Care-Free Kitchen, according to M. D. Mitchell, general manager of the builder-developer.

Among the 7 model homes is the "Tiara," a 3-bedroom, 2½-bath dwelling that presents a fresh concept of split-level design. It offers a large master bedroom complete with adjoining bath and dressing alcove having a lighted built-in vanity plus two additional bedrooms and an all-purpose room located on the second level.

Whittier region is no longer easy to obtain and is fast disappearing from the market.

Included in the new Sun Gold Hills residences are such features as large floor-to-ceiling windows, huge fireplaces, built-in barbecues, mirror walls in some baths, 75,000 to 100,000 BTU forced air heating, New Freedom gas kitchens with automatic appliances, two room-size baths, built-in snack bars, maple hardwood chopping blocks through Lincoln and Anaheim in kitchens, natural birch cabinets, cedar shingle roofs and rockwool insulation.

Prospective homeowners here gas range and oven with separate laundry rooms provided with gas connection for automatic clothes drying are kitchen facilities. Garbage disposals, diamond-hinged window panes, large walk-in closets, "Glide All" clothes hangers, interior slab mahogany doors, sliding patio doors, rock wood ceiling insulation, weatherstripped doors and windows and extensive use of exterior brick planters are more features.

will your dream house have a "skeleton in the closet"?

A cheap, cost-cutting heating system saves you about the price of a portable 14" T.V. set—Such a job usually costs about the same as half a kitchen range, or half a refrigerator.

Shocked? Don't be. Most so-called "forced-air heating" systems in houses costing up to $20,000 (furnace, installation, ducts, thermostat, etc.) cost less than $250 to the builder.

Give yourself a break—Less than 3¢ more a day would let the builder give you and your family a healthful, comfortable heating system. Tell your real estate agent, architect or contractor it's worth 3¢ more a day for adequate heating. Tell them you want no skeletons in your closet—you want good heating.

JAMES NAME BACK

"Good luck, son." With these simple words, Ed James, center, well known former auto dealer of Long Beach, congratulates his son, Bob, right, as the latter officially launches his own agency here under the name of James Motor Center. To be located at the former Ed James' site at 1350 American Ave., the Bob James' enterprise consists of sales and service for Studebaker, Packard, Jaguar and Volvo cars. Clare Chapman, former associate of Ed James in the old dealership here, watches approvingly as dad launches son on his dealership career. Chapman will be president and general manager of James Motor Center.

WORLD OF WHEELS

Ed James Son Opens in Dad's Old Stand

By ART STEPHAN
Independent Press-Telegram Auto Editor

After an absence of five years, doctored in all phases of the famous James' shingle again chandising automobiles to the blaze in neon on Long Beach. As one of the nation's leading Buick dealers, James

In the same location as the famous "Jamestown" and featuring the same famous Studebaker nameplate, Bob James, son of Los Angeles Buick dealer Ed James, has formally opened the James Motor Center. As he put it, "We have four good automobiles on hand to bid son Bob a hearty 'bon voyage' on his ambitious venture, will continue to operate his Los Angeles property.

In addition to Studebaker, James Motor Center will be the factory authorized outlet for the affiliate-Packard. The "Center" also will handle the Swedish Volvo car and become the exclusive Jaguar agency in Long Beach.

YOUNG JAMES is a native of South Dakota and a graduate of Long Beach Poly H school from where he went to Stanford. After graduation there, Bob served a stint in the Navy in the Reserve Officers Corp.

Under the experienced eye of his dad, Bob James has been in-

Bob, himself, seems quite confident of the future of James Motor Center. As he put it, "We have four good automobiles to sell and service and although I know competition is rough on Auto Row here, we'll get our share of auto sales in Long Beach."

JAMES WAS particularly enthusiastic about Studebaker's future, remarking, "I have just had word from the Studebaker factory that dealer sales in December were up 10 per cent over November, just double the increase for the auto industry."

The new dealer disclosed that Studebaker sales the last 10 days of December were the best period of retail movement of Studebakers since their introduction in early November. "And this was in the face of a general falling off in dealer sales in the industry during this period," James enthused.

"With this public acceptance of the 1957 Studebakers, with a sharp new Packard to go on display next week, and an exclusive in this market with the world-famed Jaguar, I feel we can make the grade."

Motor Tips

Failure to have the air cleaner serviced regularly will result in slow starting and poor gas mileage. The air cleaner's job is to prevent dust and other abrasive material from being drawn into the engine.

When a motorist finds that his car is losing its handling ease and does not seem to benefit from being lubricated, it's time for a wheel alignment check. Uneven tire wear is another indication of faulty wheel alignment.

In 1925 the average age of cars that were scrapped was six and one-half years. Today's cars last twice as long, the average car now scrapped being 13 years old.

Engineers Seeking Several Changes

By DAVID J. WILKIE

DETROIT (AP)—Still higher engine compression ratios, better engine cooling and oil filtering and a sharp reduction in fuel waste are among current major objectives of the auto industry's engineers.

Present compression ratios run as high as 10 to 1. There is a good chance they will hit 11 to 1 in one or two 1958 model years. Eventually they may reach 13 to 1.

A petroleum industry engineer told the Society of Automotive Engineers recently that beyond 13 to 1 the gains in efficiency are hardly worth what they cost in higher quality fuel requirements. He emphasized, however, his belief engine efficiency could be advanced by modifications other than increased compression ratios.

THE CAR engineers agree they have not exhausted all possibilities for bettering the present so-called Otto-type power plant. They are continuing experiments with stroke-and-bore ratio, the placement of valves air pollution, and the shape of combustion chambers.

(Compression ratio, roughly, is the space in which the engine piston travels in relation to the space in which fuel is compressed at the instant of combustion.)

Engine cooling and oil filtering are things that almost constantly occupy engineering thought. One engineering authority complained recently that considerable car engine efficiency was lost because cylinder walls were not kept hot. He said also that oil filtering was far from adequate.

ENGINES WEAR OUT, he said, because abrasive particles get through the filtering units and damage moving parts of the power plant.

Engine designers have been trying for years to reduce the amount of fuel wasted in the normal automobile. Many of them have agreed that too much unburned fuel gets through the exhaust system. Aside from he-

Fuel injection systems apparently offer the most promising prospect of a solution to this problem. It is becoming increasingly apparent, however, that these fuel systems are not going to be quite the sensation this year that had been predicted for them.

Block Wheels in Mountain Cold

When parking outdoors in a mountain area during the winter, it's advisable to block the wheels and leave the car in gear or "park" position instead of using the hand brake, the Automobile Club of Southern California recommends. On most cars, moisture on the brake drums may cause the wheels to freeze solid to the drums if the hand brake is used, the club reports.

To avoid having windshields covered with ice in freezing weather, when the car is parked outdoors at night, the club advises placing large flexible cards under the windshield wipers.

Tourists Can Get Needed Gas

American tourists in Europe will be able to get as much gas as they need for their own or rented car, the Automobile Club of Southern California reports.

Results of a recent survey of European countries show that even where shortages do exist, special provisions have been made to supply gasoline to visitors, said Don S. Daig, the club's director of travel services.

Daig reported that there is no rationing at all for tourists in Austria, Belgium, Finland, Germany, Greece, The Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, Yugoslavia and Italy.

Countries where there is rationing, but where special provisions are made for tourists, are Ireland, Israel and Turkey.

Let's see the decisive factors in the '57 Inner Ford

They show you why the new kind of Ford is worth more when you buy it, worth more when you sell it!

The secret of Ford's nationwide success is this: it's a new kind of Ford... new from the wheels up... more than a last year's model with a few "face lift" changes. In a '57 Ford the chassis, engine and body are individually engineered into one beautiful, spacious rock-solid unit. That's why, when you examine the new Inner Ford, you find a car that's new... clear through!

If you're a careful car-buyer with whom features count, count the new features of the '57 Ford. Then drive it! There's only one conclusion: the loveliest, liveliest car in the low-price field is the completely new Ford. For the decisive facts, see your Ford Dealer.

To Install Special Time Traps on Lions Associated Drag Strip

By PAUL WALLACE

A unique multiple-trap acceleration timing installation will be set up on the Lions Associated Drag Strip here Feb. 26 and 27.

Fourteen adjacent timing traps will stretch the length of the quarter-mile track. They will record acceleration by stages over the run.

Cards listing the cars' elapsed time through each trap will be given drivers at the end of each run. A master conversion chart of translating average speeds will be available along with graph paper for plotting a very accurate acceleration curve.

The graphs should be invaluable to the tuning experts trying to get the most out of their machines.

THE NUMBER of cars will be limited. Mail entries to: Acceleration Test, 508 Winston Dr., El Monte, Calif.

The Chrondek Corp., maker of electronic timing devices, will install the complex equipment for the tests at the strip at 223rd and Alameda Sts.

Among other data which may come from the tests, Editor E. D. Brown of Drag News (published in Long Beach) hopes to come up with a figure on the theoretical limit a land-borne machine can accelerate to in a quarter mile.

The local drag strip, by the way, is open regularly each weekend with non-class racing for street machines only on Saturdays and competitive racing for trophies Sundays.

THE AMERICAN Motorcycle Assn. authorized National Championship scrambles will be held by the sponsoring Long Beach Hilltoppers Motorcycle Club at the Crater Bowl area Feb. 10.

This big event should attract top experts from over the west as well as the Southern California hot-dogs.

This Sunday, another scramble is slated for the Nali Plate area of San Pedro (just west of the San Pedro Drive-in Theater off N. Gaffey St.).

The Torrance Prospectors are running the show with racing to run most of the day starting at 9 a.m.

Also Sunday, the Moose Memorial hare-and-hound race is scheduled by the Four Aces Motorcycle Club. Route to the start will be lined from Adelanto on Hwy. 395 just west of Victorville.

RAINED OUT originally, the professional Class A flat tracking motorcycle races at the new Agoura plant are set again for Sunday afternoon starting at 1 p.m. All proceeds will go to the March of Dimes.

Numerous spectators and 162 entrants ignored last Sunday's downpour to run in the Bellflower Jackrabbits' scrambles in San Pedro.

Soaked and muddy, the riders nonetheless had a ball slithering around on the grease-slick adobe course.

According to Ralph Adams, the winners were simply the guys who went down the least. Catalina winner Chuck "Feet" Minert took the expert main event with the Hilltoppers' Jack Simmons second and Bud Elkins third.

Jim Goldsmith and Larry Sullivan, both of the Hilltoppers, were first and second in the amateur main. Kenny Harryman turned the neat trick of winning both the 200 cc and 15 inch classes on his new Triumph Tiger Cub.

THE ERNIE MCAFEE Engineering Co., Italian car importers, just delivered a spectacular new Farina-bodied Ferrari to William Doheny who reportedly came up with some $20,000 for it.

A two-seat fastback coupe, the car is built around a Model 410 Super America Ferrari with a 4.9 litre engine.

Incidentally, McAfee's has the 4.5 litre roadster of the Movies' William Holden up for sale (for $7,500). Seems Holden found the rocket something less than tractable for tooling around Beverly Hills.

But you should see it on the freeway!

OLDSMOBILE FIESTA TO BE DISPLAYED

On display this week at C. Standlee Martin, exclusive Oldsmobile dealer at 1227 American Ave., is this glamorous 1957 Fiesta station wagon, which combines the luxury of a hardtop with all the practical utility of a station wagon. The hardtop styling is epitomized by the absence of a center post between the doors, while the distinctive accent stripe, in a contrasting color to the body, which sweeps downward and rearward to the taillight, identifies the beauty as a 1957 Oldsmobile.

Highway Patrol Stresses Safety in Seat Belt Use

SACRAMENTO — Use an approved seat belt properly installed if you want to lessen the possibility of serious injury in a traffic collision warns the California Highway Patrol.

"The patrol is continually testing various seat belts and has approved 63 different makes to date for sale in California," declared Patrol Commissioner B. R. Caldwell. "Installation directions are also checked and should be followed strictly to get full benefit from any approved seat belt."

Studies have shown the value of seat belts in reducing or eliminating injuries in traffic accidents," Caldwell stated. "The patrol has successfully been using seat belts since 1953 and all new cars purchased by the State of California are equipped with belts.

Rock 'n' Roll OK on Parents' Say

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — Children have been banned from a lunchtime rock 'n' roll session here unless accompanied by adults or parents' written permission.

Teachers complained that students were returning from the sessions too tired to carry on classes.

MISS UNIVERSE IS MYSTERY GIRL

Lawrence Welk, right, took the wraps off a mystery that has been causing many a hopeful heart to flutter in the Southland for the past two months. Welk unmasked the mystery "Girl From the World of Autodynamics" at the Aragon Ballroom to reveal that she was none other than lovely Hillevi Rombin, left, Miss Universe of 1955. Winner of a new Dodge for correctly identifying Miss Rombin and being lucky enough to have her name drawn was Miss Gladys Jeans, herself a former beauty contest winner (Miss Hollywood 1932). Miss Rombin made six appearances at Long Beach Dodge dealerships during the contest, yet many of her close friends here failed to identify her. Hillevi's reward for her "going along with the gag"—a new Dodge Golden Lancer convertible.—Ralph Porter of ABC-TV is in the rear.

His Golden Anniversary at the Wheel!

In Texas, there is a gentleman who is currently driving out his fiftieth year at the wheel of a Cadillac car.

In New Jersey, there is another gentleman who has purchased every yearly model that Cadillac has produced over the past fifty-three years.

These are simply dramatic examples of a remarkable truism: that once a man takes the wheel of a Cadillac, he invariably remains at the wheel of a Cadillac

To be sure, a motor car would have to offer many unique virtues in order to win for itself such a devoted group of owners.

And, in the case of Cadillac, we think these virtues are self-evident.

There is, first of all, quality. No effort of design or craftsmanship is ever spared to make Cadillac the finest possible motor car.

There is beauty and luxury and performance. The car's magnificent styling and interior coachwork have brought Cadillac an inbred majesty and elegance that are entirely its own . . . and Cadillac engineering has been the industry's constant inspiration and taskmaster.

Finally, there is reputation. Never in automotive history has another motor car sustained such an abiding public conviction in its own goodness.

And, without question, all of these basic Cadillac ingredients have this year reaped their richest harvest. The Cadillac car for 1957 is, in fact, superb beyond even its own brilliant traditions.

So whether you've been at the wheel of a Cadillac for half a century . . . or have yet to spend your first hour in the "car of cars" . . . you should see and drive this newest of Cadillacs.

We're waiting with the car and the keys. Need we say more?

Marina Mothers First Brood of Yachts

Sunday, January 27, 1957

By Paul Wallace

THE NEWEST and probably the most beautiful yacht harbor in the world—the Alamitos Bay Marina—will come to life Friday.

During the day, the neat rows of trim white slips will begin filling with the first of the 1,900 sleek pleasure boats planned to be moored eventually at the big installation in the city's southeast corner.

Still unfinished, the Marina's first basin is far enough along to open for its primary business—the berthing of yachts.

WITH ALL DOCKSIDE facilities complete and the first utility and concession building finished, the development is advanced enough to give an indication of the Marina's ultimate attraction as an aquatic recreation area.

And this is just the first of the Marina's four yacht basins. And of at least a dozen more buildings and huge parking areas, additional commercial developments and acres of city parks.

The first section which will be opened Friday includes Basin 1, a 342-boat harbor enclosed on all sides except for an entrance channel to Alamitos Bay and the ocean.

Slips range from 20 feet for small and medium sized pleasure craft to 80 feet, big enough to handle all but a handful of the West Coast's most luxurious sea-going yachts.

Water and electricity are available at each slip.

AT THE END OF EACH, a spacious locker sits, designed to hold the countless maintenance materials and operating accessories that are as much a part of yachting as rolling seas and taut white sails.

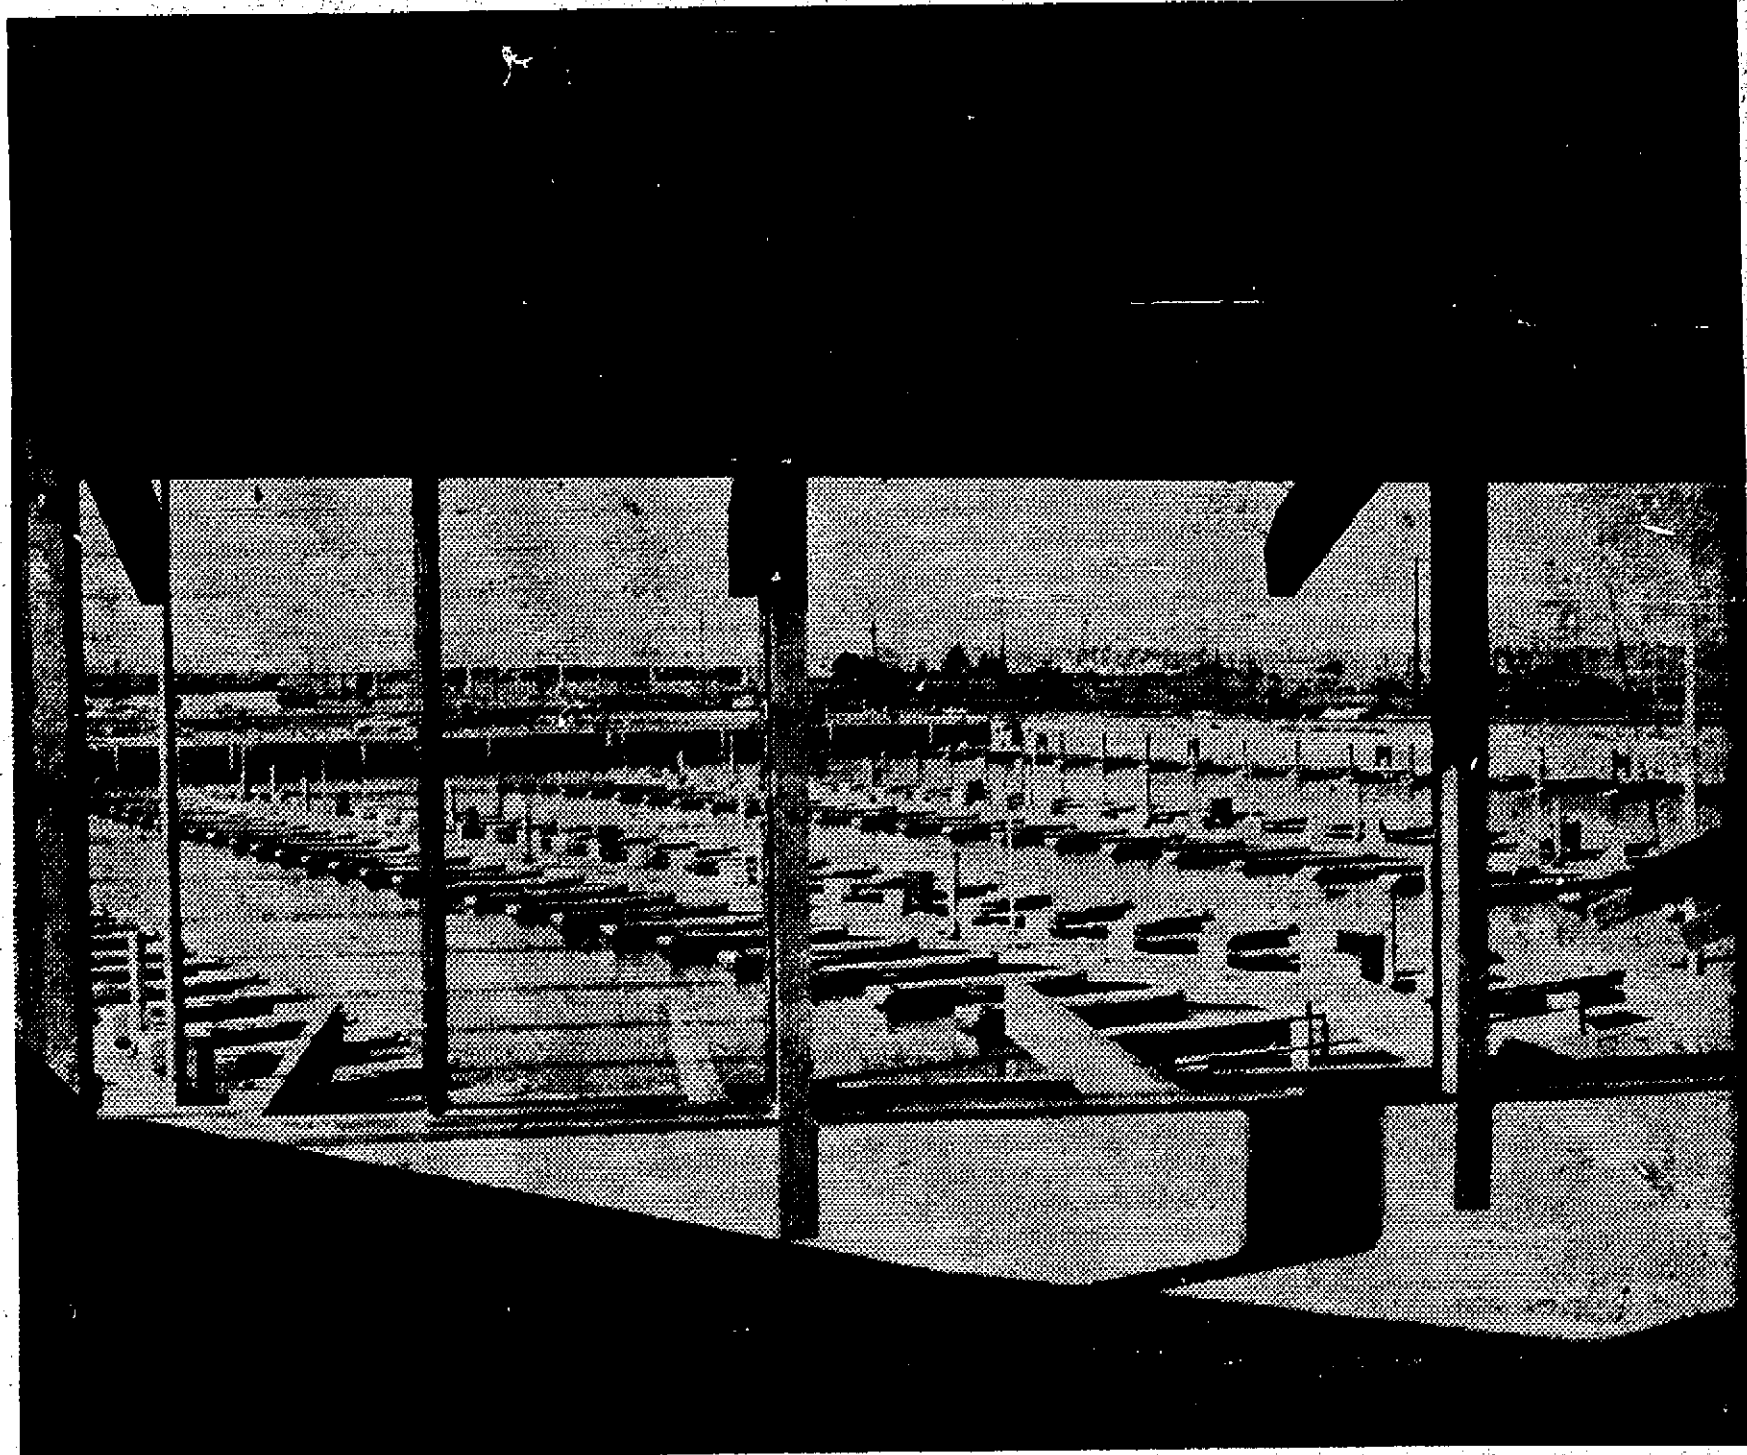

Standing above the concrete basin walls, a handsome contemporary building faces the bay.

Giving an unobstructed view across the waiting slips to Naples, Treasure Island and the Alamitos Bay Peninsula, the building soon will be occupied by a restaurant and a marine supply shop.

It also houses the office of Larry McDowell who, as head of the city's Marine Department, will manage the growing Marina.

McDowell, himself a yachtsman, and his staff eventually will have an administration building of their own.

Surrounding the present building and Basin 1 is

space for parking more than 500 cars. Not yet black-topped, the parking lot is hoped to be completed soon.

THE BASIN 1 SECTION, itself large as Marina's go, is still just a fraction of the planned development which is transforming the mud flats between Naples and Seal Beach.

Three more big docking basins are coming in the future. The engineering is all done. The money for the construction, which comes from the rich tideland's oil kitty, is waiting to be spent.

Only a legal hurdle in acquiring the rest of the land is holding up construction.

Each of the units will have a concession and utility building similar to the one now overlooking Basin 1.

Between Basin 3 and the big bridge now unconnected to any road that spans Marine Stadium, a boat repair yard is planned.

ON THE POINT OF LAND between the San Gabriel River and the ocean entrance channel, space has been left for a plush ocean-view restaurant and possibly a resort motel.

At the east end of Appian Way in Naples, across from Basin 1, a large plot of land is earmarked for two yacht club sites with buildings, landscaping and private docking facilities.

Such installations as boat yard, yacht clubs and motel-restaurant, will be built by private businessmen on Marina land leased to them for the purpose by the city.

The ground also will include harbor master and lifeguard headquarters, along with a fireboat and truck station. Space is open for Coast Guard and State Fish and Game Dept. stations, too.

THE SPREADING MARINE playground is expected to attract tourists and vacationers by the hundreds. It has already begun to draw celebrities.

Early slip reservations were made by such eminent yachtsmen as the movies' John Wayne, a former Long Beach schoolboy, Ward Bond and Bill Stewart, Union Oil heir.

They will occupy an Alamitos Bay that has grown from tidal flats to one of the most unique areas in the state just as one of its original developers, Arthur M. Parsons, foresaw 50 years ago.

Parsons started his career in Long Beach selling residential lots on the Alamitos Bay Peninsula which was being developed in 1903.

After doing some speculating in peninsula land himself and building a bayfront businessmen's clubhouse, Parsons became interested in the tidal island across the bay—an area of black mud completely covered with water at high tide.

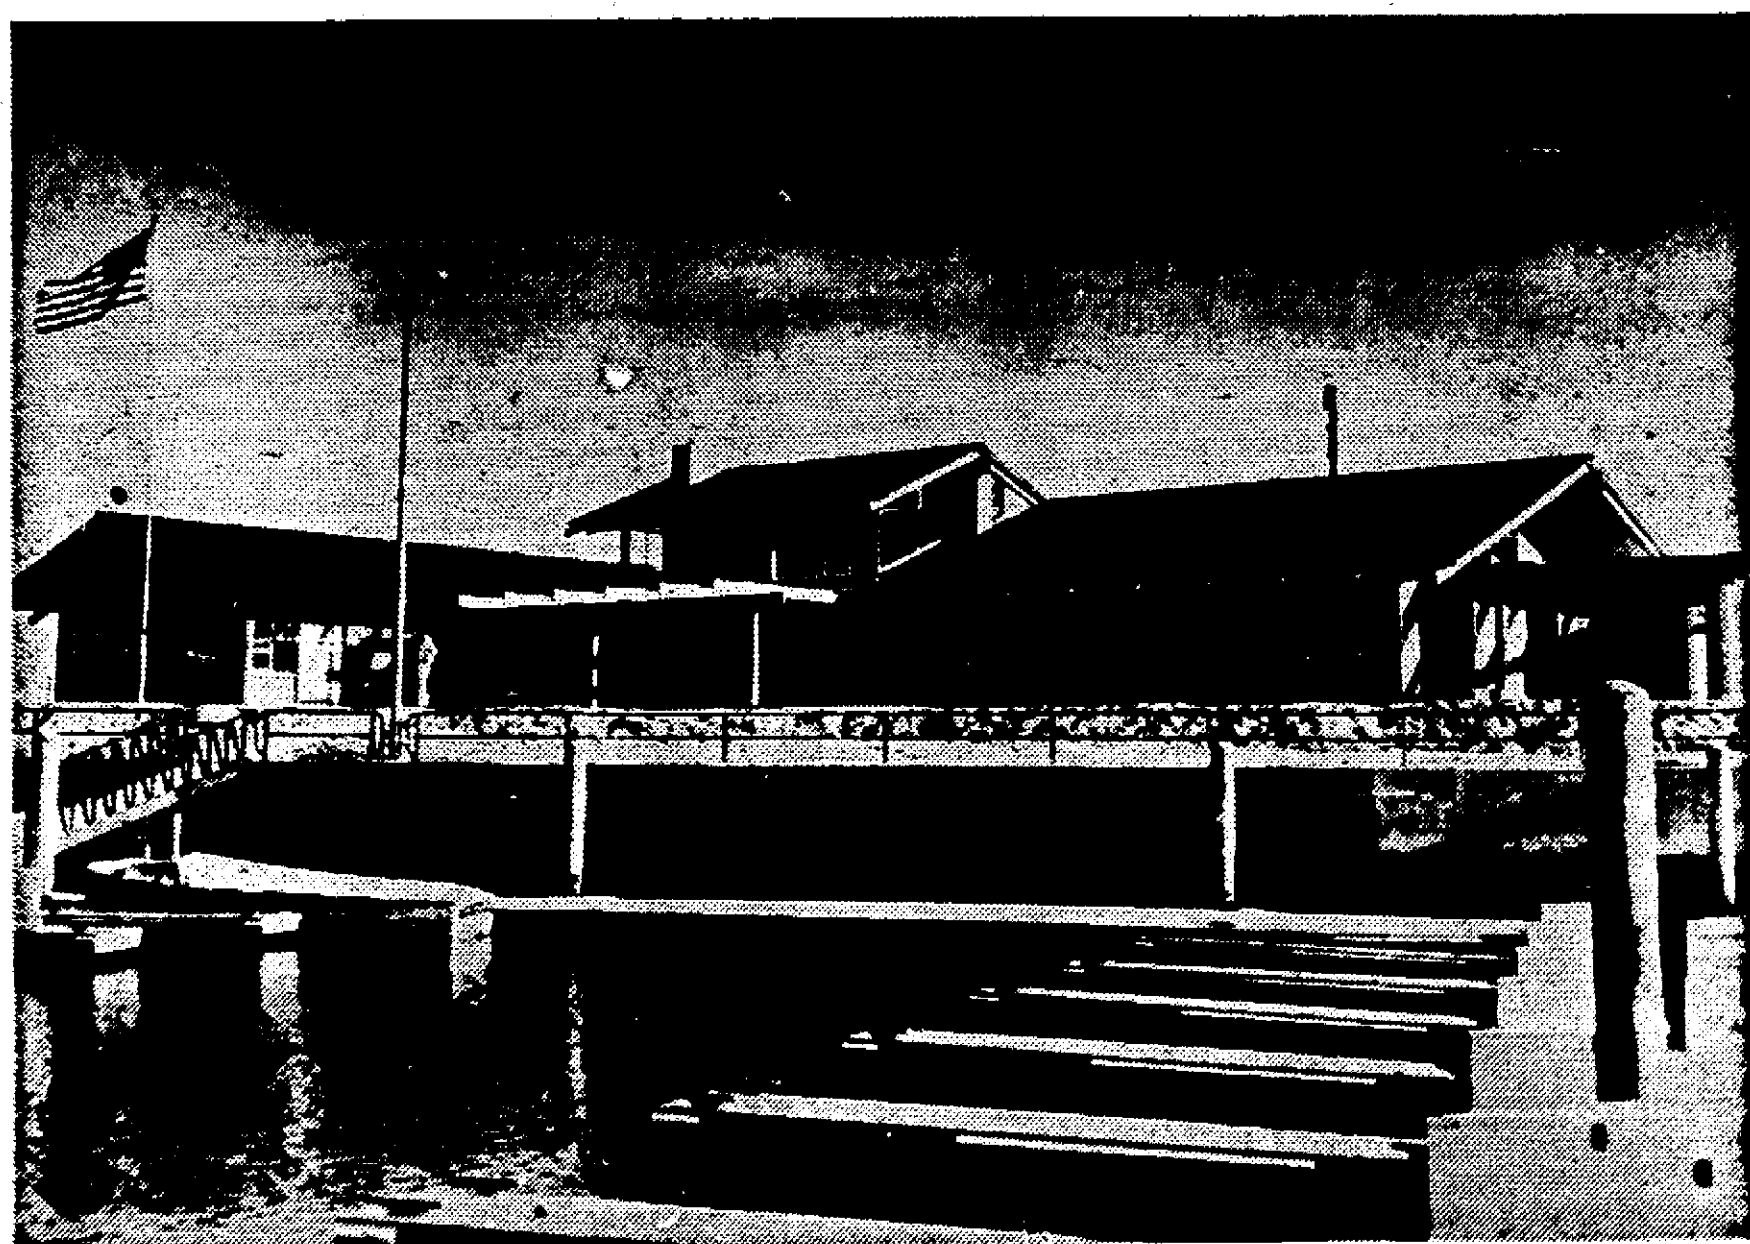

LAND TESTS SHOWED the island to be firm underneath the thin cover of mud. Parsons then talked the Alamitos Land Co. into selling the area to him for development into what he conceived as a Neapolitan-type of residential community complete with canals and gondolas.

Parsons' group dredged the bay, filled the island to a height of six feet above the highest tide, built the circular Rivo Alto Canal and walled the land in.

Affected by such factors as the San Francisco earthquake and fire of 1906, World War I and the depression, Naples has grown slowly to its present maturity.

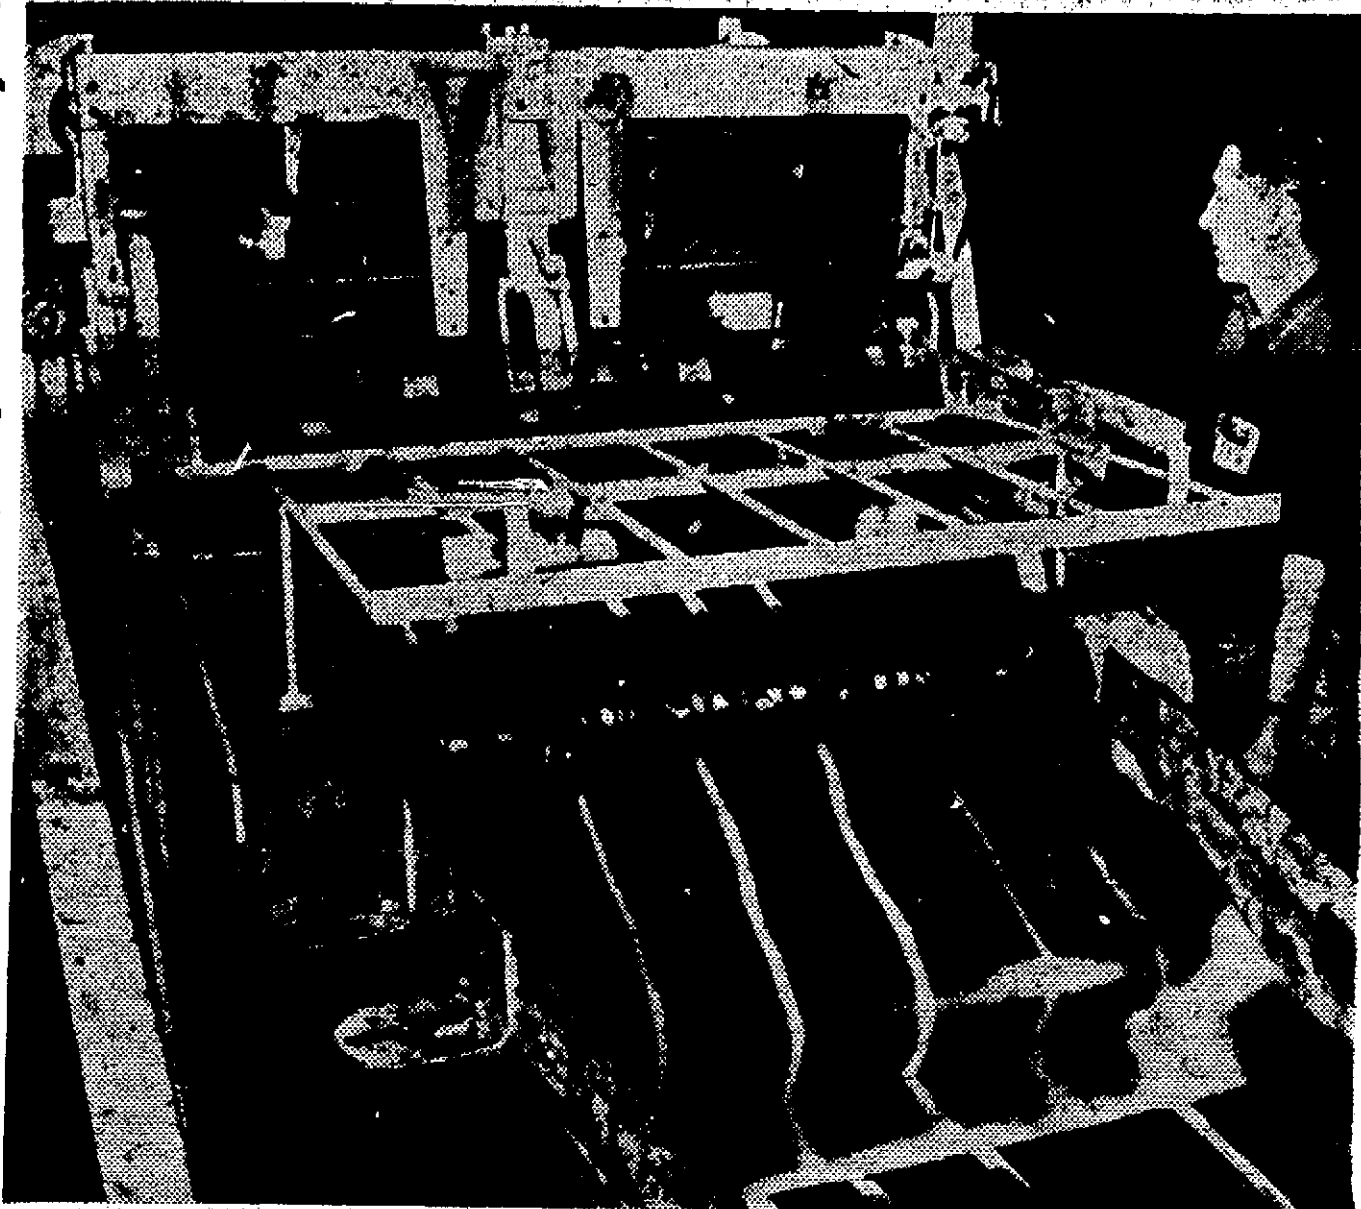

The completion of the Marina will climax half a century of development.

The finished product will be even more spectacular than the grandiose plans of the far-sighted Parsons and the other early-day promoters of the Alamitos Bay area.

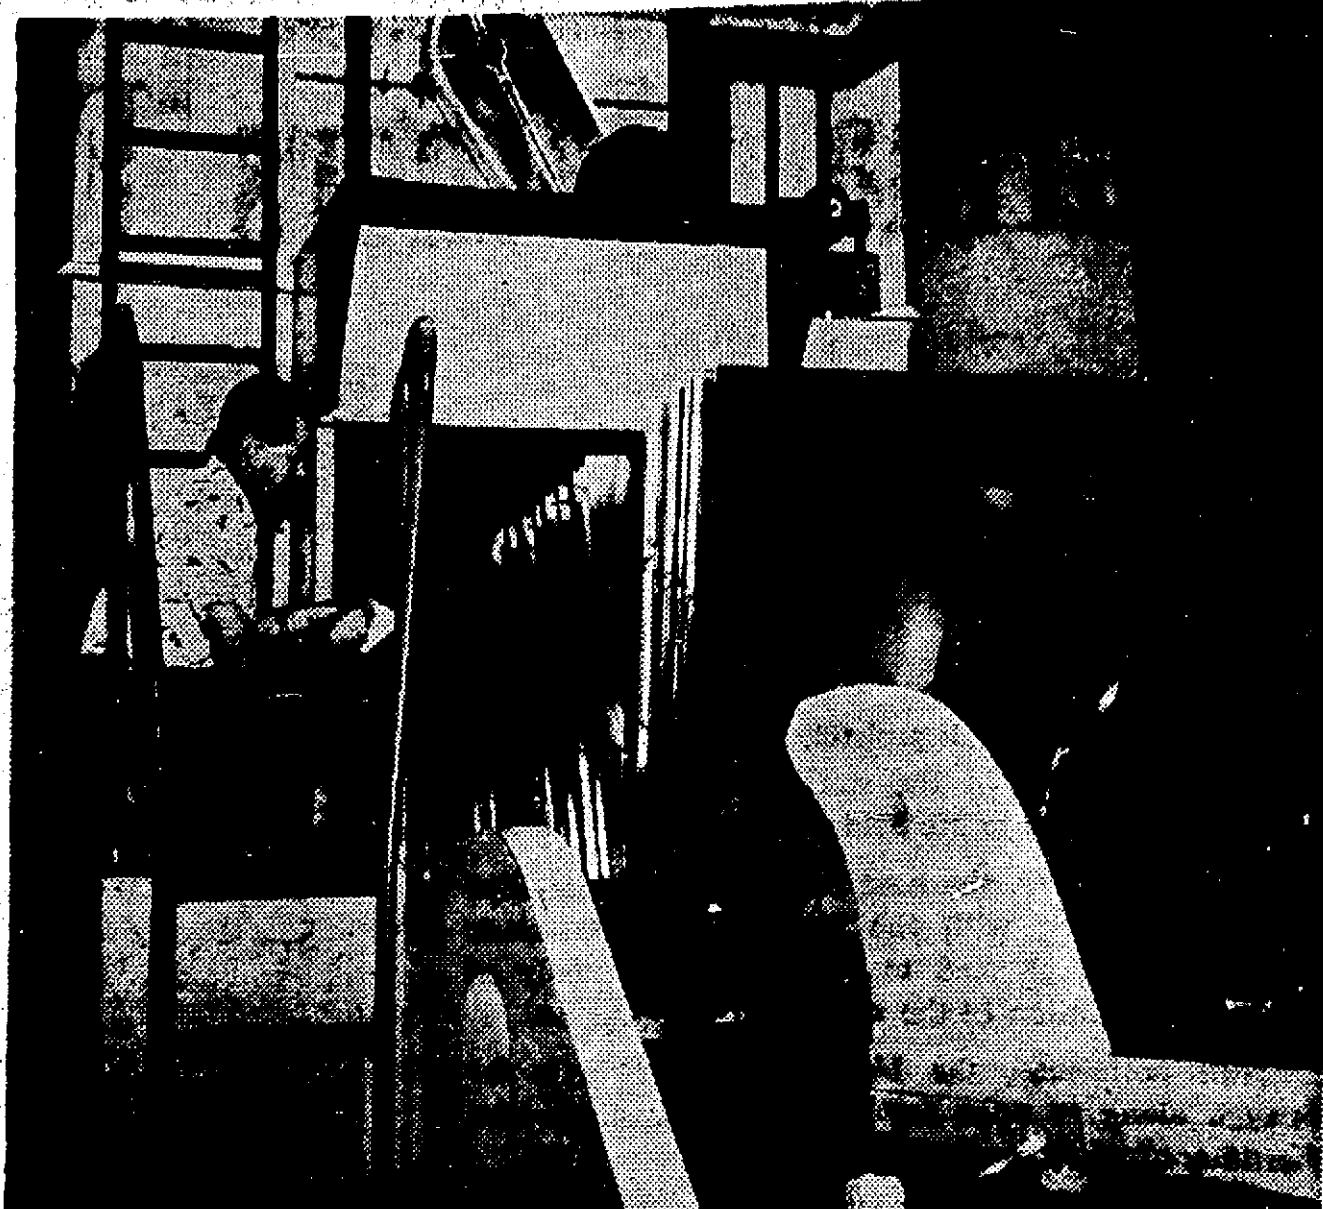

Contemporary restaurant and utility building at Basin 1, which will house short order restaurant, marine supply store, rest rooms and other facilities.

Thin coating of enamel is applied to plates for cans by machine operated (above) by Dick Vaughn of American Can Co. plant in Wilmington.

Flat sheets of enamel-coated steel emerge from high-temperature oven and are inspected by Earl Sides, foreman of the coating department.

You Can Buy Time in Steel Cans

CANNED foods saved 35 billion hours in America's kitchens in 1956.

Eighty million hours were saved on canned peas alone, according to Miss Edalene Stohr, chief home economist for the American Can Co.

Frozen concentrated juices, one of the industry's fastest growing products, saved 192 million hours.

U. S. canners used about 40 billion cans in 1956, of which 62 per cent were for food. Consumers opened an average of 246 cans per person—160 food cans, 52 beverage cans and 34 non-food cans.

MANY PERSONS do not realize that making cans and filling them comprise two separate industries. Can-makers follow crops from before seeding time to harvest, making continuous studies of the requirements of each customer. Each can is tailor-made for a particular product.

Packers in the Long Beach area are supplied chiefly by American Can Co. (Canco) plants in Wilmington and Los Angeles and by Continental Can Co. plants on Terminal Island and in Los Angeles.

Canco's harbor plant at 110 E. Sepulveda Blvd. is the largest fish-can plant in the world. Its Vernon plant is the largest general can manufacturing plant in the West and one of the six largest in the world.

THE HARBOR PLANT has an annual rated capacity of 776,160,000 cans. It supplies about

By James Allen

20 principal canners of fish products, pet foods and citrus products.

The Vernon plant has an annual rated capacity of 2,073,000,000 cans. It produces flat-top fibre milk containers and cans for carbonated beverages, fish, oil, citrus products, vegetables, beer, shortening, eggs, spices, coffee, paint and chemicals.

The rated capacity of the harbor plant is nearly equal to the total production of the canning industry of the Iron Curtain countries, estimated at about one billion cans yearly.

Canned foods are a luxury in most countries. About 85 per cent of the total canned food production of the world is produced and consumed in the U. S.

J. B. Wiebers, 2452 Petaluma Ave., manager of Canco's harbor plant, pointed out that tin cans actually are steel cans. They average more than 98 per cent steel. Some contain no tin at all, others very little.

CAN-MAKING at the harbor plant starts with the application of a thin coating of enamel to the flat metal plate from which cans are made. The enamel is rolled onto the plate in a press equipped with rubber rollers. The pattern for the particular can is cut into the rollers and thus is transferred to the plate.

Different coatings are needed to protect cans from the chemical effects of various food products. Before the enameling process was developed, cans became discolored by some foods. Corn was particularly bad. Contrary to popular belief, the wholesomeness of the food was not affected in any way. Only its appearance was changed.

The enamel coating also makes possible the production of cans with little or no tin.

AFTER THE PLATES are coated they pass through a 129-foot-long, high-temperature oven which bakes on the enamel.

Next, a slitter machine automatically cuts the flat plate to the correct can body size. The blanks are fed into a complex machine called a body maker, (Continued on Page 9.)

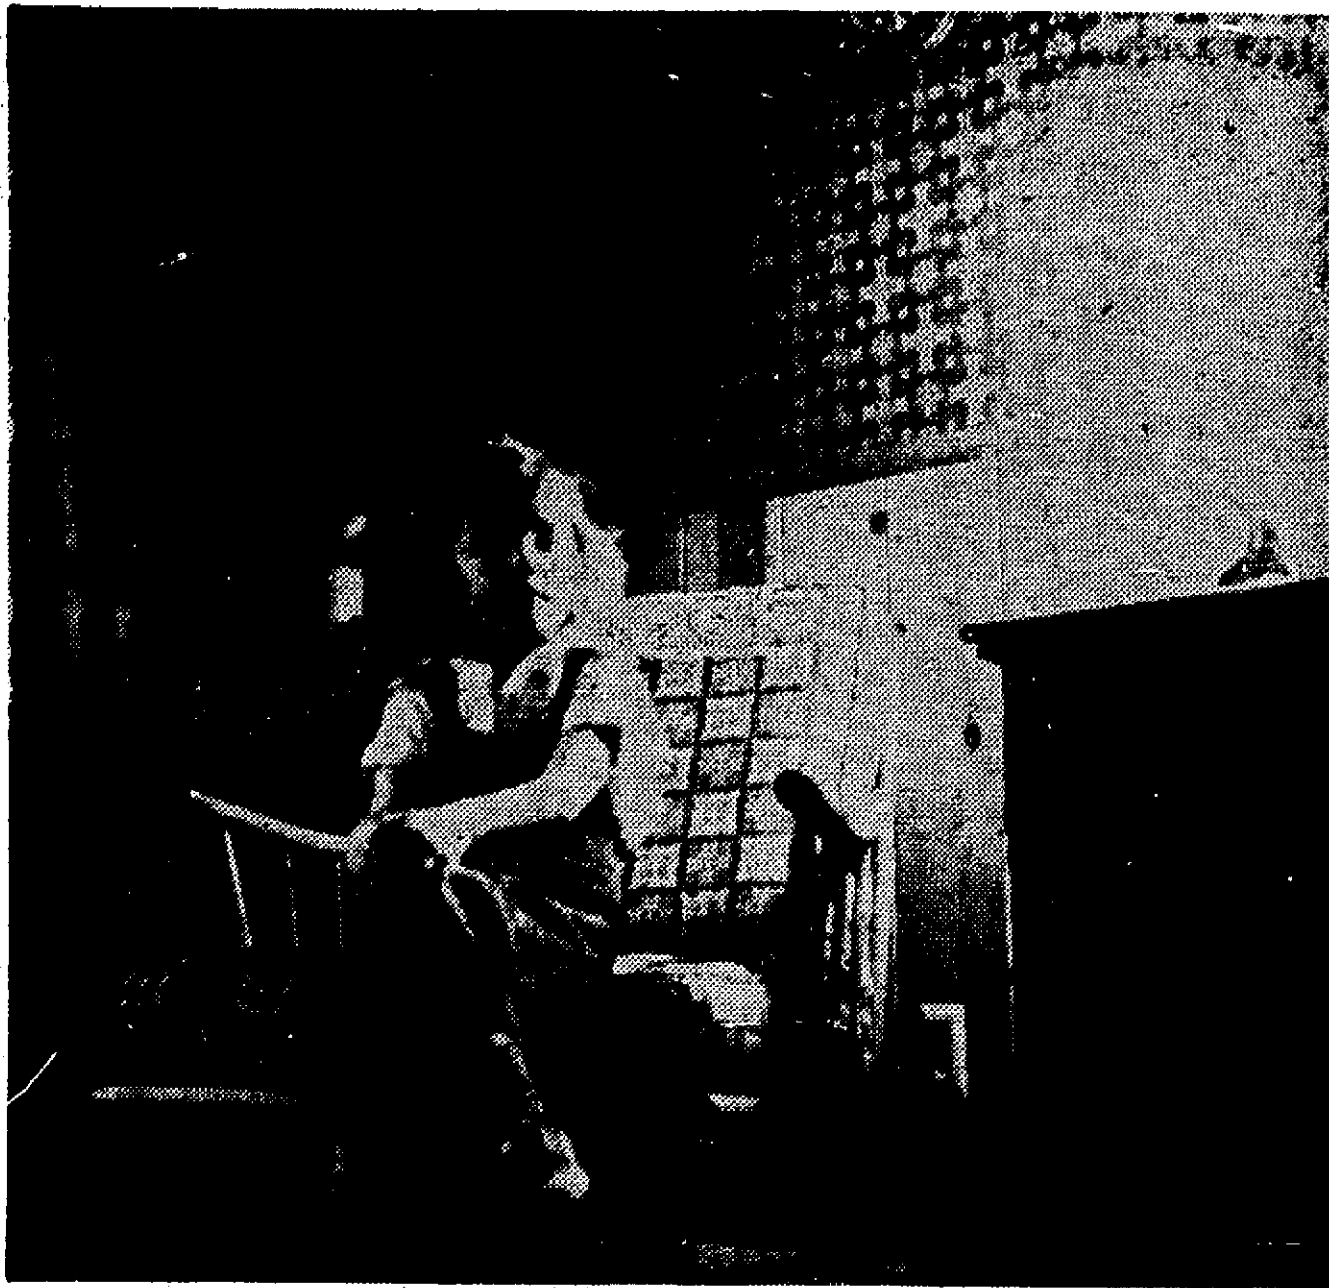

Workmen are dwarfed in jungle of massive and complicated machines and conveyor runways which carry cans from stamping and sealing operations above.

As a babysitter, grandfather has a technique all his own, and Barbara Lee Riehl, 5, daughter of the Robert T. Riehls of Orange, awaits him.

Grandfather Babysits

GRANDFATHER has never read a child psychology book. All he knows is love and understanding.

And the best place to get double-dip chocolate ice cream cones, and the best beach, and the best park with the zippiest slide.

Grandfather loves fun.

That's why he's the best babysitter.

His fee is paid with a child's laughter and it's a full reward.

His is a captive audience—a delighted, volunteer captive audience for the stories he knows so well.

Stories of cowboys and Indians, elves and leprechauns, lions and tigers, pioneers and pirates. They're better than television.

There is nobody like Grandfather.

There is no time like the magical hours spent with him in a world of enjoyment. A world made for a child's exploration and a Grandfather guide who carries the map in his heart.

GRANDFATHERS ARE MADE to be loved by children and vice versa. It's a special kind of love that comes wrapped in companionship.

And it's a love package that is tied with bonds of sharing.

Grandfather is the best babysitter in the world because he's old enough to recognize the warmth of a child.

Grandfather knows which beaches are cleanest and safest; which stands serve the most delicious cones. There's just nobody like grandfather.

At the close of the day, both lives are enriched by true love and companionship. Memories have been established, to live on as the years pass.

Sled Dogs to Have Their Day

By Helen Smith

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Soper pose with three-dog team of Samoyeds. Soper is the chairman of the Sled Dog Derby.

THE SNOWY quietness of crisp mountain air will be split with shrill barks and sharp commands next Sunday, Feb. 3, when hundreds of Samoyeds, Malamutes, Huskies and St. Bernards converge with their handlers on Meadow Park at Big Bear Valley to pit strength and skill in the third annual amateur Sled Dog Derby.

Open to all dog owners in Southern California, the event features three to seven-dog teams who strain in harness while keyed to a driving pitch following months of training.

The derby, which does much to recall the early days of the Pacific Northwest, began two years ago with an exhibition by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bristol of Agoura who own the Startinda Samoyed Kennels.

IN THE SECOND year more than a dozen teams vied in the long distance haul and this year a large crowd is expected to view the Derby which is kept alive by a group of individual sled dog enthusiasts.

According to Larry Soper of Newhall, chairman of the Derby and president of the Samoyed Club of America, Pacific Coast Division, race day will commence at 10:30 a.m. and conclude at 3:30 p.m. with a sprint race.

The schedule announced by Mrs. Bristol includes the opening endurance test, two-team relay, children's race, furlong race for women only, weight pulling contest, scavenger race, teenage race and lead dog exhibition.

Soper said that all races and the start and finish of the seven-mile cross country event are visible from the grandstand. He and his wife, Ruth, will enter a three-dog team of Samoyeds, Champion Startindas Chimen-Tagh, Ru-Lares Charana and Be-Yata of Encino.

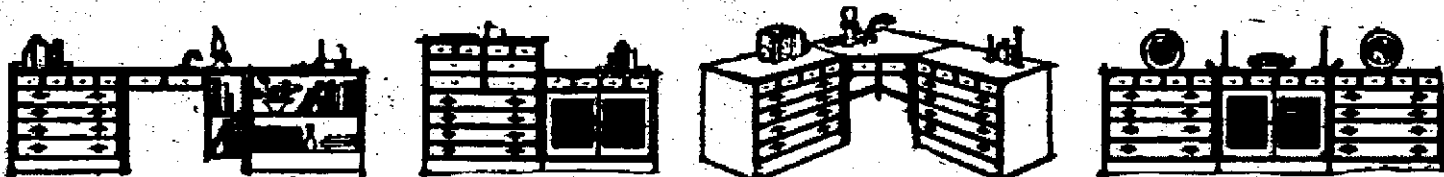

ONE GROUP SURE to create a stir of interest is the five-Samoyed team owned by the Bristols. It is the only all-champion working sled team in the United States. It is led by the sire, Champion Starchaks Witangemote, the dam, Champion Startinda, and three of their pups from one litter. Ten-year-old Starchak will be retired this year, Mrs. Bristol said.

Kenneth Bristol makes all his harness and equipment. The wooden sleds are bent and tied together with hide. Light metal sleds are used for training. The

SOUTHLAND'S SHORT SHORT STORY

Red Light, Green Light

By Gloria Marie Schwab

Illustrated by Parker Markle

"WHAT'LL YOU HAVE, Mac?"

The bartender rammed a pouring spout on a new fifth and set it back on the shelf.

"Gimme a beer," Joe Venucci rolled a silver coin across the bar and watched the practiced hand pull down the tap.

"New around here?" The bartender made conversation.

"Yeah. Business call down the street," Joe raised the cone-shaped glass and felt the prickly amber liquid rise through the foam and roll down his throat.

"SAY, YOU WANT to hear a story you won't believe?"

"I'm listening." The bartender placed a clean, folded towel on the pouring rack.

"I just made a thousand clams by gettin' mad at a guy!"

"Never brought me nothin' but trouble." The bartender eyed Joe with more interest.

"I told you, you wouldn't believe it. Listen. I'm drivin' out to this new house I just bought for the small sum of ten thousand dollars. I'm hoping the old bus holds up for another year till I can get out of the hole I'm in from borrowin' the down payment on the house.

"I'm goin' along this road, see. There's one car ahead of me. A big job. Cadillac. We been playin' tag for the last five miles. He speeds up. I lose him. Then I catch up again. He's crawlin' like a snail. I'm trying to pass but there's no chance. Too many curves.

"WE'RE COMIN' UP to the intersection of Valley Boulevard. A drag. You know, lights, traffic. It's a slow bell for this road I'm on. The guy in the Cadillac is crawlin' again. So I try once more to pass him. No good. We're roundin' the last curve. The signal at Valley is green. I'm tailin' this guy so close I can see the bald spot on the back of his head. I can also see this dame leanin' up against him. He's got his arm around her."

Joe shook a cigarette from a crushed pack while the bartender rattled glasses in the disinfected.

"Pretty soft, I'm thinkin'.

Cadillacs, dames. By this time I'm getting to hate the guy. You know what I mean?" Joe's eyes questioned above the flash of flame. He took a long drag.

"He's even got a fancy frame around the license plate. 'Come on, old 1Z401,' I'm yellin' at him. 'Get off the road and do your lovin' someplace else!' Course he can't hear, but I'm yellin' anyway.

"We're almost at Valley when the light turns to yellow. The old goat steps on the gas and the Cad jumps forward like it's been punted for the goal post. I'm about to do the same, but by the time I get shifted into second it's too late. The red light's starin' me in the face.

"THERE'S NOTHIN' to do but stop. So I stop and I wait. I wait some more. Finally the light changes to green. I'm on my way again. I give her the gas. Anxious to get home to Rose and the kids."

Joe smiled and dropped his eyes. "You'd never believe it to look at me, but I'm a family man. Nuts about the kids, like to putter with new lawns; you know the kind." The bartender nodded.

"I settle back and roll along. At least I'm free of the pest in the Cad. I'm thinkin' about the dinner that's waitin' for me. All of a sudden I round another bend and there he is!

"Old 1Z401!"

"HE'S BEEN crawlin' again. I'm right on top of him. I can see the bald spot. But wait!

"Where's the dame? She's not leanin' up against him." Joe flicked an ash toward the floor and raised both hands palms up. "Probably passed out I think to myself. The distance between us widens. He's pullin' away again in a fast smooth glide. Probably he's pie eyed, too. Well, to each his own I figure and turn off into my own street.

"Next night when I get home from work Rose meets me at the door.

"Did you hear about the dead woman?" she asks me.

"Dead woman?"

"They found her this morning in a ravine by the side of Warwood Road. Just this side of Valley. She'd been there all night. They figured she was killed about 6 o'clock. Shot through the head."

"Shot?"

"You were going by there about that time, Joe," she says to me. "Didn't you see anything?"

BEFORE I CAN answer she's talking again.

"Oh, of course you didn't. You never see anything!"

"Now, just a minute, I tell her. I see what's worth seein'. It just might be..."

Next minute I'm on the phone talking to the police sergeant.

"Now this might be somethin' and it might be nothin', I tell him, 'but last night about 6 o'clock'... I tell him the whole story; just like I'm tellin' you."

"1Z401. Are you sure about that license number?" He don't think I remember, see? Another swig of beer and Joe wiped his mouth with the back of his hand.

"AM I SURE! Look sarge," I says, "I played tag with this guy for over five miles. I'm positive."

"Well, the great wheels of the law buzz into action and before you know it they got this bald-headed guy nailed. Seems he was some sort of nut they'd been after for a long time. A thousand dollars on his head, and who do you suppose is in line for this bundle?"

Joe tapped his chest with a stubby thumb.

"You?" The bartender uttered the obvious.

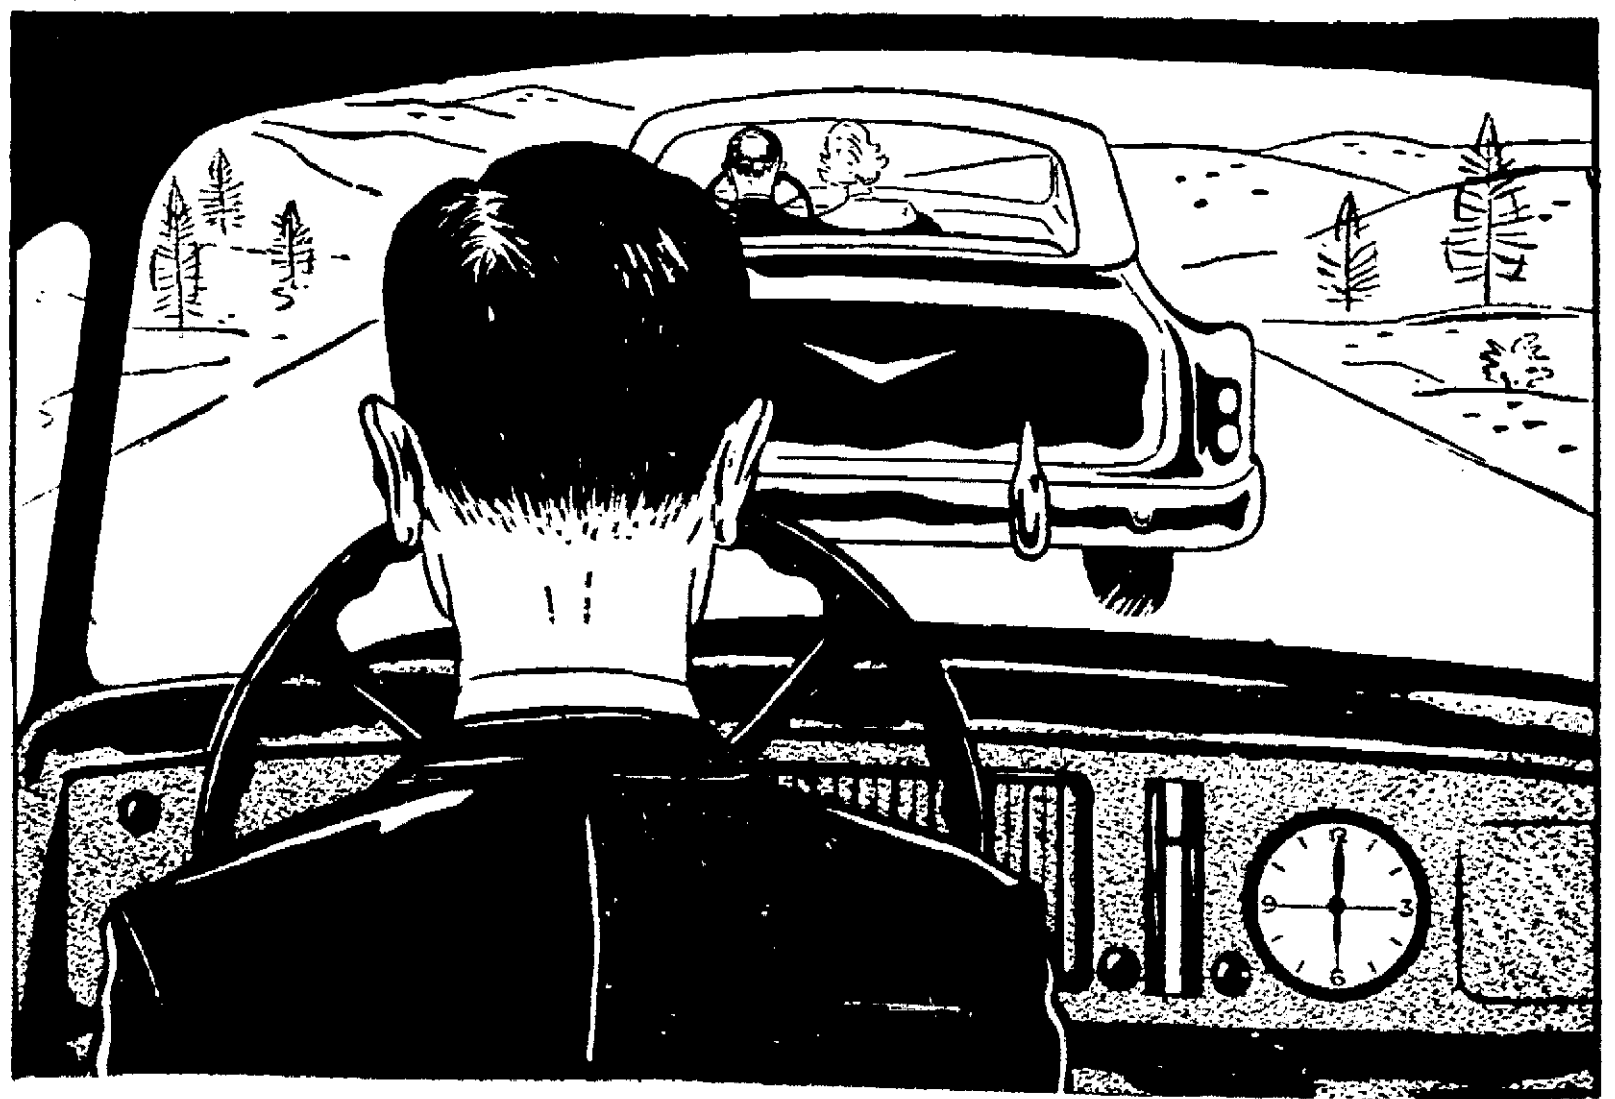

"The same. They had him dead to rights; he admitted everything. Course I had to wait till the trial was over, but the check came through yesterday."

"Me? I'm sittin' on top of the world. Rose thinks I'm a wonderful guy. The down payment on the house is all paid off. Money in the bank..."

Joe's little, shining eyes caught the clock at the back of the bar.

"Say, it's gettin' late!" He jammed out the cigarette and slid off the stool.

"I gotta get down to Murphy's car lot. I'm pickin' up my new Cad today. See you, pal."

"I'm tailin' this guy so close I can see the bald spot on the back of his head. I can also see this dame leanin' against him... his arm's around her."

YOU CAN BUY TIME IN CANS MADE THE MODERN WAY

foods are pre-cooked and do not require cooking after the can is opened. Most foods are cooked in the can, after the top is applied.

In preparing vegetables for serving, housewives are advised to drain the liquid into a sauce pan, boil quickly to reduce the amount, add the vegetable, heat quickly and season to taste. Instead of reducing the liquid, it can be saved for soups, sauces, gravies or vegetable cocktails. It should never be thrown away, because it contains valuable nutrients.

IN RECENT YEARS, housewives have set a trend toward the number 303 (two-cup) can.

Use of this size has increased from about one billion to more than three billion in the past five years.

The beer can, developed by Canco only 20 years ago, now accounts for about 15 per cent of all can production.

Production of canned sea food has undergone tremendous growth in the past 50 years—up to 25 million cases or nearly 850,000,000 pounds of edible fish, an increase of more than 500 per cent over the turn of the century.

Canned tuna, now the largest fish pack, is valued at more than 100 million dollars annually.

which shapes the cans and solders the sides. A flanger then puts a flared rim on both ends of the can body, preparing it to receive the can ends.

The ends are being fashioned in a separate operation. Scroll shears cut the flat plate into strips and a punch press stamps out the can ends and curls the edges. Another machine pours a rubber gasket material into the curl of the ends, then dries it. The gasket material produces an airtight bond between the body and ends. This is the modern equivalent of the rubber seals used in home canning.

THE PARTS of the can come together in a doubleseamer, which attaches the bottom to the can body. A similar machine in the cannery puts the tops on the cans after they have been filled. When the process is completed, the curled and sealed edges of the can consist of five thicknesses of metal, with the rubber compound between.

Finally, each can passes through a high-pressure testing wheel which rejects it automatically if it fails to meet standards. Only about two cans in 10,000 fail to pass.

Paper labels are applied by the canner. Lithographed labels are printed on the flat plate by the can plant before the container is fabricated.

CAN MANUFACTURE today is a precision operation requiring the supervision of expert mechanics. A variation of even 1/1,000th inch is enough to stop automatically a whole machine line.

Can-making lines can turn out 450 cans per minute, compared to the 600 which a skilled artisan could make by hand in a 10-hour day. Canco maintains specialized machine shops in which most of its machines are built. It also supplies can-closing machines to canners.

Canco nutritionists emphasize that it is unnecessary to remove food from the can before storage in the refrigerator. The can is sterile—cleaner than any dish, they say. Housewives need only cover the can before putting it in the refrigerator.

DENTS AND RUST on cans do not affect the contents unless severe enough to cause leakage.

Nutritional values of canned foods are as high or higher than any other type of food. Canned Off to good start, Mrs. Kenneth Bristol drives 7-dog Samoyed team in Sled Dog Derby in Big Bear Valley last year. Derby will be held again on Feb. 3.

SLED DOGS HAVE THEIR DAY

Bristols make numerous appearances with their beautiful white dogs especially around the Christmas season.

Exciting point of the derby as spectators urge favorites on to victory, is the crosscountry pull. It is run over a closed, marked course exact location to depend on snow conditions on the day of the race.

RULES FOR THIS event are strict and state that each team shall consist of not less than three dogs nor more than seven, to be handled by only one person during the race. No substitution of dogs will be permitted and all dogs starting must be present at the finish.

Sled drivers and meet officials are the only ones permitted on or near the course between start and finish lines. Drivers may be aided in holding and lining up teams. Starting order is determined by lot with teams leaving at three-minute intervals. Any team overtaken must yield the right of way if not able to hold its advantage in line.

If time and weather permits, the derby will end with a novice race where inexperienced dogs and drivers will try their ability in a mode of travel still used in some sections of the country.

Hawaii Boom

MORE VISITORS, more accommodations, more ships and more planes to Hawaii are in sight for 1957. At least, that's the estimate of the Hawaii Visitors Bureau and the schedule of hotel operators and carriers.

Upward of 145,000 vacationers—a great many of them departing from Long Beach—are expected to visit this tropical capital of Polynesia during the year. In line with their expected visit, the scope of things to do and see in Hawaii is being broadened. Entertainment, sightseeing and shopping facilities are on the increase on all major islands.

Three new liners, the Monterey, Leilani and the Matsonia will begin calling at Hawaii during the year. More flights as the demand arises are envisioned by the airlines. Several hundred new hotel rooms are under construction or on the drawing boards.

Hawaii's popularity as an all-year vacation resort registered an increase for the seventh straight year in 1956. More than 130,000 persons came and stayed two days or more. Many of them toured the neighbor islands of Hawaii, Maui and Kauai, all growing in popularity along with Honolulu and Waikiki as places to visit. The 1956 total was approximately 21 per cent over the previous year, just as 1955 saw a sharp increase over 1954.

All of this is in line with the "discovery" of Hawaii by countless vacationers in the era since the end of World War II. The combination of an urban, modern American community with all the conveniences of home, tropical Polynesian languor and the exotic infusion of the Orient has proved beguiling.

Travel officials see additional visitors coming to Hawaii in 1957 because the Pacific still is pacific in this uneasy era of international tensions. Several world cruises have been suspended and many Americans and Canadians are looking West when they think of overseas trips.

Special events of early 1957 in the Islands will include the Japanese Cherry Blossom Festival blossoms in March. Hawaii's racial beauties vie at the Ka Palapala beauty pageant of the University of Hawaii on March 9. Hawaiian societies observe the birth date of Prince Jonah Kuhio at Iolani Palace on March 26. Traditional Lei day on May 1 is one of the Polynesian highlights of the year.

Balmy, springlike temperatures the year around add to the incentives for a visit to Hawaii, as does the continuing program of beach sports, native feasts called luaus, fishing festivals called hūkilaus, hula shows, camera shows and cosmopolitan entertainment. Temperatures range from slightly over 72 in winter months to the low 80s in summer.

This is because come January or July its always springtime in Hawaii.

A Desert Frontier Lives Again

YEARs AGO a promising town flourished in the new frontier that progress had brought to the Mojave Desert. Then the boom faded and the town that was named Hesperia slumbered in the sunshine for more than a half century, awaiting the touch that would reawaken interest in the many good things of the soil, the sun and the clime that existed there.

Today Hesperia blooms again and observers see brilliance and permanence in the new look on the desert.

Hesperia is situated four miles southeast of Victorville and 23 miles from Lake Arrowhead by the "valley road." The expansive new development, begun in mid-October 1954 by a syndicate headed by M. Penn Phillips of Azusa, has broken all recent national lot sales records and weekly attracts thousands of visitors, its backers say.

HESPERIA - ORIGINALLY was founded in the 1880s as an important stop along the Mormon Trail from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles. Of the old town, little remains except the three-story brick Hesperia Hotel, a deserted landmark visible for miles.

In later years, the Tatum

This old hotel is relic of 1880's boom in Hesperia.

Brothers established huge turkey ranches here, raising thousands of the birds for Los Angeles markets. Finally the Tatum Produce Co. was formed, cultivating thousands of acres of mesa land, and harvesting fine potatoes, onions and onion seed.

The land, largely decomposed granite and extremely fertile, overlooks the Mojave River, "the river that runs upside down." The entire area is watered by deep wells from a gigantic underground basin, constantly replenished by tremendous rain and snow fall on the north side of the San Bernardino Mountains. Experts estimate that the underground sea, lying just beneath the sand, is large as Lake Tahoe, and produces enough water to supply a city the size of Long Beach.

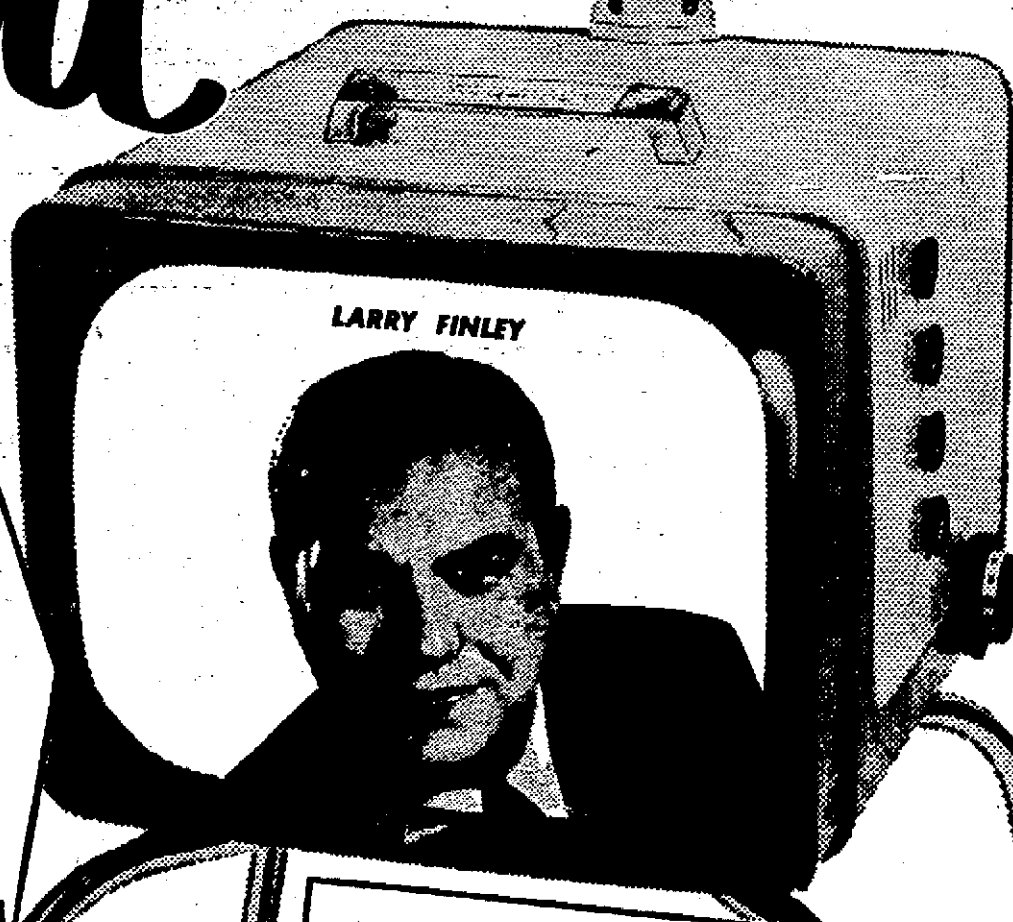

THE DEVELOPMENT covers a 36-square-mile township of approximately 22,000 acres, including the old town of Hesperia and the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe Railroad stations. The land, with an average elevation of 3,200 feet, slopes upward towards the mountains and is covered with juniper bushes and Joshua trees.

Besides residence lots, the company has laid out one-acre to 100-acre sites for business and light manufacturing indus-

Saturday Night Supper

By Mildred K. Flanary

Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

SATURDAY Night Supper is the one meal of the week that Mom is most likely to find any number of extras attending. It never fails! The boys meet their pals at the game and before it's over, she has been elected as the "cook of the evening."

For such affairs, Mom learned 'way back that the best way to handle them is with informal buffet serving, centered around one hearty dish. And Western Souffle with parsley sauce is truly delicious for such occasions since it will stay up right until the very last bite is eaten.

The meal could be rounded out with individual fruit salads, a basket of sliced sesame French bread, lots of hot coffee—served in tin cups to carry out the western atmosphere — and for dessert a large iced cake, made with a mix. This will not only be a glamorous-looking meal, but one that all will enjoy to the very last morsel.

Western Souffle

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1½ tablespoons chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon thyme
- ¼ teaspoon chili powder
- 1 cup canned whole kernel corn, drained
- ½ cup drained mashed canned tomatoes
- ¼ cup tomato juice
- ¼ cup light cream
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimento
- 6 or 7 drops Tabasco sauce
- 3 egg whites
- 3 egg yolks

Melt butter in saucepan and saute onion and green pepper for 5 minutes, or until tender. Add quick-cooking tapioca, salt, pepper, thyme, chili powder, corn, tomatoes, tomato juice, and cream. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil. Remove from heat and add pimento and Tabasco sauce. Allow to cool slightly while beating eggs.

Beat egg whites until stiff. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add tapioca mixture to egg yolks and mix well. Fold in egg whites. Spoon into shallow baking dish (10x6x2-inch). Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes, or until souffle is firm. Serve with parsley sauce or any other favorite cream sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Parsley Sauce

Melt ¼ cup butter or margarine in saucepan. Add 3 tablespoons flour and stir until smooth. Add 2¼ cups milk gradually, stirring constantly. Add 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon celery salt, and ½ teaspoon salt. Cook and stir over medium heat until sauce is thickened. Makes about 2½ cups.

SOUTHLAND

Every man enjoys an interested listener, especially if she is his wife. (Posed by Mr. and Mrs. Orin Scholar.)

Put Men on a Pedestal?

By Stella George

WHETHER women will accept it or not, there is more than a mere biological difference between men and women.

European women have always acted accordingly, and they are happy and contented to be feminine in their relationship with the men in their lives.

Many American women seem to feel a spirit of competition with men (in some cases even with their own husbands). Too often, the man of the house earns a living for the family, helps out with household chores, does a part-time baby-sitting job with his youngsters, and is rewarded by being allowed to take the family to a drive-in theater on Saturday night, if mom hasn't planned company for dinner. It is a rare wife, nowadays, who busies herself during the day getting things in order primarily for the big moment when her husband comes home from work. Too frequently, his coming home is merely incidental, a minor interruption of a day's activities.

Before marriage, when a girl is being dated by various young men, she is usually smart enough to play a very feminine role, and make her escort feel strong and masculine. After marriage, particularly when children enter the picture, father is often relegated to second place when it comes to attention; and over a period of years male ego can become severely crushed.

IT IS USUALLY after marriage that most women cease to put their men on a superior plane. Career women, of course, often consider themselves equal to or better than the men with whom they work. The mere thought of putting men on a pedestal because they are men would probably bring forth a de-tries. At present, the Kaiser Corp. is building a 13-mile railroad from Hesperia to Lucerne to transport lime from big deposits recently discovered.

The developers claim that Hesperia offers the homeowner everything desirable—quiet, sunshine and healthful living the year round, far from the smog-bound city. The clean desert air is cooled by refreshing breezes in summer, and the winter climate is ideal, warm and smog-free.

mate is ideal, warm and smog-free.

THE NEARNESS of the mountains and Lake Arrowhead appeals to summer and winter sports enthusiasts. The Hesperia Golf Club offers year-round golfing, and nearby is the Stoddard Jess Trout Farm, where visitors may catch trout up to 14 inches long. Also, nearby is the Victorville State Fish Hatchery, where trout are raised for restocking California's streams and lakes. Previously, from one to two years were required to bring trout from egg to table size. But now in the warm waters of the desert hatchery, the fish reach catchable size within eight months.

To reach Hesperia, motorists should take Hwy. 66 through Fontana, through the Devore Cutoff and over the San Bernardino Mountains to the road sign pointing east to Hesperia. It's a beautiful drive on a bright day, especially for those interested in the wonderful American desert.

Hesperia's first schoolhouse was this brick building, now long outmoded. Modern new school serves the area.

THE contemporary home of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Neushutz, E. 5401 La Pasada St., stands for perfect housing for this family of four. Richard Poper and William Lockett, AIA, considered carefully the living pattern of the family before the first sketch was ever drawn for their consideration.

The floor plan, in its final form, involves 2200 square feet of interior living space—area that was conceived to integrate perfectly with the outdoors that includes a covered patio-barbecue terrace, a garden and a large swimming pool.

Essentially, the house is shaped in the form of an "L" and is situated on its corner lot so that it "bends" around the pool. Over each section of the "L" the roof slopes toward the streets in dramatic pitches that give the house an outstanding exterior quality. The two pitches meet at a high point over the porch. One part of the house (that facing south) is faced with redwood vertical siding. The other portion of the house is pale yellow stucco. An abundance of tropicals grow under the roof's sheltering overhang, following the contour of the corner is a wide expanse of lawn.

plicity is in keeping with the mood of the house. The material used for this wall is concrete block set in even courses and painted a soft seafoam green, a few values deeper than the walls of the living room. The masonry stretches to the ceiling and stops in an oblique line to conform with the sloped, exposed-beam ceiling. To the left of the fireplace, standing against the masonry wall, is a small organ.

THE CARPET FOR the area is pearl gray with a high and low loop. Carrying the wall color are pleated draperies of seafoam green, a nubby fabric flecked with gold.

Slanting up with the glass wall, the ceiling ascends to its highest point at its juncture with the north wall. At the ceiling level are fixed panels of glass that diffuse a soft light. Dropped below the ceiling level is a mahogany lighting trough that spans the length of the room along the south wall and turns to provide an "eyebrow" over the opening to the living room from the entry.

The south wall is paneled in natural mahogany into which has been recessed open bookshelves. Displayed here in addition to books are golf and bowling trophies. Below the shelves are storage units behind touch-latch doors.

Over the patio is open eggcrate lattice spanned with translucent turquoise plastic. Set into the "L" of the house is a sheltered barbecue-patio that is ideal for al fresco dining. Here

THE ENTRY is floored in waxed red tile, a practical underfooting that saves carpet and at the same time sets the entry apart. From here, one can appreciate the abundance of mahogany paneling that was used throughout the house. The entry opens directly into the living room ahead and leads to the den-dining room to the right, an area that is the real "heart" of the house.

As one walks into the living room, a sweeping view of the yard and pool is apparent through a wall that is almost entirely glass with panels that open to the outdoors. On the right, through an open arch to the living room, is a masonry wall that contains the fireplace. Utterly simple, the off-center fireplace has a low, raised hearth topped with waxed red tile. Void of mantel or other embellishment, its striking simis an outdoor refrigerator and picnic table. Down one level is the pool.

To the right of the entry is the den-dining room, the area that devotes itself to informal at-home hours for the family. Centering the room is a round, plastic-topped table that sets itself readily for dining. The ceiling is an architectural extension of that in the living room, assuming the same slope and similarly spanned with exposed beams. Along one wall is a capacious built-in buffet that eliminates the necessity of a separate, hard-to-clean-around case piece of furniture.

of the house are the bedrooms. Eight-year-old Diana's room is on the corner with windows that overlook both streets. The walls of her room are powder blue.

Maple furniture has been used in Denny's room, which features a scheme of yellow and turquoise. A sandalwood carpet provides a neutral floor covering. The children share a bath that is a warm combination of yellow and sandalwood.

The master bedroom is large with a background of gray, highlighted with accessories of coral. A deep-piled pearl gray shag carpet covers the floor. Windows overlooking the pool are curtained in semi-sheer draperies of coral flecked with metallic gold. Club chairs, ottomans and occasional tables enable the room to fill the role of sitting room (when the children and their friends take over the rest of the house) for partying and televising.

ONE WALL OF the family room is masonry that backs the living room fireplace. On this side is a counter-high, built-in barbecue unit. The floor covering is cork. Opening to this area is the kitchen, a fun-to-cook-in room that is very much a part of the living areas of the house. Separating it from the family room is a serving bar of mahogany topped with heat-and-alcohol proof, mahogany-grained plastic. Four tall bar chairs upholstered in deep red leather and trimmed in brass nails attend the bar, affording a spot for the children to eat lunch as well as being a most functional feature for group entertaining.

Mrs. Neushutz desired to have her sink built into the serving counter between the two areas. Thus, when dishes are cleared off the table or the snack counter, the means of rinsing them is close at hand. Cabinets are all natural mahogany, their service counters topped with seafoam green plastic. The built-in countertop cooking unit is located under a window overlooking the front yard. The rather unique arrangement works well for Mrs. Neushutz who can keep an eye on her cooking and on the children at play in the front yard at the same time. The window is sheltered with white eggcrate lattice that extends out from the window to pattern the sunlight into rectangles of light.

ADJOINING THE kitchen is a large and sunny service area that is a real multiple-purpose room. A wide yellow plastic counter top faces a window overlooking the yard, an ideal place for sewing. Modern laundry facilities are arranged in functional order against one wall. An outside door opens to poolside. A half bath and dressing room of the service area serve swimmers as well as the children who can run in from play without disturbing the rest of the house. In the other wing

luge of righteous indignation from the majority of women in this country. "What a ridiculous idea!" some would undoubtedly exclaim.

The paradox is that by doing this very thing, they would, in turn, elevate their own standing in the eyes of the other sex. When a man is married to a woman who makes him feel inferior (and often unmasculine), he may, if the occasion or opportunity ever presents itself, seek the company of another woman.

THIS "OTHER WOMAN," in the eyes of a wife who is suffering from hurt pride, is an unscrupulous hussy and a home-wrecker. She may conceivably be, but if a few of her feminine tricks were used by the wife, it is more than likely that the husband would never have left home in the first place.

The role a man has to play in almost any walk of life is a tough one. If he is married, he is expected to earn the family living. Except in rare cases of financial necessity, a wife may or may not work outside the home, as she wishes. Her job at home, by almost any standards is easier than that of her husband who must be at work each day at any cost. If what he is doing is appreciated by his wife (and subsequently by the children), his efforts will be worth while. One might almost say that a man is as important as his wife makes him think he is.

THE AGE-OLD question of the double standard is argued by many women who feel that this mode of thinking is unfair—to them. Whether or not women will recognize the fact, there is a double standard because men are men and women are women. A man can go out alone or with other men at night, have a game of pool, or perhaps enjoy a glass of beer in a local bar without causing raised eyebrows. A woman alone or with another woman engaging in similar evening pursuits is risking her reputation and possibly asking for unnecessary trouble. And yet there are those who have the attitude, "If he can do it, why can't I?" They might well ask themselves if their pleasure is actually in doing what men do, or in proving that they can, rightfully, emulate men's privileges and freedom.

Even a man who by nature is intelligent, strong, ambitious and endowed with a sense of humor needs encouragement in order to realize and utilize his full potentialities. Men who lack one or more of these traits must be inspired by the women in their lives in order to make the most of the attributes they do possess.

THERE IS LITTLE incentive for men to be gallant and attentive to women if they (the women) maintain a competitive status in business and social conduct. The happiest individual women are those who make the men in their life feel chivalrous and masculine. Some of the ways in which they accomplish this are simple and easy.

First: They are good listeners. They listen (and it's not always easy!) when a man talks, and are interested in every word he says. They also realize that the more interested they are, the more interesting they become.

Second: If they are wives, they will center their lives around their husbands'. Even if they work, they are aware that his job is more important than theirs because he is the chief breadwinner of the family (rare cases where a wife must work excepted) and his welfare comes first. If they do not have a job outside the home, they plan the day towards the time when he comes home from work. They make him feel welcome the minute he walks in the door, and see that the children react the same way.

Third: They are not influenced by chit chat of those women (many of whom are frustrated and neurotic because of their thinking) who seem determined to prove that "It's a woman's world!"

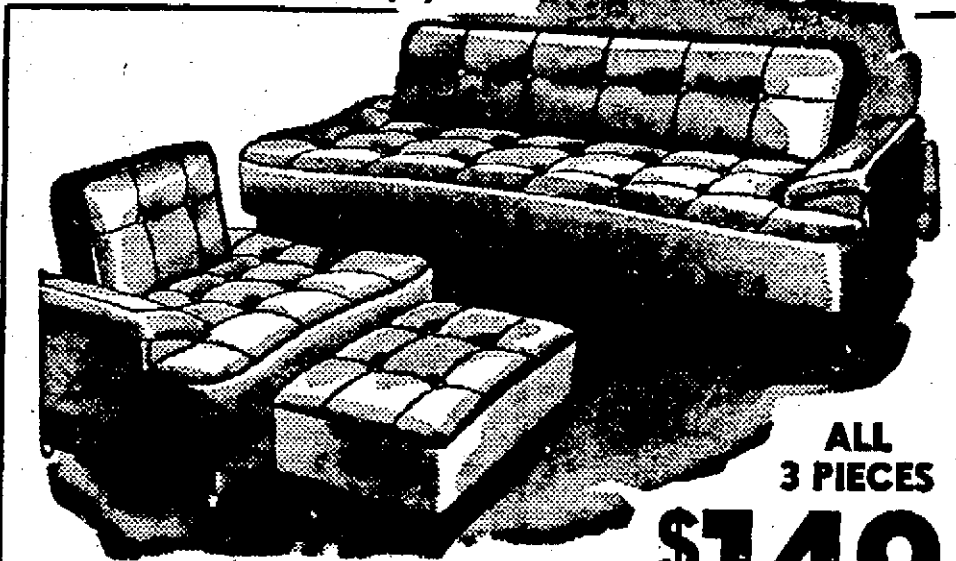

Let's face facts and make it a man's world as it was originally intended to be. After all, putting men on a pedestal will only exalt us in their eyes, and, if we are honest, isn't that what we're striving for in the first place?

They Starve on $60 an Hour

Suzanne Alexander, bathing suit model; Kathy Mariowe, pin-up favorite, and Marilyn Honold, a showgirl, show curves that gained them parts in "The Garment Jungle."

By James Bacon

Associated Press Writer

DIRECTOR Robert Aldrich is all for getting up a fund to send those beanpole New York models to camp.

"These girls actually are starving while earning $60 an hour," quips the director, a little on the over-nourished side himself.

Aldrich recently shot most of the footage for the movie, "The Garment Jungle," in the heart of the big city's vast garment industry along Seventh St.

The script called for a number of sequences involving models in high fashion dress and sexy undress. Aldrich, a stickler for realism as his previous record ("The Big Knife," "Attack") attests, wanted actual New York garment models. But he had to come back to Hollywood and use the local—and better developed—product.

"MODELS ARE an important and glamorous part of the garment industry," he says, "but those New York girls are ridiculous."

"I interviewed dozens and for the first time in my career, I was noticing the clothes instead of the girl. Had I been a buyer for a big department store, this would have been great but I was making a movie that I hoped would draw customers—many of them men—to the box office."

Aldrich said some of the girls, dressed in high fashion, were "passable in a weird sort of way."

"Let's say," he added, "that I looked twice at them."

HE RECALLS one in particular who came to the interview from a high fashion posing session, still wearing a frock that was copied from a Paris creation.

"The girl stood during most of the interview even though I offered her a chair. Finally, I asked her why she didn't sit down. She told me that the dress was so made that it was impossible to sit down."

"It's just for standing up at cocktail parties," Aldrich quoted her and he commented:

"The tragic part of this unbending creation is that the original cost $5,000 and even the copy didn't come cheap."

In "The Garment Jungle" most of the model scenes aren't run-of-the-mill type fashion parades.

ONE KEY SCENE, has veteran actor Lee J. Cobb rip off a model's dress, piece by piece, just to demonstrate the amount of material in it to his skeptical partner.

Through it all, the model is supposed to look blasé and expressionless as if having her clothes torn off in a sewing room happens every day of the week.

"The model winds up in the scene with only her flimsy undergarments," Aldrich informs. "Had I chosen one of the New York models I interviewed, she would have been laughed off the screen. 'I'm sorry to say that too many of them look more like boys than girls in brief attire.'"

Gloria Pall, who once had a local television show where she

THE GERMAN pocket battleship Graf Spee, scuttled by her crew, meets an ignominious ending at sunset Dec. 17, 1939, climaxing one of the most dramatic incidents in the annals of sea warfare, the Battle of the River Plate. One of the first naval engagements of World War II, this historic episode is related for the first time in a new book, "Graf Spee: The Life and Death of a Raider" (Lippincott). Dudley Pope, the author, personally interviewed participants for accurate detail.

BOOK REVIEWS

Man With Winning Ways

THERE ARE THREE of them — two sons and a daughter — when Banker Morrow dies and leaves a fortune. There's Richard, who takes over at his father's desk, and his sister, Kathy, and there's Charles, the eldest.

Charlie's the black sheep and he knows it. He's long since left the Connecticut town where he grew up and he's the New Yorker. He's neck-deep in debt with a new car and reckless living; and, although he's married, he's having girl trouble. So he buzzes into the old home town to see how he made out in his father's will.

Inside his brother's office he makes time with a pretty new secretary, but he doesn't do so well in the will. In fact, he's cut off without a penny. But Charlie has winning ways, and he plays every trick in Richard's office.

The action of "The Day the Money Stopped" (Doubleday, $2.95) all takes place from mid-morning until time out for lunch — which makes the story git up and git. It is the second novel by Brendan Gill, whose other good one was "The Trouble in One House."

AS SALTY as the corned beef carried on whaleships is "Grey Gold" (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $4). This book about whale hunters of the oldtime square-rigged New England whaleships is based by Chester S. Howland on the actual diary kept by a young and enthusiastic lad on his first sea voyage around Cape Horn to the South Pacific. The diarist was John Baker, an Indian boy adopted by a whaleman. The voyage lasted four years, most time being spent in search of the great sperm whales, and one stirring adventure follows another in the writing. And in case some of the talk of the sailing men becomes a little obscure to land-lubbers (or even present-day seagoing folk) there is a carefully compiled glossary of whaling terms in the back of the book.

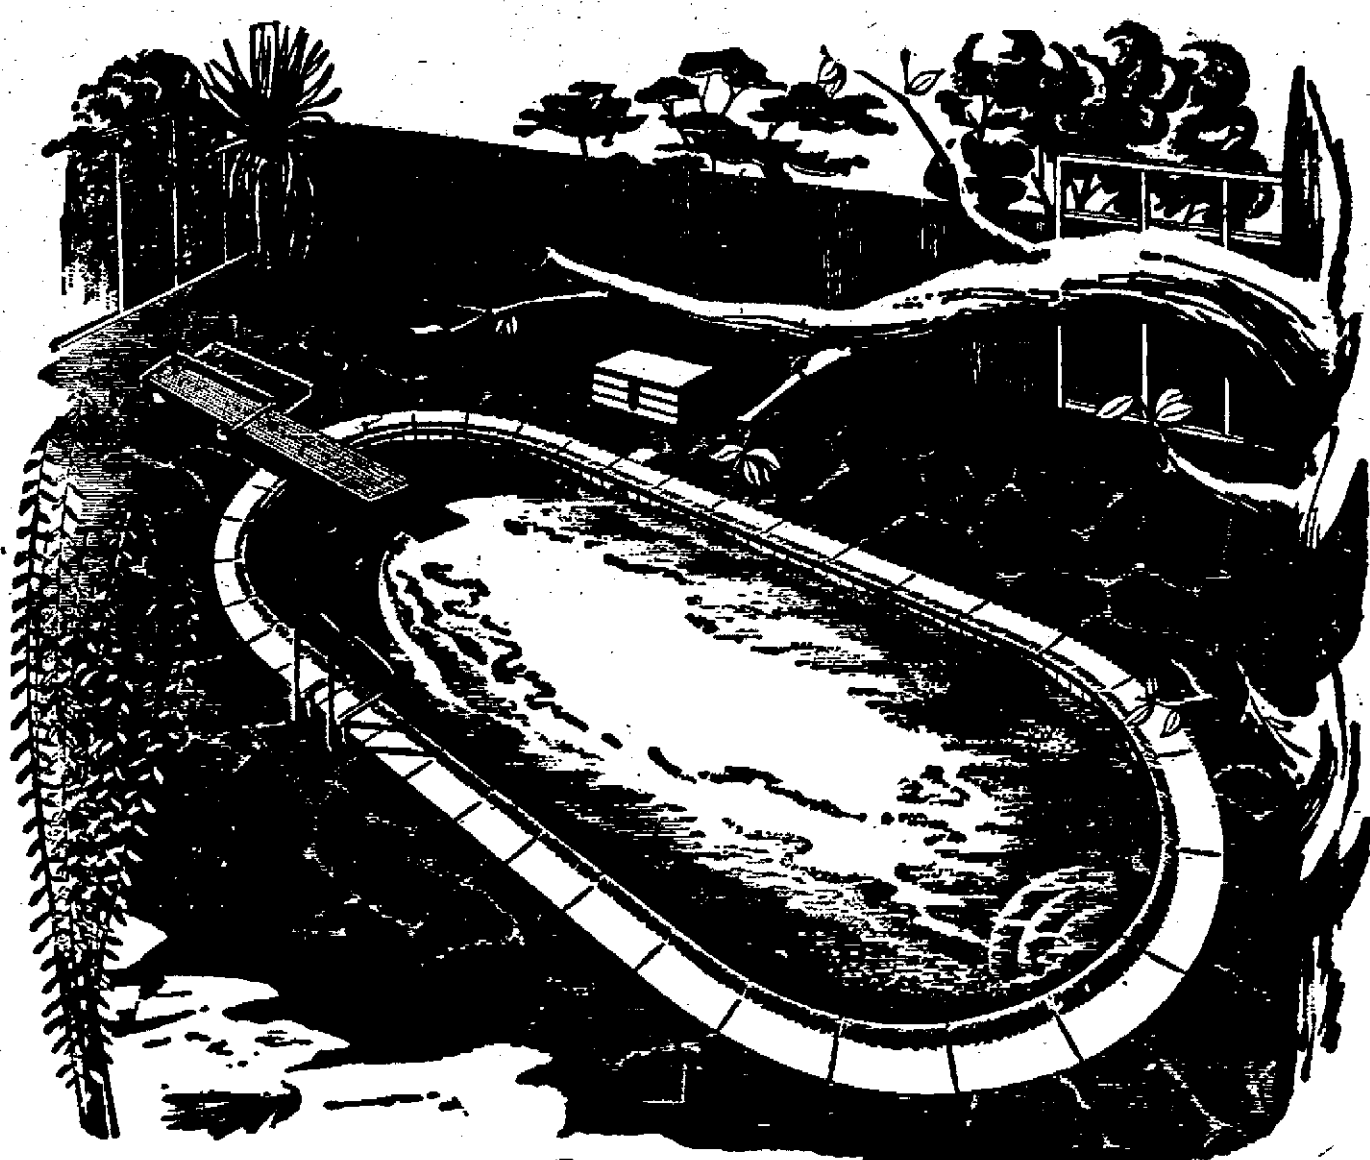

BOO HAS GROWN UP. She worries about boys, dates, proms and formals, and how to greet a foreign dignitary. But at heart she stays a little girl — the charming, irresistible little girl of Margaret Lee Runbeck's "Our Miss Boo." The new volume, written by Miss Runbeck shortly before her death, is "Our Miss Boo Is 16" (Houghton Mifflin, $3.50). In its understanding of the problems of teenagers, their desperate need to cross the chasm to adults and to life, the book is outstanding. It also has wisdom, love and humor.

VISITORS TO EUROPE in 1957 should not pass up "Handy Guide to Western Germany" (William Sloane Associates, $4.95). Compact and up-to-the-minute in its contents this handy little book, in the words of the publisher, gives English-speaking visitors to the German Federal Republic a picture of the world in which they will find themselves on crossing the frontier, and enables them to select their routes and destinations according to their tastes and interests. Written and compiled by Bernd Boehle, and printed in Western Germany, it contains just about every grain of information the tourist will need from where and how to go, where to stay, what to see, and various customs and regulations. There are more than 400 photos and illustrations, including more than a dozen relief maps in color.

IF THE POINTER on your bathroom scales moves past the mark where you want it to stop, it might be well to get yourself a copy of "How to Lose Weight, the Quick, Safe and Easy Way" (Random House, 95c). Written by Donald Cooley, an authority on diets, this handy pocket guide discusses the need for diets, supplementary diets, speed-reducing diets, with not-too-well-known facts about dieting tossed in for good measure. It also tells what foods to eat to get wanted vitamins and minerals and, best of all, it includes a complete calorie counter.

PRESSURES of the United States Government to move Osceola and his Seminole tribe to an Arkansas reservation, lead to the last-ditch stand by the Indians in their loved "grassy waters" of the Florida Everglades, related by Frank G. Slaughter in "The Warrior" (Doubleday, $3.50). Interlacing the historical account of Indian subjugation and the Seminole War of 1835 is the love story of Charles Paige and Marie Campbell, wife of the Army's hated Maj. Alan Campbell.

Out on Bond

By Blaine Nels Simons

MOST PEOPLE believe that a criminal suspect, upon being jailed, sends up the immediate cry, "Get me my lawyer." These suspects do need a lawyer and do try to get one as soon as possible, but it is slightly incorrect to say that obtaining counsel is their very first move.

Mickey Cohen is credited with having fittingly described the first words of the jailed suspect when he growled, "Get me my bondsman," some years ago.

The lawyer will get the writ of habeas corpus that sends the suspect free, but it is the bondsman who provides the where-withal that is first needed—money.

A THUG IS CAUGHT in the act of robbing a gas station. Another, wanted for some time on a warrant, is finally picked up by the police. A third is found loitering near a bank with a gun in his pocket. A righteous citizen who had "one for the road" is picked up for drunk driving while going the wrong way on a one-way street.

All of these persons have two things in common: They're going to jail and they're going to want to get out of jail. Some of these crimes are, however, more serious than others and so the amount of bail recommended by the district attorney for each will vary. But whether the bail set be $200 or $20,000, the yearning of all prisoners is the same—they want to be "sprung."

At this point the bail bondsman steps into the picture. Through him the jailed suspect will be set free until time of trial or sentencing. The bondsman is, in effect, an insurance salesman. The man whose freedom has suddenly been taken from him is faced, for example, with getting a bond of $1,000. Few will have this amount to put up in cash to secure their temporary freedom. For, say, $100 he will provide a bond to the court in the amount of $1,000 which insures that the prisoner will be in court at the time of trial.

This sounds like a good idea to the alleged lawbreaker, so he puts up the $100 and walks out of jail on bail. In a day or two he will come to court for arraignment; the bond continues in full force.

A FEW WEEKS LATER the trial takes place and again the accused must be present. If he is found "not guilty" the bond is exonerated. If, however, he is found guilty, the time for sentence is generally put over to allow probation investigation. Again the bond is continued in full force and effect without additional premium. After eventual sentence, the bond is canceled.

A $100 premium may be for a $1,000 policy that will be in effect for perhaps only a few days or a month at most.

Sound like an easy way to make money? Sometimes the premiums run into the thousands of dollars, sometimes as low as $25.

Customers? There are always plenty of these—the jails are full of them.

Money for premiums? It's always cash on the barrel head, so there's no problem there.

Why, then, isn't everybody getting rich by being a bail bondsman? Look in the classified section of your phone book for a clue. You'll find very, very few bail bondsmen listed in comparison to the other businesses and professions. It isn't because the business is a new one, and the "word" hasn't gotten around yet, for bail bonds are almost as old as crime itself. The reason is, simply, that financially, the business is perhaps the most difficult and frustrating of all enterprises.

ENTER THE BONDSMAN'S first problem. He is summoned by a suspect who, 99 times out of 100, he has never seen nor heard of before. The man wants out—fast. If one bondsman doesn't take the business there are others who can be summoned by the prisoner. Again, let's say, the bond is $1,000. The jail guest can raise the $100 premium. But there is still the gap of $900 between the amount of the premium and the total amount of the bond.

The bondsman in a few brief hours must decide whether he

—Drawing by H. Parker Markle

ON THE TIBER

Passengers arriving in Rome by air need have no fear of being stranded homeless along the Tiber. A new electrical board at Ciampino Airport, reports Pan American World Airways, flashes room availability at 90 Roman hostels. Name, address and phone number of each hotel appear on the board followed by a red or green light. If the light is green, a room can be reserved at once through an attendant in charge.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

My son is in the Army and is being transferred to Germany. Can you suggest any interesting places for him to go on his leaves?

ARMY SPECIAL SERVICES maintains a regular travel bureau on this sort of thing. Or he can go to the German Travel Bureau. There's one in every railroad station.

Personally, I like Austria in the Tyrol. Catch the Paris-Arlesberg Express over to Innsbruck and work out of there. Every Austrian town has a local travel bureau, too. They make hotel and train reservations and probably are the most efficient travel bureaus I ever saw. American Express in every town has tours. And there are countless inexpensive tours especially for the Army.

We will be in Mexico in February. Is it the bull-fight season then?

THIS IS THE SEASON for the bull fights in Mexico. In Mexico City your hotel will get tickets for you. It is an easy taxi ride getting to the ring. But, getting out! I've spent over an hour wrestling for cab space.

My husband will be retiring at the end of the year. Do you know of any places, not necessarily out of the country, where our small income will go farther than in a large city?

THE HARIAN PUBLICATIONS, Greenlawn, N. Y., puts out a book called "Where to Retire on a Small Income." I haven't read all the fine print yet but it describes retirement areas in the East, the Gulf States, the Southwest, California, the Pacific Northwest and Hawaii, Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico.

In what section of Madrid shall we concentrate our shopping activities? We don't have too much time there.

THE BEST STREET to walk in in Madrid is Jose Antonio or what is called the Gran Via, the Fifth Avenue of Spain. With a new 150-ton dragon imported from the Orient, San Francisco's Chinatown will mark New Year Feb. 1-3.

Year of the Rooster

ALWAYS particularly fascinating to the Occidental eye, San Francisco's Chinatown, a transplant from the Orient, will be even more colorful when the Year of the Rooster, 4455 on the Chinese lunar calendar, is ushered in on Feb. 1.

The celebration in San Francisco, southern portal of the Redwood Empire, will be a three-day affair, and plans are in the making for a festival which promises to eclipse all previous Chinatown presentations.

Even a new dragon, a synthetic beast 150 feet long, has been manufactured in Hong Kong for the glittering night parade to be held on Feb. 2. Nearly 100 men will furnish the motive power to wind the dragon along from the City Hall past the Street of Virtue and Harmony and the Lane of Golden Chrysanthemums to Grant Ave.

CHINESE DANCING and music will be featured on an outdoor stage to be erected in the heart of teeming Chinatown, and plans are also afoot to produce at least one of the ancient, formalized Chinese plays beloved by the oldsters who still pad softly around the quarter as they dream of Old Cathay.

Strictly American will be another facet of the celebration—the coronation of the Chinese New Year Festival Queen on Feb. 2. The loveliest girls in Chinatown are vying for the honor.

ALSO OF THE Occident, but contributing to the gala parade, will be units from all branches of the armed services, augmented by Chinese marching units, bands and drum corps and an array of colored floats.

was billed as "Voluptua," got the job. She measures 38-23-35

Aldrich had to conduct the search for models all over again when the company returned to Hollywood.

"It was a pleasure," he confesses. "There was not one sunken chest, not one hollow cheek and not one applicant carrying her femininity in a hatbox."

Aldrich is not prejudiced against New York as such. He is of the Aldrich family, a nephew of Winthrop W. Aldrich, former ambassador to the Court of St. James. He also is related to the Rockefellers.

HE BLAMES New York's worship of the starved look on a snob aping of Paris fashions.

"There's some excuse for the malnutrition of Paris models. As children they actually starved through the Nazi occupation but these New York girls deliberately live on a diet of broiled lettuce and coffee."

However, he adds, there is always that envied exception.

"We bought lunch or dinner for most of them and there were a couple who ate like food was going to be repealed. The rest snarled at them."

Aldrich, patting his own roundness, smiled:

"I hate people who can eat like that and never gain an ounce."

Aldrich, maybe with a little tongue-in-cheek, sees mankind affected by the conflict between the New York fashion model concept of femininity and the Hollywood promotion of the full-bodied types such as Marilyn Monroe.

"I CAN'T see either one of them pulling a covered wagon out of the mud, as our pioneer women often did, but I'll bet Marilyn could pull it a little further than some of those 98-pound wonders I saw in New York."

"Don't forget the sons who have won our wars came from mothers who ate steak for breakfast."

The Hollywood girls who landed the model jobs in the movie are all steak eaters. They include Kathy Marlowe, a pin-up favorite; June Tolley, a starlet; Marilyn Honold, a statuesque brunette who works as a showgirl at the Moulin Rouge night club at night, and Suzanne Alexander, a real model. Of her, Aldrich comments:

"She models bathing suits—not dresses that won't bend in the middle."

Entry Blanks at SAFEGWAY

FOLLOW THESE EASY CONTEST RULES:

- 1 Add a last line to the following jingle:
On UNITED AIR LINES please fly me, To the HAWAIIAN VILLAGE in Waikiki, If SKYLARK BREAD will pay my way.
 - 2 Use an official entry blank or one side of a piece of paper.
 - 3 Enclose one Skylark or Slender-Way Bread wrapper with each entry. (Facsimiles may be used if you wish.) Mail to:
Contest Editor, Box 466, San Francisco 1, California.
 - 4 Three trips for two to Hawaii via UNITED AIR LINES (including 9 days at the Hawaiian Village Hotel) will be awarded every two weeks over a period of six weeks, based on entries postmarked before midnight Saturday of each two week period. The bi-weekly contests will close February 9, February 23 and March 9, 1957. Winners will be announced two weeks after the close of each weekly contest. All transportation costs from your home and meals while enroute to Hawaii are paid. Meals in Hawaii not included.
 - 5 Contest is open now... enter as often as you wish.
 - 6 Any adult may compete, except employees and their families of Fairfax Baking Company and its advertising agents, or employees and their families of stores where Skylark Bread is sold.
 - 7 Entries will be judged on the basis of originality, sincerity, and aptness of thought. Judges decisions will be final.
 - 8 Duplicate prizes will be awarded in the event of ties. No entries will be returned. Entries, contents and ideas therein become the property of Fairfax Baking Company.
 - 9 All winners will be notified by mail shortly after the close of the contest. Winners' list will be posted at stores selling Skylark Bread 6 weeks after the close of the contest.
 - 9 Fairfax Baking Company will pay all state and local excise taxes, but will not pay any state or federal income taxes.
- No purchase is required. Not necessary to be present to win.
Contest subject to all federal, state and local regulations.
Contest area does not include N. Y., N. J. and Montana.

Lt. (j.g.) R. T. Getman (front) commands this crew on a Pacific atoll. One man, standing watch, missed photo.

This Is Hawaii?

By Joseph Grant

Associated Press Writer

FRENCH Frigate Shoals, a collection of coral specks in the Pacific, is officially a part of the Hawaiian Islands — but there are no waving palms or hula girls.

In fact, there are no trees or girls at all — just 15 Coast Guardsmen living on a coral landing strip smaller than the flight deck of an aircraft carrier.

They measure time by airplane arrivals.

A plane brings mail and supplies every two weeks. Twenty-six planes make a year, the length of a tour of duty on the shoals.

The chief activity is growing beards.

French Frigate Shoals lie 450 miles northwest of Honolulu. There are nine coral spits in the group.

A FRENCH EXPLORER found them in 1786 by almost banging his frigate into them. He gave them the name that has stuck.

A few birds and seals were the sole inhabitants — until World War II.

The Japanese were the first to use them during the war, when they launched a nuisance raid over Honolulu with a patrol plane refueled at the shoals by a submarine.

As a U.S. fleet moved toward the Battle of Midway in June, 1942, Adm. Chester Nimitz sent two destroyers ahead to check the shoals.

They found and frightened off a Japanese submarine, which could have spotted and reported the American fleet. The fleet went on to blast the Japanese navy at Midway in a battle considered a major turning point in the Pacific war.

LATER THE NAVY set up a landing strip, bulldozed out of coral, although personnel lived in barges anchored offshore. It was used only briefly and soon the shoals were turned back to the birds.

In 1944, the Coast Guard took over and established a loran (long range aid to navigation) transmission station.

The current loran base, on which is known as Tern Island, was built in 1952.

It isn't much, unless you like solitude.

THE COOK, Glenn Bashman, from Holland, Mich., helps break monotony by making pastel-colored mashed potatoes with cake dye.

"We usually have them blue," he explained during our visit, "but I wouldn't want you people to think I'm crazy, so I made them green."

Commanding—and only—officer is 24-year-old Lt. (j.g.) Robert T. Getman, whose wife Diane lives in Ilion, N. Y.

Second in command is Boat-swain Billie D. Archer from Eureka, Calif.

"I used to wonder, when I first got there, what was going on in the rest of the world when our radio went dead," Archer said.

"But after a few months I decided no matter what happened, it wouldn't make much difference here anyhow."

LIVING QUARTERS are comfortable and immaculate. Lt. Getman and Bos'n Archer each has his own room with private shower.

Enlisted men live two or three to a large room.

Motion pictures are shown free every night and Coast Guard supply headquarters in Honolulu fills every food request that cook Bashman submits.

No hard liquor is allowed on the Shoals, but the men can have beer.

"People see pictures of a Pacific atoll with coconut trees, beautiful lagoons and lovely girls," Bashman said. "We get paid to stay here — we have atolls and beautiful lagoons—and none of us even miss the coconut trees."

"But no girls!"

can write the bond. He can make only a summary check of the man's assets. He can call the man's wife, his place of employment or his attorney to verify his trustworthiness. As those seeking his help are not always the "solid citizen" type the bondsman, in writing the bond, more often than not, has shaky security for the balance in case the suspect "skips" before trial. He is betting $900 (in our example) that the man will show up in court each time he is called there, as against only $100 put on the line.

AND DON'T THINK these persons bailed out always show up in court. Bondsmen would quail at the thought that anyone would think so. If they don't show up the bond is forfeited to the court and the bondsman pays the entire amount of the bond. In our case then, he would have lost $900. It will take nine of these premiums to make up for this one loss.

Even the confirmed bettor of horse races wouldn't wager at these odds. But the bondsman would because that is his business. He can then only go after the person who has "skipped out" and attempt either to bring him back or collect the money lost. Doing this, however, entails more time and expense and, if the suspect doesn't want to go back, a certain degree of danger! Every bondsman, at some time or other, has a pot shot taken at him by a "skipper" who is reluctant to return to jail. Thus, even if the man is brought back, or the money collected, the total loss will not be completely made up.

IT'S NERVE - WRACKING, too. At every call of the courts' criminal calendars you will find bail bondsmen standing in the rear of the courtroom. They are there to see if their bets on human beings have paid off. They may have a dozen or more persons due in court in whom they have had the faith to place bonds. For days on end they may click off a 100 per cent average on faithful clients. Then may come a drought where some fail to show and cannot be found.

Someone once said that bail bondsmen have no homes. The statement must have been made by a bondsman for they know this as a truth. The layman has only to consider when the heaviest traffic for a bondsman will occur—at night and on weekends. So it is that at these times the bondsman must be in his office to handle "the trade." If, therefore, he spends his days in court, chasing "skippers" and going over his books, and his nights and weekends at the office, there is little time left for relaxation at home.

HE NEEDS MONEY, too. If his first $1,000 bond goes awry and he must kick $900 of this to the court, he'll need something in the bank as a starter. Then there are the usual items of office rent and overhead and family needs. These have a way of adding up, too. Just when he thinks he has it "made" for the month, that nice appearing old gentleman he bailed out a couple nights before high-tails it for South America and drops a card to say he's sorry. So much for the profits that month, and so much for a permanent feeling of financial security.

A strange and fascinating business, bailbonding. On top of its other problems it calls for the bondsman being a confirmed gambler in human nature. The odds are always about 10-1. There is always only one person to each race—the individual bailed. There is no win, place or show. It's win or lose and nothing else.

CAMERA ANGLES

Put Wings on Your Camera

By the Shutterbug

THE OTHER DAY we spotted this item in a winter vacation booklet put out by one of the nation's leading commercial airlines: "There's room beneath your seat for briefcase, vanity, or camera."

But we're willing to wager that if you're aloft with your camera, you won't leave it idling "beneath your seat" for long! There's just too much excellent picture material around that no self-respecting snapshooter will want to miss. Rivers, mountains, massive cloud formations, dams, bridges, harbors, farmlands—an everchanging kaleidoscope of views and patterns invites your camera to action as you cruise the sky.

We'll concede that a camera with a good fast lens and a highspeed shutter enjoys a definite advantage. But, under ideal conditions and at relatively high altitudes, even a simple camera can take memorable pictures from the air in both color and black-and-white.

HERE ARE A FEW basic points to remember whenever you use your camera in flight: (1) Be sure you don't let your camera touch any part of the plane, or vibration will blur the picture. (2) Minimize the effect of the plane's speed and motion by shooting "oblique" views, with the camera pointed ahead of the plane or to the rear rather than straight down or straight out the side. (3) To avoid reflection, hold your camera at an angle to the window or shield the lens. And (4) Use a filter to cut through atmospheric haze.

met recently at the Petroleum Club to install officers and award trophies to the following members for prize-winning films: 16-mm. Kyle Holmes, "Whispering Sands"; Louella Shoden, "Portrait of Long Beach"; George Cushman, "While Dinner Waits." 8-mm. Warren Nash, "Frustration"; Ray Staber, "This Man's Castle"; Martin Stange, "Catalina Holiday." Cushman sound trophy, Kyle Holmes; Val Pope award, John-Lloyd; Lloyd trophy, Warren Nash; sweepstakes and past presidents' award, Louella Shoden.

WINNERS OF THE Long Beach Camera Guild's recent colored slide contest are Murray Shaner, first; Hazel Vosper, second; Glenn Sieben, third; Oren Totten, Walt Hunsaker, Don Hayward, Virginia Callender, honorable mention. Frank Lindgren, a founder of the Guild, judged the competition.

THERE'S ADDED convenience for the amateur photographer in the compact new two-carton pack now being used for three favorite Kodak films — Verichrome Pan, Panatomic-X, and Tri-X in the 127, 120 and 620 sizes. A simple twist separates the two individual cartons joined by concealed, non-defacing tape. While the amateur snapshooter may buy both cartons of film, or only one if he prefers, the new double packaging is planned to serve as a reminder to buy that extra roll of film which is always so handy to have. The two-carton pack or a separated individual roll will fit easily into pocket, purse or gadget bag. The roll films are available at Kodak dealers.

PET PARADE

Rebecca, Panama parrot, keeps things lively and jolly around home of the Dr. D. J. Crawford family.

By Eleanor A. Price

RECENTLY this column carried an article titled "Pets Are Good Medicine." The response from those in the medical profession seems to indicate that pets are not only good therapy, they are often the ounce of prevention that is better than a pound of cure.

The writer talked at some length with Mrs. Bess Crawford, school nurse, whose husband is Dr. Donald J. Crawford, 5221 Arbor Rd. Both Dr. and Mrs. Crawford are devoted to animals and find that pets keep them so wholesomely occupied that more pressing problems come into better focus.

"We like canaries," Mrs. Crawford said, "because they radiate happiness and well being. We have 35 canaries and are much interested in breeding for lovely song and plumage."

THE CRAWFORDS also have 15 finches and find them very companionable and adaptable. In fact, centuries ago children kept goldfinches as pets and tethered them by the leg with string.

"Our Panama parrot, Rebecca, adds a dash of humor to the home. Her chatter is funny, her actions of joy when we come home from work are still funnier, and her intense enjoyment of TV is even funnier yet. She prefers Western and Spanish music and often tries to screech out her own melody."

THE CRAWFORDS are teaching their children, Cissy (Carol), age 4½ years, and Jimbo (James), age 3, to be kind to Rebecca and never to tease her, for parrots have formidable claws and beaks and can make their displeasure known.

"But Rebecca is very fond of the children and can imitate their voices more easily than ours," Mrs. Crawford said.

Doves and pheasants are also in evidence at the Crawford home. There is much satisfaction in watching eggs hatch and then seeing the young develop, and the Crawfords believe that the cooing of doves gives a charm to the garden.

Another feathered favorite of the Crawfords is the Cochen bantie. They have three and find them clean and quick. The birds roost naturally in the trees, and have an endearing way of following the Crawfords around home environments.

OF COURSE, the Crawfords have a dog, Black Dahlia, a miniature schnauzer. The Crawfords believe that dogs are particularly fine as gloom chasers and as pets for children because a dog's love has no strings attached.

The Crawfords own several aquariums of tropical fish and are highly in favor of fish as a hobby. "And we don't overlook the good qualities of the children's two tiny terrapin turtles," they say. "Their names are Hustle and Bustle. Rightfully treated, turtles show their friendliness by sticking their heads out of their shells and waddling about or climbing small sloping rocks."

How to Plant a Bare-Root Rose

FEBRUARY brings us into the big planting season for all bare root stock. Today, I want to pass along a few suggestions on the planting and care of bare root roses. Inasmuch as approximately 90 per cent of our residents in this area are newcomers to Southern California, we must keep in mind that growing conditions locally are altogether different from those in other parts of the nation.

Because of our mild climate, the rose must be treated as an evergreen shrub. This is true because, botanically speaking, the rose has no dormant season in local gardens. Even during January and February, our so-called "dormant" months, we find our roses swelling their new bud growth.

Acknowledging this fact as we must and adding to this the fact that our roses here give us at least nine months of bloom each year, we find that the only way to control the life of the rose is by intelligent planting, pruning, feeding, irrigating and spraying.

THE ROSE, like any other shrub or tree, becomes a permanent feature of your garden once it is planted. This in turn, means that any extra attention you give to your bare root roses as you set them out in the garden will pay big dividends in the years to come.

In selecting your roses, use only No. 1 stock and you can very easily tell a No. 1 rose—it must have at least three or four good strong healthy canes. If you are a bargain hunter, don't expect too much from bargain-priced roses. They are usually very disappointing in performance.

I like to prepare a new rose bed about three months in advance but at this late date we can't do this. Advance preparation eliminates the possibility of burning bare root stock so be sure in setting out your bare root roses that you refrain from the use of fertilizers around the roots of the shrub.

THERE ARE A NUMBER of good planting mixes on the market that will produce excellent results in planting all bare root stock. These are usually a combination of equal parts leaf mold and peat moss. You can make your own mix if you so desire. Mix the leaf mold and peat in equal amounts and use this one part mix to two parts soil.

In addition to using this planting mix at time of planting, it is a good idea to dust the entire rose bed with soil sulphur using this at the rate of three pounds to 100 sq. ft. Soil sulphur is not a plant food. It is a soil conditioner used to counteract the alkalinity of the soil but it is just as important as any plant food.

Coming now to the actual planting of the rose, if you will hold the rose in front of you, you will notice that the roots are at an angle of approximately 40 degrees. This is the posi-

Beautiful, healthy blooms, like these of Spartan, a floribunda, result from proper plantings, good care.

Dorothy Digs

And now let's talk about roses. It's time to prune. Regardless of what kind of a season we are having, it's a pretty sound guess that between now and February 15 the danger of heavy frost will be past and your rose bushes will be far enough advanced in growth for you to get the greatest selection of the best buds to retain in order to promote new growth.

After you prune, the most important thing you do for the entire season is to give the bushes a thorough clean-up spray with a lime-sulphur-oil emulsion. This is both an insecticide and a fungicide and breaks down overwintering insect life as well as spores of such fungus diseases as rust, blackspot and mildew.

tion the rose was in when growing in the field and this is the position it should be in when planted in your garden.

DIG THE HOLE large enough to accommodate the roots (approximately 18 inches wide and 18 inches deep) and make a small hill or mound the top or apex of which should be just about one inch below the surface of the bed. Place the roots of the rose over this mound, draping the roots equally around it. Don't ever cut the roots on your bare root roses unless they are injured. If one or two of the roots are a little too long to fit in the hole, simply bend the roots around the bottom of the mound.

As you set the rose over the mound, be sure that the main bud or union is ABOVE the surface of the bed. This is all-important and might be of interest to those of you who come from other parts of the country where winters are very severe. In those places, the rose is planted with the main bud below the surface to protect it against freezing.

As you fill in the soil over the roots, stamp this down firmly with your feet, being careful that you don't injure the roots with the edge of your shoe. This stamping is very important. Most failures with home gardeners in setting out bare root roses is due to the fact that the soil is not tamped firmly over the roots. A rose that is properly planted cannot be pulled from its position without using some real effort. This is a good rule to follow in planting your roses.

FILL UP THE HOLE with soil to about three inches from the surface then fill up the remainder with water repeating this watering three times as the water drains off. This will wash the soil in around the roots eliminating any air pockets that might exist.

Following this, the hole is filled up with soil to the level of the rose bed. Basins around roses are frowned upon by better gardeners unless the roses are planted on a slope. Basins never look neat and are not necessary. Irrigation by means of a portable sprinkler will produce excellent results.

Until the roses have become established and have produced their new growth, they should not be allowed to dry out. On the other hand, they must not be kept continually wet. After the first soaking at time of planting, water only as the soil begins to dry out.

DON'T FORGET DEPARTMENT . . . Don't forget that this is the best time to do all bare root planting including roses, fruit trees, bush berries, grapes and strawberries. . . . Don't forget to prune your deciduous trees immediately if you haven't already done so. . . . Don't forget this is the best time of the year to do most heavy planting. If you are a new home owner do as much basic planting now as you possibly can. . . . Don't forget the garden section next Sunday and don't forget that the man who goes to church on Sunday will enjoy his garden better on Monday.

Caricature by Milt Reppert
LEON GRIVEL
A New Policy

IN RECENT months, hundreds of guests put this question to Leon Grivel, owner of the unique Gay 90's Cafe,
2508 Palm Dr., Signal Hill:
"Why don't you serve luncheons up here? We'd just love to bring our friends and club groups."

Well, sir, Grivel heeded the call. So last Thursday the Gay
90's Cafe inaugurated a policy of serving a continental buffet
luncheon Mondays through Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.
The guests are offered a lavish spread of 15 different fresh salads, cold meats, relishes, cheeses, coffee and choice of a different hot entree daily or dessert. The price is $1.25 a person.

The entrees include such delicious things as chicken a la king, round of beef, French fried shrimp, scallops or short-ribs. The guests receive the salads and relishes at a serving counter, with waitresses serving the entrees at the individual tables. Lively entertainment is provided by the cafe's two 60-year-old nickelodeons. The guests receive additional entertainment merely by strolling around the large sawdust-floored dining room admiring the authentic turn-of-the-century relics and gimcracks which adorn the walls.

DINNERS ARE SERVED
starting at 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays. Among the fine entrees are tender 12-ounce
Kansas City steak, $2.25; sweet broiled lobster, $2.45; 14-ounce
marinated Spencer steak, $2.75;
frog legs, $2.75; shrimp, $1.75,
and fried chicken, $2.25. All are generous dinners including second helpings of French onion soup, chilled relishes, tossed green salads, spaghetti or French fries, hot rolls, coffee and peanuts (you may toss the shells on the floor).

Good natured Jerry Praun does a bang-up job every night on the piano and crashing calliope.

HOW TO BUY A USED CAR WITH SAFETY AND SATISFACTION

1. Buy from a dealer with a reputation over the years for fair dealing.
2. Check the car's history — See its maintenance record.
3. Check the car inside, outside and under for marks of flood, wreck or abuse.
4. Consider condition and extra equipment along with price and compare with others of same make and year.
5. Find out how much for your car but consider the difference rather than the allowance alone.
6. Read the guarantee and see your dealer's service facilities.
7. Figure the interest on any unpaid balance.

Because each car has been thoroughly conditioned and safely checked and because we keep only the finest of new trade-ins for retailing, we believe you will always feel that the used car you purchased here was one of the best buys you ever made.

Junior League Stocks Bargain Hunting Paradise!

PREPARING TO LEAVE for Municipal Auditorium with still another load of rummage are members of the Junior League of Long Beach who have been working tirelessly during the past few weeks in anticipation of their annual rummage sale next Saturday.

unday. Filling the station wagon with an assortment of pictures, furniture and lamps to be offered during the all-day sale are, from left, Mmes. Fred Wise, Martin Paquette, Fey Looman and Louis Stouss. Sale hours are 9 a. m. to 9 p. m.

Hundreds Expected at Annual Sale

Basing expectations on last year's record sale which netted Junior League of Long Beach almost $10,000 for use in its philanthropic pursuits, the group's fifth annual rummage sale next Saturday promises to be an even greater success. Doors open at 9 a. m. and close at 9 p. m.

During the 12-hour period, hundreds of persons are expected to take part in the gala day of bargain hunting, for who knows what might be found? To date sale items include pictures, books, pots and pans, lamps, towels, jewelry, old and new clothing for men, women and children; perfume, garden tools, furniture, shoes, hats, toys, curtains and hundreds of other fascinating items.

Varied Sources

And where does the rummage come from? All members are required to turn in at least $35 worth of merchandise. Merchants in all sections of Long Beach generously donate articles from their stores and storerooms. Friends and relatives are urged to clean out closets, and it is from long-packed boxes that items for the antique department — silver, glass and other odds and ends — make their appearance.

All members of the Junior League donate four full days to sorting, marking and working in preparation for the sale, representing 3100 hours of work. In charge this year is Mrs. John B. Halbert Jr., ways and means chairman. Assisting are Mmes. James Fletcher, Volney McCutchan, William McMullen, Carl Speth, R. O. Gould, William Gearhart and Gordon Hayer. Again this year 65 husbands of members have volunteered their help on the day of the sale and in handling and hauling heavier articles.

Dental Interest

Junior League projects which benefit from the sale include the Children's Dental Health Center and the Children's Dental Foundation, Inc., which are supported by the League in cooperation with community spirited groups and individuals. Mrs. Robert Sully, president, notes that the Dental Health Center has been in operation for 21 years.

While the annual sale represents a great deal of effort on behalf of Junior Leaguers, they receive their reward through the children made happier and healthier with proper dental care.

IN ADDITION to all its other advantages, membership in Junior League of Long Beach assures an annual closet cleaning! Here Mrs. Wilbur Ingram, right, and Mrs. Walter Landis sort through articles of clothing to reach their goal of $35 worth of rummage required from each member for the annual rummage sale Saturday at Municipal Auditorium. Hundreds of persons are expected to participate in the annual Children's Dental Health Center benefit.

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, JAN. 27, 1957 SECTION W

Concert Date Told

Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra's second concert in the season series of four, will be heard Feb. 10 in Municipal Auditorium. The Long Beach Auxiliary to Southern California Symphony Association, sponsoring the series, has arranged a pre-performance salon Feb. 8 at the Lafayette Hotel Cavalier Room.

Departing from the usual mid-morning salon at Assistance League Clubhouse, members and guests are hidden to the Feb. 8 event. Buffet dinner at 7:30 p. m. will follow a 6:30 cocktail hour. William C. Hartshorn will discuss forthcoming concert numbers during the program.

Dr. Eduard van Beinum will step to the podium Feb. 10 for his first concert in Long Beach as new permanent conductor and music director for the orchestra. The distinguished Dutch musician, one of the world's foremost conductors, succeeds Alfred Wallenstein as sixth permanent conductor since formation of the orchestra in 1919 in Los Angeles.

Featured performer on the Feb. 10 concert will be youthful keyboard artist John Browning, winner of national and international competition awards.

Mrs. Hope Is Scheduled to Speak Here

Mrs. Bob Hope, chairman of Holy Family Adoption Service, will be guest speaker Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Leslie Esposito when the Long Beach Auxiliary to Holy Family Service meets for its annual tea. The time will be from 2 until 4 o'clock.

Members will hear what great strides have been made in Long Beach concerning adoptions and what tangible accomplishments the Long Beach Auxiliary to Holy Family Adoption Service has made toward community welfare.

Mrs. William Wagner, chairman of the Auxiliary, will welcome new members Mrs. Andrew J. DePaolo, Mrs. Joseph Felis, Mrs. Anthony Hill, Mrs. Stanley Brooks, Mrs. John Kinkella, Mrs. H. L. Shipola.

Mrs. Hope, as generous in nature as her famed husband, has this Adoption Service very close to her heart and has given endless hours of her energy to its growth and success.

GOP Women to Attend Parley

California's old Spanish days will provide a colorful background of hospitality when members of the California Federation of Republican Women welcome their national federation president, Mrs. Peter Gibson of Michigan, at their two-day biennial convention in Santa Barbara opening Jan. 30 at the Miramar Hotel.

Reservations for federation members from the Long Beach area have been handled by Mrs. Hazel Merrill who reports that 40 members will journey to the Santa Barbara conclave via chartered bus.

Among those planning to attend are Mrs. H. P. Dunlop, president of Long Beach Council of Republican Women; Mrs. Dean Gilmore, president of GOP Juniors; Mrs. John D. Howler, president of 18th Congressional Republican Women; and Mrs. Ira Batdorff, president of Southeast County Republican Women. Mrs. Logan Goodnight and Mrs. Gladys O'Donnell, members of the state executive board, will arrive in Santa Barbara on Jan. 29 to attend executive sessions.

Women from this area will join with members from each of California's counties, according to Mrs. Gladys Leggett Penland of Berkeley, state federation president.

Governor and Mrs. Goodwin J. Knight will lead the list of distinguished guests at the opening luncheon Wednesday.

Mrs. Peter Gibson

Speaker will be Val Peterson, Federal Civil Defense Administrator, who will discuss "The Role of Civil Defense in Our Government." He will be introduced by Mrs. Jean Wood Fuller, FCDA women's director and a former state federation president.

Dr. Robert Burns, College of the Pacific president, will speak at the Fiesta dinner Wednesday night on the topic, "What I saw in Russia." Convention sessions, opening after luncheon, will continue through the day with committee reports Wednesday evening and Thursday morning.

Ray M. Gidney of Washington, D. C., comptroller of the currency, and his wife, will be honor guests at the Thursday luncheon. Gidney will talk on "Good Housekeeping." Bylaw changes, resolutions and election of officers for 1957-59 will complete Thursday's agenda.

A gala reception and banquet reminiscent of early Spanish days will honor Mrs. Gibson on Thursday evening. She will make the closing convention address, "Let's Begin Now," installing new officers.

To Attend Opera Gala

Plans to attend the De Paor Opera Gala at Municipal Auditorium on Wednesday were made by Symphony Juniors at their luncheon meeting last Wednesday at the Hawaiian Restaurant.

With Mrs. Stanford Church, chairman, conducting the business meeting additional plans were discussed for the group's Mardi Gras Ball at the Lafayette Hotel on Feb. 23. Mrs. Gordon Shawyer reported on this benefit, proceeds to go to the continuance fund.

Mrs. James Herley, program chairman, arranged a white elephant sale of articles brought by each member. Mrs. Marilyn Ausberger was auctioneer. Mrs. Glenn Dooly, social chairman, arranged the colorful circus theme used for table decorations.

Navy Relief Seeks Volunteers

Instruction Course Set at Station

Designed to educate Navy Relief Society volunteers in the functions of the organization, a four-week training course will be offered to interested Navy wives at Allen Center on the naval station beginning Feb. 5.

Meeting recently to discuss plans for the training course were RADM R. L. Campbell, president of the Long Beach Auxiliary; Mrs. M. E. Murphy, chairman of volunteer women; Mrs. L. J. Walter, executive secretary; Mrs. R. R. Cathey and Mrs. George Fritschmann.

Classes will begin at 9 a. m. and are scheduled for the three morning hours on Tuesday and Thursday for the four-week period. They will be conducted by Miss Myrle James, headquarters field representative, and will offer instruction in interviewing, receptionist, clerical, thrift shop, layette program and knitting duties.

The local auxiliary is in constant need of volunteer services, and although it is not necessary to enroll in advance of the course, the auxiliary office would appreciate being notified so that enough training course books will be available. Nursery service for children of volunteers attending will be offered free. Further information may be obtained through the Long Beach Navy Relief Society office.

Allied Arts

James Bock will appear as guest speaker at Tuesday's 8 p. m. meeting of Allied Arts International in Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. Musical interlude will be provided by soloist Lewis Owens and accompanist Mrs. Dorothy Christie. A social hour will conclude the evening's festivities.

The Wild Waves Say

By IOLA MASTERSON

HELENE AND JACK DIDN'T DROWN. quite the contrary. They were very much in the social swim this past inaugural weekend. The Drowns, long-time friends of Pat and Dick Nixon, traveled the capital's festivity route in high style and good company, dancing at the Park Sheraton Monday and before that at the Mayflower at the Veep and Mrs. N's special party.

HERE'S AN ARITHMETIC problem of the brain twisting variety for you to try. If five women meet for seven hours to discuss one thing—which of them did the most talking? Choose one: Peg Webb, Liz Tucker, Bernice Millie, Tina Bibby or Helen Howdle?

Here are some guides to follow when figuring which possibly had the most to say. Peg Webb is ticket chairman of the Red Cross fashion show (it will take place March 7) and this was at a committee meeting this week to discuss plans. Liz is her co-chairman and the meeting was at Liz' manse. Not that we'd want to point the finger at Liz but, not only do hostesses frequently talk the most, but think of this. Liz was in Las Vegas last weekend. Apparently she spun the wheel of fortune so hard she broke a main spring. Anyhow it didn't turn very well.

Helen Howdle might be a prime suspect, too. She drove over in her spankin' Christmas-new, pink Cadillac and like the mother of a genius child, she probably had some remarks to make with justifiable pride.

LOOKING FOR ALL THE WORLD like a census taker of deceased foxes, Carleen Barrett arrived at the Junior League sustaining members' luncheon at Sue Buell's home the other day, simply dripping with beautiful silver fox furs. Naturally her furs were admired.

REVEALS NEWS TO SORORITY

Mary Ann Reichard, daughter of the Emerson B. Reichards, offered the traditional chocolates to Zeta Tau Alpha Sorority sisters recently to reveal her engagement to John Lee Wood Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. John Lee Wood Sr. Both graduates of Polytechnic, the bride-elect is an education sophomore at LBSC and her fiancé is in his second year at USC, majoring in chemical engineering. No date has been set for the wedding.

The affair will take place Wednesday at 12:30 p.m. in the Grand Ballroom of the Beverly Hilton Hotel. This sixth annual luncheon and fashion show will benefit the Orthopedic Hospital of Los Angeles and the National Society of Crippled Children and Adults, Inc. Easter Seal agency. Many Long Beach alumnae will be among the 500 guests viewing new spring fashions.

Completed plans for the event were announced at a recent meeting of Long Beach Zeta alumnae at the home of Mrs. William J. Wagner. Assisting the hostesses were Misses Joseph J. Smith and James A. Jackson.

Delta Alpha Colony of Long Beach State College will be installed as the 99th chapter of ZTA on Feb. 23. Dr. Joyce McCumber, coordinator between national and Southern California Zetas, will participate in the event.

In an exquisitely appointed ceremony marked by dignity and beauty, Howard Raymond Schultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aaron Schultz, 5597 Loma Linda, claimed as his bride Leslie Elaine Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Brown of Pacific Palisades. Rabbi David L. Greenberg of Fresno officiated at the service in Beverly Hills Hotel on Jan. 20.

The winsome young bride, a fourth generation Californian, wore a white gown with fitted bodice of delicate lace and a voluminous bouffant skirt of tulle applied with lace. A Juliet cap of pearls fastened her short filmy veil. As "something old" she carried the lace handkerchief that her great grandmother held at her own wedding and golden wedding, and that also was carried by Leslie's mother at her wedding.

Her cousin, Randy Shafon, the bride's only attendant, wore yellow and gold chiffon, accented by a bouquet of yellow roses and carnations.

Stanley Schultz, brother of the bridegroom, was best man; the bride's brother, Douglas Brown, and Marvin Solomon seated wedding guests.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Schultz are graduates of the University of Southern California where she affiliated with Alpha Epsilon Phi and he with Sigma Alpha Mu.

After receiving the felicitations of guests at a reception in the hotel, the justweds left for a honeymoon journey to Las Vegas, Palm Springs, San Francisco and Honolulu. On their return they will establish residence in Long Beach.

Humorist on Ebell Slate

Heenan Elliot, humorist and philosopher, will entertain Ebell of Long Beach on Monday with his program, "Words of Rhyme and Reason."

Elliot has appeared in motion pictures, radio and television in addition to personal appearances throughout the United States. He will be introduced by Mrs. James A. Worsham, program chairman.

The business meeting will be conducted at 1:30 p.m. by Mrs. L. E. Shanks, president. Mrs. Carlton D. Gordon, chairman of Group N, and her group members will serve the luncheon.

Gazelles Plan to Seat Staff

New officers will be installed Tuesday by the Gazelles Club. Members will convene at the Twin Flame Supper Club for the event. Taking their oaths of office will be Misses Joseph Reprogle, president; Donald Caplinger, vice president; Ernest High, recording secretary; Carl Womack, corresponding secretary; Charles Cummins, treasurer; Warren Sparks, publicity; Larry Thomas, parliamentarian, and Miss Barbara Gard, hostess.

Your Baby & Mine

Active 2-Year-Old

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

This would seem to be a 2-year-old with all the steps pulled out. Mrs. H. N. writes, "I have two children, a girl of 4 and a boy of 2. He is just too active, I can't do one thing all day long without stopping to check up on him. He has toys but he doesn't play with them, just throws them around. He loves his hammer and peg set, but yesterday he hammered and broke the glass under my center table decoration.

"In his room he has pulled down the curtains, tried to climb on the chest of drawers and pulled it on top of himself (luckily he wasn't hurt). He is always jumping on his sister's bed. His closet door just reaches the end of his crib so he climbs on it, opens the door and takes the clothes all out and snags the plastic hangers.

"We also put a hook on our bedroom door. He was once on top of the dresser. We have had to remove several pieces of furniture in the living room, but he still manages to do things. He is often on the table playing with the lamp. He climbs the stairs on the outside by hanging onto the rails.

"I have let him play in one kitchen cabinet, but that isn't enough. He is always opening the refrigerator door and I have found him on top of the stove. My husband fixed up a place for them to play in the basement and it has an overhead fluorescent light. He climbed on the table and I found him with the 2-foot bulb in his hand.

"In the yard he climbs a fence so high I am afraid he will fall some of these days. I try to talk nice to him but find myself screaming and smacking. He is a lovable little guy. Tell him something and he says 'O.K.' but I am expecting another baby next month and I want to do something before I ruin my good disposition and his."

The basement is the answer for most of his playtime. Put in small chairs and tables on which he cannot climb dangerously. See that he has a kiddy car and wagon to ride.

Two short ladders with a wide board fastened securely between them would make a good climbing toy. Put a soft cushion of tan bark under in case he should fall.

Put locks on all doors. Put everything liftable out of reach in daytime. Lock other cabinets besides the one he can play in. Keep saying, "Mommy's refrigerator, you must ask her," and take him away and substitute one of his toys. Impress him with what is his and what is yours and it will finally take root. Be kind but firm and consistent in refusing to let him do what he must not do—and encourage him to have fun with what is his. This is a hard age and you are burdened—but children outgrow it and become more dependable. Keep strengthening yourself with that knowledge.

If you would like our leaflet "Obedience and Punishment," send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with 10 cents to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of the Press-Telegram. (This feature appears daily in the Press-Telegram.

End Rocks Publishing World

By ILKA CHASE

The Crowell-Collier company shut up shop on the publication end of its business last December and the event set the publishing world on its ear, both because of its suddenness and because of the length of time the firm had been doing business at the old stand.

It was in the late 1880's that a young printer and engraver, Joseph Knapp, bought a concern called The American Lithograph Company. It manufactured calendars, I don't know whether or not it made use of the Marilyn Monroe of the day, but one way or another it had the popular touch because from his millions of calendars Mr. Knapp made millions of dollars and bought the Crowell Publishing Company.

Having started as a little acorn he became a spreading oak, acquiring in time The American Magazine, Woman's Home Companion and Collier's. They were stringently moral organs in the early days, placing righteousness above money and refusing to carry drug, cigarette, cosmetic or liquor advertising. They believed, however, in individual freedom and common sense and Collier's was the first magazine to come out strongly for the repeal of Prohibition.

'Salad Days'

In the company's salad days there was a woman on the board of directors named Gertrude B. Lane. She was the only woman and she was a spinster who held her own with Mr. Knapp and J. P. Morgan's V. P., Thomas Lamont, chairman of the executive committee. Her rise to a directorship was earned by the brilliant editing she did for Woman's Home Companion. When she took over it stood fourth in circulation among women's popular magazines. She brought it to first place by adding The Ladies' Home Journal, Good Housekeeping and McCall's.

Miss Lane retired at the time of World War II. The circulation held up for a couple of years and then began declining. Since then, it has had its ups and downs, but four-and-a-half-million readers, the figure the magazine claimed at its death, is scarcely a negligible asset. When Crowell's three periodicals were flourishing their combined circulation was over ten million, an awesome figure.

Paul C. Smith, president and editor-in-chief when the empire crumbled, went to Crowell-Collier's in 1951. The end came in '56, a brisk debacle.

In view of the understanding between him and the heads of the unions in the firm's Springfield, Ohio printing plant—he assured the disturbed union presidents that the publications were going on to ever bigger and better achievements—the sudden termination of their jobs was a rude shock to some 2,000 employees. Many felt the management's attitude a bit cavalier. There are others whose language is less courteous.

Out in the Cold

A certain gentleman of prominence, for instance, considers he has been had. A wheel in the west-coast staff of Newsweek he gave up his $60,000 home in California, which boasted, as an outraged friend remarked, "a little kidney shaped swimming pool," and moved east assuming responsibility for another establishment in Weston, Conn. His children were taken out of their California school and brought east so he is now paying a double set of tuitions and the upkeep on two places all because he assumed his offer from Crowell-Collier was bona fide. He is now out of both jobs.

The question inevitably arises, "Who has been had?" Employees, president of the company or both? Are Mr. J. Patrick Laman and his associates, the financiers involved, as opposed to the company people, villains, or are they upright defenders of the stockholders' interests? The answer may be long in coming and in any event, is scant comfort to those with no paychecks.

To many employees it came as an unpleasant surprise that severance pay is not a New York State law. However, Paul C. Smith has said that every employee of more than one year's service will receive two weeks' pay—a precedent that was set in the folding of The American Magazine. They are hopeful about this since Crowell's other interests, radio, television and records are said to be doing very well.

Of course, when you kill a magazine you don't just lock the door and go away. There is the little matter of advertising contracts and circulation to be liquidated.

Up for Adoption

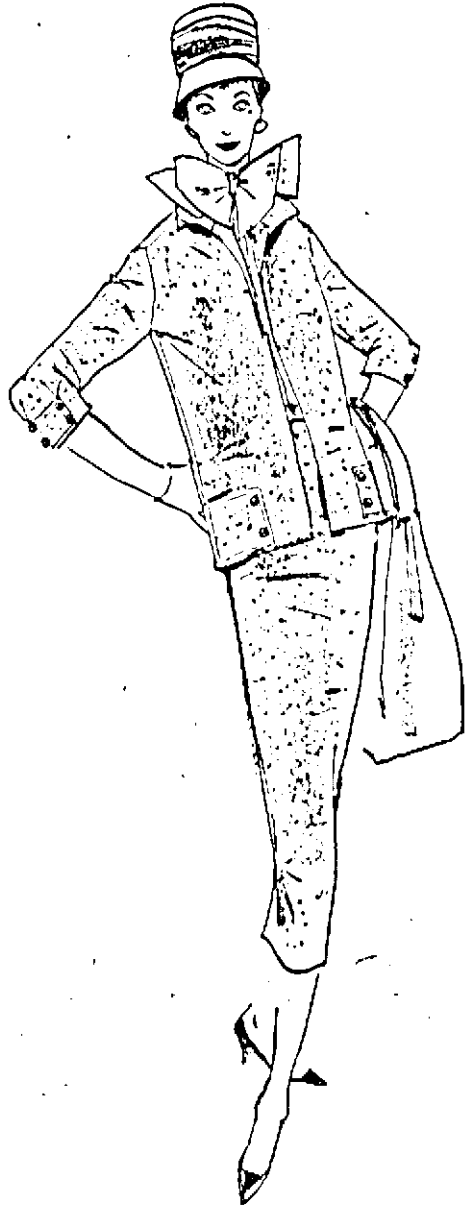

Look has taken over Collier's subscription list, but as of this writing no one has adopted the Woman's Home Companion. Four-and-a-half million readers just sitting there! Naturally they must be paid for, so it may be assumed that some publication is bidding its time to see how advantageous a deal it can make.

No one says that a man can't edit a woman's magazine or an opinion and fiction magazine or one dealing with sports, politics and general features, but with mass books appealing to men and women, single and double with, in the latter case the usual concomitant of children, it does seem as though the head fellow might well be a family man. Smith is a bachelor. Possibly his publications needed the rough and tumble of domesticity.

Sisters Wed in Services Solemnized in Las Vegas

Two Long Beach sisters were married Jan. 12 in separate ceremonies in Las Vegas. At 4 p. m. in First Methodist Church of Las Vegas, Delores J. Gunn and Ted Pepoy took marriage vows and later were attendants for Sharron L. Gunn and Carlos A. Lopez when they were married at 8 p. m. in West Kirk o' the Heather Wedding Chapel.

The brides are daughters of Mr. and Mrs. M. G. Gunn, 6132 Harvey Way. Pepoy is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Pepoy, 6934 Bacarro; Lopez is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Lopez, 4733 Albury Ave.

For her marriage, Delores wore a dress of champagne beige with aqua accessories. Her sister was her maid of honor and Paul Koska was best man. A 1953 graduate of Polytechnic High School, the bride was a member of Lambda Phi. After her husband was graduated from Wilcox High School, he continued his education at Long Beach City College.

Sharron wore a street length frock of white brocade with navy blue accessories. She will graduate in June from Jordan High School where she is head majorette. Her husband attended Jordan also.

Both young couples will make their homes in Long Beach.

Benefit Card Party Slated

Proceeds derived from a card party Wednesday will be given by North Long Beach Women's Club to the Long Beach Chapter of the National Foundation for Polio.

Refreshments will be served at noon that day in Houghton Park clubhouse prior to card playing.

Mrs. Virgil Koon, club president, has appointed Mrs. Charles Reams general chairman of the event, the seventh such benefit sponsored by the club for the Polio Foundation.

Assisting will be Mrs. H. P. Moran, vice chairman; Arthur Brookover, R. J. Stroup, Fred T. Corwin, Harold Gross, H. C. Domengraux, J. S. Crowley, Ray S. Pearson and E. C. Hawley.

TELL PLANS

The Arthur Merinos of Lakewood have announced the engagement of their daughter, Virginia Dale Selby, to George Sattler, son of the Henry Sattlers, also of Lakewood. The bride-elect, a graduate of City College. A September wedding is planned.

Poly Grads Will Wed

A visit with her high school Scarabs sorority sisters provided Sandra Sutton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George T. Sutton, 2330 Oregon Ave., with the opportunity to offer the traditional chocolates announcing her engagement to Michael D. Patrick.

The bride-elect, a freshman at Long Beach City College, revealed the romantic news to fellow Entre Nous members at a later campus meeting. While at Poly, she was also affiliated with Lambda Phi.

Patrick, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Patrick, 3608 Cerritos Ave., is also a graduate of Polytechnic where he is presently stationed at Camp Pendleton with the Marines. The young couple has not set a wedding date.

Varied Club Dates, Special Fetes for House Guests Fill Military Calendars

By VIRGINIA NEWTON

With hearts and darts and Mister Cupid in the starring role, the ever busy and popular Naval Officers Wives Club of Long Beach, using a Valentine theme, has plans for a very pretty and interesting luncheon meeting on Feb. 6 at 12:30 in the Officers Club, Allen Center.

Senior chairman for the event will be Mrs. George Fritschmann assisted by officers' wives from the Long Beach Group, Pacific Reserve Fleet, Mrs. James Lee McCann, R. E. Deckwa, F. W. Camp, H. A. Riggs, B. H. Bieri Jr. and N. G. Doukas.

Highlight of the afternoon will be the guest speaker, well-known artist Arthur Beaumont, who will paint a picture which he will donate to the club.

Because this will be a most important meeting, members are reminded to call in their reservations for themselves and their guests as soon as possible to Mrs. J. A. McAnn or Mrs. H. M. Whelpley.

Speaking of club activities, the Nautical Club's recent luncheon meeting at Allen Center was most attractively planned and decorated with tables representing the beginning of 1957 with gay streamers in brilliant colors. Mrs. Alberta Davis, president, told of plans for the election luncheon in February. Hostesses for the last luncheon were Mrs. J. A. Foster and Mrs. E. W. Hermanson. The club will have a board meeting at Mrs. Ernestine Fox's home on Feb. 6.

Capt. and Mrs. Frank Wozniak and two boys are making plans for the near future when they'll be sailing for new duty and residence in Honolulu. At present, Capt. Wozniak is attached to the dental department at the Long Beach Naval Station.

Florence and Leon Ross had as their recent houseguests from Iowa City, Iowa, Mrs. Ross' brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Shaffer. While they were here, the foursome visited Death Valley, Las Vegas and Palm Springs. Mrs. Ross is a member of the Fleet Reserve Auxiliary Branch 43 and national treasurer of the organization.

Friday afternoon, Officers Wives Club of Long Beach Air Force Base gave a benefit for the March of Dimes at the clubhouse at the Air Base. Mrs. Nap Itinbolt was senior hostess.

Chaplain and Mrs. Ward McCabe had as their recent houseguest, Mrs. Ernest Walker from Glendale.

Last Thursday night, NCO Wives Club at the Long Beach Air Force Base enjoyed a social hour at the club at the base. Hostesses were Mrs. Dee Knight and Mrs. Judy Lucas. The club recently installed new officers, and installing officer was Mrs. John Price, wife of Colonel Price, Outgoing President Ray Daugherty turned over the gavel to Mrs. Myrtle Bohline. The following officers took over for 1957: Mmes. Lee Lambert, vice president; Sylvia Kallgren, secretary, and Mary Camarillo, treasurer.

WO and Mrs. C. R. White had as their recent houseguests, Lt. Cmdr. and Mrs. Ralph Lang and sons, Jonathan and Calvin, from San Francisco. Lt. Cmdr. Lang is attached to the USS Princeton. Also visiting with the Whites were old shipmates Lt. and Mrs. Joseph A. Donnelly and daughter, Vicki, down from Washington. The Donnellys had exciting plans to talk about as they all leave shortly for new residence and duty in Spain.

Mrs. Benjamin Criswell was delightedly surprised recently by her neighbors and Coast Guard friends with a birthday luncheon in her honor at Disneyland Hotel.

Mrs. Alberta Davis and her family enjoyed having as houseguests recently former Honolulu neighbors Cmdr. and Mrs. Charles Kasdorf and Sally and Skip, who were moving from Florida to new residence and duty on Alameda.

Mrs. C. E. Kemmerer had a really authentic Sukiyaki dinner down to Japanese kimonos for guests Mr. and Mrs. Val Cochran and Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Mosher. Out in the rumpled room, Patti Kemmerer also had a party for a group of school friends the same night.

Last Friday at the lunch hour, old and new board members of the Navy Doctors Wives Club had a luncheon meeting at Allen Center.

Coast Guard Officers Wives Club members who can spare the time are meeting for a sewing bee every second and fourth Tuesday morning in the chapel at the Long Beach Air Force Base. The project is sewing garments for needy Korean children.

Bill and Jean Thornton were most happy to have as their recent houseguests,

M. E. Walker Claims Bride

Romantic news of interest to his many local friends is the recent marriage ceremony uniting Mallory Elton Walker, son of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Walker, 2286 Roswell Ave., and pretty Carolyn Ann Pryor, daughter of the Leland Pryors of Glendale.

The young couple, both seniors at Occidental College, repeated nuptial vows during evening services at North Glendale Methodist Church. They are now residing near the Eagle Rock campus following a honeymoon trip into Northern California.

Walker is a graduate of Wilson High School where he appeared as tenor soloist with a cappella choir and won several awards for his musical talents. Soloist for Hollywood - Beverly Christian Church, the bridegroom met his bride through glee club activities at Occidental. She serves as accompanist for the group and he holds the position of leading tenor. A music major, the new Mrs. Walker is a member of Sigma Alpha Iota musical fraternity. Her husband is affiliated with Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Given in marriage by her father, the young bride wore a gown fashioned of delicate Chantilly lace and nylon chiffon over satin. A lace and seed pearl headpiece secured the bridal veil of French illusion, and a cascade bouquet of white carnations completed the all-white loveliness of the bridal ensemble.

Yellow and aqua gowns of chiffon over taffeta were selected for the bride's sisters, Shirley Marie and Roberta Pryor, who attended as maid of honor and bridesmaid.

The bridegroom asked Tom Paul of New York City to be his best man, while the 300 wedding guests were escorted by Richard Bungay, Dan DeMuree, Robert Hauert and Hugh Walker, brother of the bridegroom.

Blue Stars

Mrs. Bernice Hamble will preside at the meeting of Blue Star Mothers Chapter No. 1 Monday in the YWCA, 6th and Pacific. The morning session will commence at 11:30, with the afternoon business meeting set for 1 o'clock.

CWO and Mrs. George (Bulldog) Drummond, who have just come to Southern California from Washington, D. C. where the Marine officer was attached to the Marine headquarters. Bulldog Drummond, who is a veteran of the south Pacific campaign and Korea, is now attached to Camp Pendleton. Friendship between the Thorntons and Drummonds goes back to when the Marine was "baby sitter" for the Thorntons children.

Navy Wives Club No. 123 next Tuesday will have a card social at 1:30 a. m. in the home of Lillian Todd, 2855 Bellflower Blvd. Co-hostess will be Mrs. Winifred Thompson.

Mr. and Mrs. Mallory Elton Walker

Federation Juniors Set Conference

January conference of the Los Cerritos District, California Federation of Women's Clubs, junior membership, will take place at Huntington Park Clubhouse Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Promising one of the best programs of the year, Mrs. Daniel Uhrich, program chairman, will present Flora May and Ed Hennessy, a singing comedy team. Their duets include romantic love songs, dialect parodies, operatic nonsense, comic characterizations and original satires.

Mrs. Milton Dales will preside at the meeting which will include reports of officers and chairmen. Mrs. Peter Kelly will give details on the dance planned March 22 at Lakewood Country Club. Mrs. Darwin Wood, philanthropy chairman, is co-chairman of this affair and all proceeds will go to the district's chosen philanthropy, Exceptional Children's Foundation.

TO TAKE OATH

Mrs. Donald F. Ross-cup will become president of Long Beach Naval Shipyard Toastmistress Club at a ceremony Monday at Apple Valley Steak House. Also to be installed are Mmes. Edwin Goodrich, vice president; Hugh B. Curry, secretary; James Cleaver, treasurer, and D. L. Webster, representative.

It was my misfortune to run up against Max Manchester of Portland, Ore., and Robin MacNab of Bozeman, Mont., the very first hand of the New Orleans tournament. A bridge misfortune of course, for it is always a pleasure to meet nice people.

They bid a fine grand slam against me. The slam is easy enough to bid when you see all the cards but in that strong field no other pair managed to get there. A cou-

Days of Forty-Niners

LONG BEACH STATE COLLEGE EVENTS

—by PLENER MINER—

There isn't too much going on at Long Beach State this week—unless you count the final examinations which are the order of the day. Only event of a less somber air we can think of is the Blue Book Ball, traditional mid term senior dance set for Friday, Feb. 1, from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. in the Wilton Hotel. John DeLino's orchestra will play, and members of the senior council are handling bids. Big event of the evening will be crowning of the Blue Book Belle to reign as queen of the dance.

Was talking with one of the Tekes, and he brought us up to date on what's happening with Tau Kappa Epsilon fraternity. The group chose new officers recently. President Herb Braham, Treasurer Jack Kroulek and Historian Russ Newban were all re-elected. Also named were vice Cary Finney, Secretary Clint Hopson, Sergeant-at-Arms Al Finlayson and Pledge Trainer Dave Thomas.

Had a newsy little note from Mrs. Gladys Korber, publicity chairman of Sigma Chi Nu, fraternity for registered nurses at Long Beach State. They have been busy lately.

On Jan. 18 the group installed 12 new pledges to active membership in ceremonies in the lower campus lounge, amid a setting which emphasized the blue and white color motif of the fraternity. A highlight of the evening was the presentation of Sigma Chi Nu's first scholarship to Miss Marie O'Brien of Long Beach.

A couple of Sigma Kappas are up in the air—or will be soon. Come the middle of next month, Odette Hamilton and Marilyn Edus will begin stewardess training with two of the nation's major airlines.

If you come near our fair campus, girls, tell the pilots to fly a little lower and louder; too many of us can still hear what the instructor is saying.

Conversation you can sink your teeth into! That hardly seems the way to describe the state of things at State. But if the plans of the newly formed Philosophical Society jell, that's what we'll have.

Chuck Mondino was giving us the word on this group. Twenty members make it up, and the first regular meeting is planned for Feb. 21 in the home of Dr. George Massey. Various philosophical views in the fields of religion, politics, and economics will be aired, said Chuck; plans call for both excellent students and eminent professors to address the meetings.

Hornsport, State's literary magazine goes on sale in 10 days. This little volume contains a wealth of good writing by Forty-Niner students. Heretofore published only once a year, this issue marks a departure from the old way of doing things; during the 1956-57 school year, Hornsport lifts the stands toward the end of each semester.

Last Wednesday night was an historical occasion on the LBSC activities scene. The meeting of Califas, women's service honorary, in the Soroptimist House marked the first student group use of the building which was dedicated only last Sunday.

Califas was using the Soroptimist House to initiate new members and install new officers. New to the group are Rose Ann Wood, Lolly Coleman, Cathy Castor, Carol Davis, Georgette Gunderson and Margaret Desmond. Newly installed officers are Connie Garr, president; Mela Chavez, vice president; Jane Flynn, recording secretary; Faye Krater, corresponding secretary; Val Worden, treasurer; and Kathy Childs, historian.

Also on the historic side were the new Califas uniforms which were officially worn for the first time at the meeting. The girls were decked out in their long-awaited white sweaters with brown and gold Califas emblems, with brown skirts to match.

Eloise Curtis

A-2064

THE BLOUSSANT EFFECT which has had such a great success in the top level of fashion has been enthusiastically accepted by the youngsters of this nation who know a good thing when they see it. With its drawstring bottomed blouse, it serves to camouflage waistlines that are not too slender, can on the other hand make a point of narrow hips. Eloise Curtis who has a large and continually growing fan club designed this two-piece model with a slim skirt, a placket neckline and a sleeve pocket for bangles or love notes. This pattern which is custom made with exclusive designer measurements that make fitting easy and accurate is especially good in jersey or lightweight woolsens, shantung, sarah and certain cottons. From this chart select the one size best for you.

Size	Bust	Waist	Hips	Length From Nape of Neck to Waist
7	32½	22½	33½ in.	15¼ inches
9	34½	23½	34½ in.	16 inches
11	36½	24½	35½ in.	16½ inches

Theater Talk on Agenda

Origin, function, problems and future plans of The Theater, little theater playhouse at 2300 Magnolia Ave., will be explained by director Pat Brown at the meeting Thursday of Alamos Bay Garden Club. Members will assemble in the home of Mrs. Arthur R. Kempster, 6325 E. Ocean Blvd.

Co-hostesses at the function will be Mmes. Woodrow W. Smith, Frank J. Beggs, Anson E. Carnean, Orville Darnell, Clifford C. Hook, Harold Maehle, Luke V. Sonner Jr., L. C. Thompson and William J. Wagner.

Lynne Daniels, daughter of Mrs. Donald V. Daniels of Vallejo and the late Lt. Cmdr. Daniels, former Long Beach residents, to Harold Leroy Baker in recent afternoon services at St. Peter's Chapel, Mare Island. The newlyweds are now residing in Berkeley.

The bride's grandmother, Mrs. Herbert Scott Daniels of 453 E. Ocean Blvd., was unable to attend the northern rite which was followed by a reception in Mare Island Officers Club.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Dr. Edward Eddy of Tacoma, Wash., the young bride wore a ballerina-length gown of rich brocade satin and a small shell hat with filmy illusion veil.

The new Mrs. Baker received her early education in Vallejo schools, was graduated from Vallejo College and continued her education at business college in Oakland.

Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard J. Baker of Vallejo, also attended secondary schools and college in that city. He is presently in his junior year at University of California.

List 'Big Dates' for February and May

By ANNE GILCHRIST

Two months. Two events. Two clubs. And both important locally.

First, by the calendar, will be the Southern California State Dental Assistants sixth annual mid-winter conference Feb. 2 and 3 at the Huntington-Sheraton Hotel in Pasadena. Presiding will be Long Beach's own prominent dental assistant, Rose McIlvaine, who has guided the state organization as its president for the past year.

The two day conference will be chock-full of educational features including workshops on the assistants role in dental offices and in laboratory work as well as appearances by outstanding speakers.

Dental assistants from Long Beach accompanying Mrs. McIlvaine will be Eva Miner, second vice president of the state association, Chessa Duis, state editor, Rosemary Leedom, president of the Harbor District Chapter, Viola Engel, Harbor District director, Harriett Beadle, president-elect of the local chapter, board members of the harbor group including Jean Hatch, Betty Watkins and Eva Hastings plus a large delegation of members.

Final plans for conference participation were explained at the Monday meeting in the Ballerina Room of the Lafayette Hotel. Speaker of the night was Dr. Robert Robb who gave an illustrated lecture on endodontia. A social hour at 7 p.m. preceded the 7:30 p.m. dinner.

National Secretaries

For members of Queen Beach Chapter, National Secretaries Assn., May is the month when they will be hostesses to the 1957 convention of California Division of NSA.

Betty Mahoney, general chairman for the convocation, announced preliminary plans at the chapter's last dinner and business meeting at the Chandelier Restaurant. Committee chairmen for the event were announced and include Marie Wells, hospitality; Rosemary Garmong, registration; Veroyl Sumrall, publicity; Alice O'Hara, decorations; Edna Ley, program; Charlene Taitten, open house; Dorothy Gahry, finance; and La Von Lutz, exhibits.

Attendance is expected to set a record this year since the choice of Long Beach as the 1957 convention city was a popular one at the 1956 meeting in San Francisco last Spring.

Wilma Conde, chapter program chairman, announced that the Feb. 5 meeting will take place at the Petroleum Club and will mark the group's annual birthday meeting which this year will commemorate Queen Beach Chapter's ninth birthday. Charter members will be special guests.

Margaret Ives

"Fitting Our Position Into Our Life" was the topic of Dr. Eleanor Metheny when she appeared as guest speaker at Margaret Ives Business and Professional Women's Club at its Monday night meeting at the Lafayette Hotel. Dr. Metheny, professor of education and physical education at the University of Southern California, covered major phases of a business woman's life in her talk, leaving her audience with a buoyant gratitude that they were business women.

President Doris Dearden welcomed members and guests. Musical entertainment was provided by Miss Brenda Smith, violinist, accompanied by her sister, Carol.

Osteopathic Assistants

January dinner meeting for Long Beach Osteopathic Medical Assistants occurred at the Hawaiian with Phyllis Fitzgerald, Verma Lassas and Julia Smith serving as evening hostesses.

Kay Fox, public health educator, Long Beach Health Dept., was guest speaker. Introduced by Edna Ware, Miss Fox showed a color film, "A Drop in the Bucket," showing in graphic form the benefits to be derived from fluoridation of water. The well-informed speaker expressed her own enthusiasm for fluoridation and told examples of the importance of this element in water, to be added in areas such as here, where it does not exist naturally in beneficial amounts. She urged members of the group to work for passage of a proposition to fluoridate Long Beach drinking water, a proposition which will be placed before the voters of this city in the future.

Margaret Van Amburgh, president, conducted a brief business meeting.

New Leaders of Council

At the recent 53rd annual meeting of the Long Beach Council of United Church Women new officers were installed by Mrs. Frank Boggs, chairman of state.

Accepting their duties in First Methodist Church were Mmes. Donald J. Baker, First Methodist, president; Perry Bell, Immanuel Lutheran, first vice president; R. E. Corcoran, Second Presbyterian, second vice president; Donald Lee, Los Altos Congregational, recording secretary; Mose Lattanzi, Lakewood Village Community, corresponding secretary, and Nelson Torpey, North Long Beach Presbyterian.

Named to the board of directors were Mmes. Glenn T. Welin, East Side Christian; Lawrence A. Brown, First Methodist; and C. J. Fortner, St. Luke's Episcopal.

Special guests were Miss E. Joyce McMillan, executive director of YWCA in Sydney, Australia; Bob Walker, editor of the Long Beach Church News, the Rev. and Mrs. J. R. Saunders, retired missionaries from China, and ministers of the various churches and their wives.

New President

Mrs. Bonnie Davison relinquished the executive gavel to incoming president Mrs. Betty Gesser when Wilmington Chapter of Blue Star Mothers met for an installation luncheon in the Sanger Room.

TICHENOR BENEFIT PLANNED

A first-hand demonstration of how their money will be spent is afforded Junior Matrons of Ebell as they visit Tichenor Clinic which will benefit from proceeds raised at a Junior Matron-sponsored benefit dessert and card party Jan. 30 at Ebell Clubhouse. Tickets may be purchased at the door, and the public is welcome. Gladys B. Neff, director of physical therapy at the clinic, gives encouragement to Judy Biggs, 9-year-old paraplegic, as Mrs. Hubert S. Matthews and Mrs. Ted Perry (right) look on. Junior Matrons have contributed more than $19,000 to the clinic since the initial benefit in 1929.

NEW EXEC

Mrs. Glenn T. Welin of Long Beach was elected president of Southern California-Southern Nevada United Church Women at the group's 23rd annual conference in Westminster Presbyterian Church, South Pasadena.

RE-ELECTED

Iola Smith was re-elected president of Long Beach Licensed Vocational Nurses Association at the January meeting in Mottell's and Peek Garden Room. Other new officers are Frances Stiff, secretary; Maud Croft, Mary Fessler and Susie Alexander, directors.

Ask Localite to Speak at Church Meet

Miss Elsie Harris, local attorney and world traveler just returned from Japan, is slated to be guest speaker at the one-day convocation, Feb. 5, of the United Foursquare Women. The convocation will be held in conjunction with the 31th annual eight-day convention of International Church of the Foursquare Gospel at its Los Angeles headquarters, according to Mrs. Karl Williams, 1115 Tehachaph, national program chairman.

Mrs. Elmer Card, Santa Ana, national president, will officiate at the 10 a.m. business meeting during which there will be a panel discussion with Mrs. Harold Jeffries of Portland, Ore., as moderator. Miss Harris' address will follow at 11 a.m.

The women's organization, sponsoring an intercessors' guild, girls' auxiliary, World Day of Prayer, Christmas for missionaries, disaster relief, books for LIFE Bible College and other efforts, will have members from the two Long Beach Foursquare churches attending. The day's festivities will be climaxed with a shopperless luncheon at the Biltmore Hotel, Los Angeles, in honor of wives of pastors.

Elderweds to Be Honored

Mr. and Mrs. Guy L. Kennedy of Wilmington will celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary today during an open house from 2 to 7 p.m. given by their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. W. K. Allen, 3422 N. Roxanne Ave., Long Beach.

The elderweds have two other children, J. J. Kennedy of Eugene, Ore., and a daughter, Mrs. Merle K. Brooks of Fresno; seven grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy were married in Armstrong, Iowa, Jan. 27, 1897, moving in 1901 to Ledgerwood, N. D. They moved to Wilmington in 1920.

From VP to Actor via a Pool

By GAY PAULEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK (UP)—The young man who may be Hollywood's newest heartbreaker first was a success on Broadway. But in its garment, not its theater, district.

Robert (Bob) Evans plays the role of the late Irving Thalberg, one of the movie industry's wonder boys, in a picture scheduled for release in the fall.

But how the handsome Evans got the role, and the chance at a long-term future in the movies if he wants it, has the makings of a plot to outdo most of those dreamed up by Hollywood itself.

Evans is the young vice president (he's 27) of a young, highly successful women's clothing firm on lower Broadway. He was vacationing on the West Coast a couple of months ago, and mostly basking in the sun at a Los Angeles hotel pool.

Actress Norma Shearer saw him and decided immediately that Evans was the man for the Thalberg role in the film Universal-International was making about the late Lon Chaney Sr. Miss Shearer, once married to Thalberg, has a habit of finding talent in such manner. She first saw Janet Leigh at a ski resort. "Miss Shearer said it wasn't so much that I looked like 'Thalberg,'" Evans explained today. "But my voice and mannerisms were similar."

Evans first said no to a screen test. "I didn't need the movies," he said. But friends insisted he at least try out.

Well, just like in the movie plots, he won the job over dozens of other, more experienced actors, and recently completed five weeks before the cameras.

Acting isn't exactly new to Evans. New York-born and the son of a professional man, he played juvenile roles in radio soap operas. By the time he was 17, he was a disc jockey for a Florida station.

Seven years ago, his only brother, Charles, 31, joined forces with Joseph Picone, a well-known tailor, to found the Evan-Picone firm, now one of the largest skirt, slacks and sportswear manufacturers in New York.

Six years ago, the younger Evans joined the firm to boss the slacks and skirts department.

Evans said Hollywood now is trying to lure him into a long-term contract. He isn't saying no, but added, "I won't sign except for specific pictures, so I'll know what role I'm doing. This business here comes first with me. Movies would have to be an avocation . . . and made during lulls in business here."

His salary with the clothing firm, he said, is such that I'd have to be a top, top star in Hollywood to match it.

Oh yes, girls, I almost forgot to mention . . .

Evans looks a little like Cary Grant. He has wavy black hair, dark eyes and a smile right out of a toothpaste ad.

He's also eligible, dates no one girl, is an excellent cook (from chicken caudron to steak), and likes the fireside better than the nightclubs.

I asked him whether he had any specific preference in women — blondes, brunettes, redheads?

"None," said Evans. "I just like girls."

Trio to Combine Talents for Art Center Concert

Los Angeles flute, viola and harp trio concert will be presented at 4 p. m. today in Long Beach Municipal Art Center, 2300 E. Ocean Blvd. Included on the program will be a unique selection of works by 19th Century composers Theodore Dubois, Saint-Saens, Arnold Bax, Cesare Galeotti, William Presser and L. Hohenzinsk.

Dorothy Remsen, harpist; Archie Wade Jr., flutist, and Harry Blumberg, violist, members of the trio, are well-known artists who have performed as soloists both in this country and abroad. Wade was formerly solo flutist with the Los Angeles Philharmonic and the Hollywood Bowl Orchestras. He and Blumberg are both under contract with the California Pictures Recording Orchestra. Miss Remsen, a graduate of the Eastman School of Music, has been solo harpist with the Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra, and is now also with the Los Angeles Philharmonic and Hollywood Bowl Orchestras.

Refreshments will be served during the intermission of the concert which is open to the public. Mrs. Bennett Thompson and Mrs. Don Gilson of the Choral Section of Women's Music Club, which meets regularly at the Art Center, will serve as hostesses for the event.

Mrs. White Heads Club

Decorations provided a South Sea Isle setting when Mrs. John White was recently installed as president of Bellflower Toastmistress Club by J. Kimball Walker, Junior Chamber of Commerce president and Bellflower attorney.

Other new officers participating in the ceremony were Mrs. Eugene Thomas, vice president; Mrs. Boyce Dupress, secretary; and Mrs. Donald Wheeler, treasurer.

First official duty of Mrs. White was naming chairmen for the coming term. They are Mrs. Gene Dean, publicity; Mrs. Don Slaughter, program;

Mrs. Raymond Karst, parliamentarian; Miss Edith Gutzeit, education; Mrs. Louisa Albertson, hospitality; and William Young, club representative.

The Hawaiian theme was carried out in table topics and speeches prepared by several members.

A Parent's 'Love' Note Will Thrill Any Youngster

By ANGELO PATRI

Mother, Father, do you ever write letters to your children? Letters that they discover in special places only you and they will know about? It is a very pleasant way of communication, and it can make children feel happily close to their parents.

Of course, these letters—notes, really—are always pleasant to receive; no criticism of behavior, no note of displeasure is allowed. These notes always accent good deeds, successes of all sorts. Some of them are love notes, pure and simple.

It is amazing how such a note will uplift a child. Maybe he is feeling a bit low after a mishap and he finds a note in the pocket of his pajama coat saying, "Son, I was very proud of you this afternoon when you showed such kindly patience with your little brother. He was really annoying you, but you eased him out of things and made him happy. Thank you for him and me. I love you—Mother."

Family members are likely to be tongue-tied when the situation calls for a show of emotion, appreciation or pride. The words won't come easily, but they will flow from the tip of the pen, once it is set to paper. How they will thrill the reader of that note! And how carefully he will treasure it!

These notes are not duty occurrences, of course. They mark the highspots of days so that they are remembered as extraordinary treats. They should come often enough to be looked for and seldom enough to make them important.

Letters that come through the mail are especially heart-warming to a child. These come to him on special occasions: birthdays, graduation time, confirmation and other high-water marks of a child's life. These are not the simple, everyday affairs but a parent's thoughtful, affectionate messages on meaningful occasions. They will speak from the parent's heart to a child's heart, and are strictly personal.

Teachers will find it rewarding to write notes of personal appreciation to their pupils in Junior and senior high schools. Again, these messages should be words of appreciation and encouragement, never rebuke or adverse criticism. Make it known to the recipient that he can feel free to write in return. This is a way of communication stronger than most sorts used in classroom and home.

Think what it would mean to boy, to a girl, who had a file of such notes from childhood to maturity. A rich inheritance, indeed!

It is the duty of every parent to teach his children the truth about sex. Dr. Patri's leaflet "Sex Education," includes a list of booklets and pamphlets to help parents explain. To obtain a copy, send 10 cents in coin to him, P. O. Box 99, Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

Brides-Elect Win Cupid's Favor

Frances Ward

Dolly Dunn

Carolyn Knight

Carolyn King

Linda Farrell

Maureen Eighmy

Adding a romantic note to the Long Beach social scene today is the engagement news being revealed by six popular brides-elect who in days to come will be regaling friends with happy plans for their forthcoming marriages.

Dale Ward

An informal announcement made at Montana State University where both are senior students revealed the betrothal of Frances Arlene Ward to Robert Tate Dale. The wedding will take place in Missoula, Mont., following university commencement.

The bride-elect, daughter of long-time Long Beach residents, Mr. and Mrs. Francis A. Ward, 4622 Cervato St., was graduated from Wilson High School. She is a member of Phi Kappa Phi, senior scholastic honorary, on the Montana campus. Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dale, formerly of Long Beach who now reside in San Luis Obispo, also received early schooling at Wilson. He is a member of Montana Deacons, senior forestry honorary.

Kelly-Eighmy

Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Eighmy, 1433 W. 25th St., have announced the betrothal of their daughter, Maureen, to Woodring M. Kelly, son of the Harold Kellys of 3266 Baltic Ave. Both young persons received their schooling at Polytechnic High and Long Beach City College. No wedding date has been set.

Brannon-King

Numerous bridal courtesies are being planned for Carolyn King whose March 15 marriage date with George Brannon Jr., has been revealed by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben King, 6107 Greenmeadow Rd. Carolyn, a Jordan alumna, is a history major at LBCC. Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Brannon of Lakewood, served with the Marine Corps, and now is studying music at City College.

Burcombe-Farrell

June 29 is the date selected for their marriage by Lakewood residents, Linda Jean Farrell and Peter Alexander Burcombe. Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lester John Farrell and son of Mr. and Mrs. George Burcombe, both young persons were educated at Wilson High School where she was president of Future Business Leaders of America and secretary of Beta Phi Omega.

Schell-Eight

Plans for an August wedding, are being made by Carolyn Sue Eight and James Anthony Schell whose engagement is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Eight of Lakewood. The bride-elect received her schooling at Paramount High. Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Barrett of Louisville, Ky., is serving with the Navy at San Diego.

Springgate-Dunn

More than 100 guests bidden to a Sunday afternoon party at the 2631 Marber Ave., home of Mr. and Mrs. Howard L. Dunn, learned of the betrothal of the Dunn's daughter, Dolly Jean, to Larry W. Springgate. Long stemmed pink roses with cupid hearts bearing names of the engaged pair nestled in the centers, were distributed.

The bride-elect is a senior at Jordan High School. Her fiancé, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard Springgate of Compton, received his schooling in that city. The pair plans a summer wedding.

Inaugural Week Reflections

By VIRGINIA W. KELLY
Washington Staff Correspondent

One hundred Americans selected to lead the "Promenades"—the Grand Marches—at the four inaugural balls in honor of President and Mrs. Eisenhower felt that they "could have danced all night and still have begged for more."

The 100 were selected from the Inaugural Committee. In the group were Rear Admiral Thomas J. Kelly, USN, ret. and this writer who were among the 25 couples stationed at the Sheraton Park ball, for 2,800.

Days in advance, we had been rehearsed by Hollywood dance Director Leroy Prinz who signed that directing "Ten Commandments" crowds was nothing compared to kid-gloving 100 temperamental socialites.

With a trumpet fanfare, the colors were paraded, and the 25 "dancing couples" led off the Grand March. Passing within four feet of the Presidential box each couple bowed. The writer had the temerity to throw a white gloved kiss. The smiling and gallant President—striking in his evening dress—made a smart military bow and the First Lady waived a kiss in return.

Unscheduled Events

The ball climaxed a day on which were dramatic unscheduled incidents.

At the inaugural ceremony, the foreign ambassadors filed down the steps onto the Capitol portico. Soviet Ambassador Zorouhin turned to shake hands with President Eisenhower's Special Middle East Ambassador Eric Johnston. Spectators gasped as Mr. Zorouhin slipped and fell down several steps. He bounded up athletically assuring everyone that he was unhurt.

The President and Mrs. Eisenhower attended the luncheon in their honor in the Capitol's Old Supreme Court Chamber given by chairman of the Joint Congressional Inaugural Committee, Senator Styles Bridges (ranking Senate Republican) and Mrs. Bridges. The President took two helpings of roast beef and helped himself liberally to salt which he usually avoids because of dieting.

Governors Welcomed

Over in the New House Office Building our family assisted in welcoming the Governors of the states and their wives at a luncheon in their honor given by the Inaugural Committee. We shared a table with personable Governor Orville Freeman of Minnesota and his pretty young wife. They are charming and friendly. Also among the honored guests were Utah Governor and Mrs. George Clyde who said that six months ago he never dreamed of entering politics but now—he is governor.

Beautiful Virginia Knight wore a champagne chiffon Jersey dress with a deep crowned cream and gold cloche from her California gold and California blue inaugural wardrobe.

White Tie Event

Before the inaugural ball, we attended the brilliant white tie dinner for 100 or more given by Ambassador and Mrs. Eric Johnston. Among the liveliest diners were State Secretary and Mrs. John Foster Dulles. When told that he is becoming a veritable social bird of paradise, the State Secretary replied that he has enjoyed every one of the inaugural parties where we met.

After the ball, we attended the "small breakfast" for 500 at the Fairfax given by Miss Louise Gore.

'Mid-40 Fidgets' Are Curable

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My husband and I are both in our early 40s. I am deeply disturbed over the fact that he seems so bored with me, life and everything in general. What happens to people when they reach this crucial point in their lives?

I have always tried to keep myself looking neat. My husband has no pride whatsoever when it comes to his looks. His waistline shows it, too. It makes me feel like I have failed somewhere along the line.

We have two grown, healthy children and a nice home to be proud of. But do you think this makes him happy? He acts miserable and bored to tears. We have friends, but they seldom drop in. When my husband isn't working, he is sitting at home doing nothing. What could be more boring than for a man to be under foot, acting like he has nothing to live for, when he has so much?

Doesn't it sound like my husband needs some psychiatric help? He has no hobby and makes no attempt to acquire one. Do you think that he possibly could be dissatisfied with his present job, and that is the root of his boredom?

Some men keep their worries to themselves, which is very wrong. Why don't they confide in their mates when things aren't going right or when they are unhappy?—WOUNDED.

DEAR WORRIED:

Sounds to me like there's a double problem here—you and your husband. You say he just comes home and sits, and is under foot. Admittedly, this is no fun. But didn't he used to come home and "just sit" without you feeling bored or annoyed? I'll bet he did.

The trouble is that both of you need a change in routine, not a psychiatrist. You apparently aren't communicating very well with each other, either, as is evidenced by your statement that your husband never confides in you.

So here's a three-point program to get you out of those "Mid-40 Fidgets":

1. Start talking to each other—about anything, just so you talk. When you've reached the stage where you also are listening to each other talk about new activities.

2. Follow up. Take up bowling or Scrabble or Monopoly or building model trains, if you will. But start activities that are completely new and challenging.

3. At least once a week, break the routine. Meet your husband when he gets off work. Go to dinner and a show, or to see friends. He may balk, but once the routine is broken, he'll have fun.

Good luck on your return to being "young in spirit."

O. J. Contratto

Chef of the Week

Strange Things Happened; Steak Man Cooked Steak

By MILDRED K. PLANARY
Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

His family calls him "The Boss." He just loves that moniker—and so do they. Chef of Week O. J. Contratto is bossman at Apple Valley Steak House, ably assisted by his sons, Oscar Jr. and Jim.

Contratto's migration westward from the little coal mining town of Maryville, Ill., started at the age of 14. But after spending some time in East St. Louis, his father's health brought them to Southern California. They arrived in 1924.

It was quite a natural thing that he went into his uncle's business. In due time, however, the desire for independence set in, and he and his brother formed their own company.

It was an equally natural event, when, some years later, he started another venture. He opened the famous Topsy's Restaurant, which later became the equally popular Trianon. He had had no practical knowledge for that business... just a keen desire.

About this time that "little city" known as Apple Valley was taking root; and the same old native naturalness took over for Contratto again.

MORE THAN JUST A SOAP! ZEST GIVES YOU BOTH glorious new cleaning action and new deodorant action!

Suddenly—you feel different! Every pore feels exhilarated—alive. Zest's new cleaning action frees your skin of sticky film always left by ordinary soap. For the first time, your skin is clearer—fresher—cleaner!

ZEST LEAVES NO UNSIGHTLY BATHTUB RING!

And—Zest's new deodorant action keeps you really fresh. There's never been anything like Zest to give you all-over "anti-odor" effectiveness. To feel glowing, fresh-from-the-bath all day, use Zest every day!

GET THAT ZEST GLOW FROM HEAD TO TOE!

Yowee!

Kraft Caramel Popcorn Balls

Make 'em crunchy-rich with true caramel—easy as melting Kraft Caramels!

Here's the treat of the year! Rich true caramel sauce poured over fluffy, white popcorn and shaped into Caramel Popcorn Balls so good no one ever seems to get enough! Fun to make and so easy! Pick up some popcorn and a bag of Kraft Dairy Fresh Caramels—and let the whole family in on the fun of making Caramel Popcorn Balls. Mmmmm!

How to make Caramel Popcorn Balls

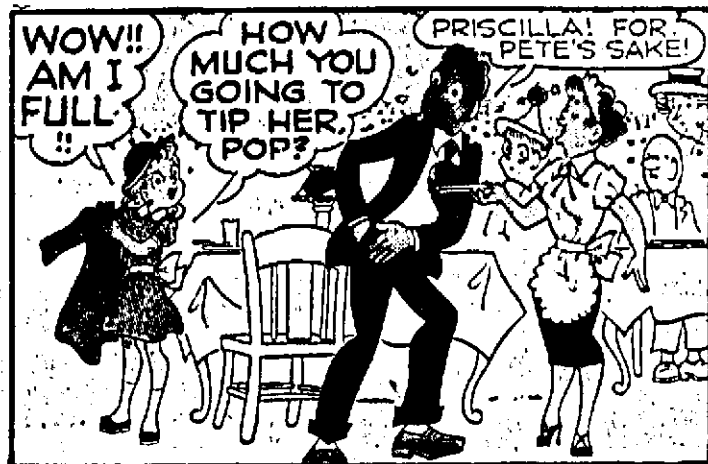

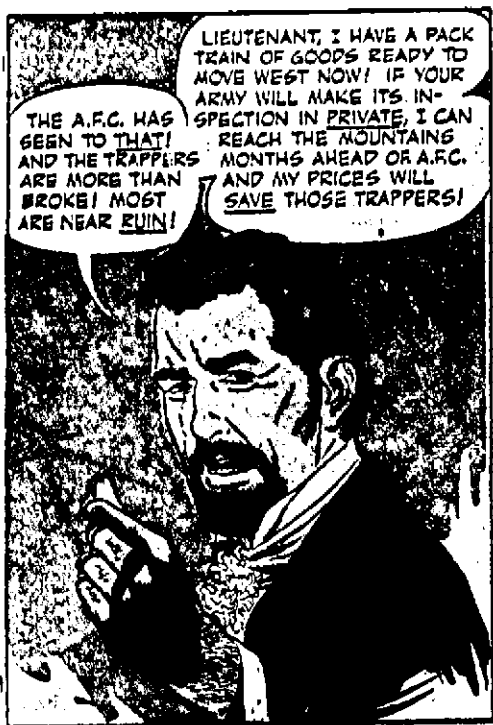

Place $\frac{1}{2}$ pound Kraft Caramels (28 caramels) and 2 tablespoons water in the top of a double boiler. Heat, stirring frequently, until the caramels are melted and the sauce is smooth. What could be easier?

Pour caramel sauce over 2 quarts salted, popped corn placed in a large bowl, and toss until every kernel is coated. With hands slightly moistened with cold water, form into 6 balls.

Look, Mom! Same recipe makes Caramel Popcorn Crunch!

Instead of forming the caramel popcorn into balls, spread on a lightly greased baking sheet and let stand until the surface is dry. Break apart and serve. How about making a double batch—Caramel Popcorn Balls for the kids—Caramel Popcorn Crunch for family and friends? And please everybody!

Pick up some popcorn and KRAFT CARMELS at your store right away!

ALL HAD TO BE AN ORPHAN... A DILL BOY... BUT ALSO HAD TO BE A WORKER AND NO PLAY MAKER...

GEE! BEIN' AN ORPHAN UP TO NOW I NEVER RE'LIZED HOW COMPLICATED A FAMILY CAN BE... ALL TH' AUNTS AN' UNCLES AN' COUSINS...

AN' EVERY ONE OF 'EM WITH DOZENS O' PROBLEMS... BUT NONE OF 'EM WITH ANYTHING THAT HURTS WORSE'N WHAT COUSIN STEVE'S GOT...

LUCY, HIS WIFE... PRETTY, THEY SAY... BUT SHE MUST HAVE BEEN A DOPE... JUST HAD TO GO DANCIN' OR TO PARTIES OR SHOWS EVERY NIGHT...

'CAUSE COUSIN STEVE HAD TO WORK SOME TIME TO BE A SUCCESS AN' GIVE HER NICE THINGS, HE COULDN'T GO BELTIN' AROUND TILL DAYLIGHT EVERY NIGHT... SO-O-O...

...TO HER HE WAS A STODGY OLD STICK-IN-TH-MUD... A HAS BEEN... SO-O-O, SHE LEFT HIM! TH' RELATIVES SAY HE'S LUCKY SHE DID!

BUT TH' GUY LOVED HER! EVERYTHING HE DID WAS FOR HER... EVEN NOW HE SENDS HER HEAVY DOUGH EVERY MONTH... HOW Y'FIGGER A DEAL LIKE THAT?

HELLO, AUNTIE SAL... UNCLE SIL! HI, ANNIE! SANDY!... NO, THANKS... NO DINNER NOW... LITTLE LUNCH LATER, EH? GOT A LOT O' WORK TO DO!

IF COUSIN STEVE'S HEART IS BUSTED HE'S HIDIN' IT REAL GOOD... 'COURSE, WORKIN' SO HARD AND LATE HOURS DOESN'T LEAVE HIM TIME TO THINK TOO MUCH...

LATE IN THE EVENING... AUNTIE SAL SAID TO BRING YOU THIS SNACK, COUSIN STEVE...

C-COUSIN STEVE? EH? OH... THANKS, ANNIE... JUST GET IT THERE...

IS COUSIN STEVE STILL BUSY AT THIS HOUR? EH? BUSY? YES--OH, YES--HE--HE'S TERRIBLY BUSY! (POOR GUY)

CUTS DISHPAN GREASE IN SECONDS!

Yet no "Washday Detergent Burn" to hands!

ONLY VEL HAS THIS FORMULA! PROVE IT YOURSELF

MAKE THIS 'HAND HEAT' TEST: Pour a spoonful of washday detergent into your moist palm. Feel the heat! Then try it with Vel. No heat, because Vel is free of skin-irritating alkalis that cause 'washday detergent burn'.

VEL CUTS GREASE BETTER THAN WASHDAY DETERGENTS... Vel contains no bleaches, whiteners, brighteners made for clothes, not dishes. Vel's active ingredient is 100% grease-cutter!

Why We Make This Generous Offer!

THIS extraordinary premium offer is made to demonstrate the wonderful values in book entertainment which you enjoy as a member of the Dollar Book Club.

Imagine—the same new books costing up to $3.95 in publishers' editions come to Club members for only $1 each. The biggest hits by top authors like Ernest Hemingway, W. Somerset Maugham, Daphne du Maurier, Thomas B. Costain, Frank Yerby, and many more, have come to members at this low $1 price. Occasionally, extra-value selections at $1.49 are offered. All are full-size, hard-bound books in handsome Club editions.

In addition, the Club frequently offers other very desirable books... useful homemaker volumes... beautiful deluxe books... books of cultural value for all the family... at special Club prices which save you up to 75%. But you take only the books you want—and you don't have to take one every month. The purchase of as few as six Club selections during the year fulfills your membership requirement.

Accept Your 3 "Get-Acquainted" Books Now!

Cut out the three value stamps from this page which show the 3 books you want now, and mail them with the coupon at the left. On the coupon, be sure to indicate again the books of your choice, by checking the correct boxes. Send no money. The 3 books will be sent you immediately, and you will be billed only $1, plus a small shipping charge, for all 3, regardless of their prices in publishers' editions. Two of these books are your gift for joining, and one is your first selection. Thereafter, you will receive regularly the Club's Bulletin, which describes the forthcoming selections. But you buy only the books you want.

Send No Money—Just Mail the Coupon with 3 Stamps from this Page!

When you see your introductory Three-Book package, you will be delighted to have become a member. If not, return all books and your membership will be cancelled. Mail the coupon with 3 value stamps now.

THE NEWEST and probably the most beautiful yacht harbor in the world—the Alamitos Bay Marina—will come to life Friday.

During the day, the neat rows of trim white slips will begin filling with the first of the 1,900 sleek pleasure boats planned to be moored eventually at the big installation in the city's southeast corner.

Still unfinished, the Marina's first basin is far enough along to open for its primary business—the berthing of yachts.

WITH ALL DOCKSIDE facilities complete and the first utility and concession building finished, the development is advanced enough to give an indication of the Marina's ultimate attraction as an aquatic recreation area.

And this is just the first of the Marina's four yacht basins. And of at least a dozen more buildings and huge parking areas, additional commercial developments and acres of city parks.

The first section which will be opened Friday includes Basin 1, a 342-boat harbor enclosed on all sides except for an entrance channel to Alamitos Bay and the ocean.

Slips range from 20 feet for small and medium sized pleasure craft to 80 feet, big enough to handle all but a handful of the West Coast's most luxurious sea-going yachts.

Water and electricity are available at each slip.

AT THE END OF EACH, a spacious locker sits, designed to hold the countless maintenance materials and operating accessories that are as much a part of yachting as rolling seas and taut white sails.

Standing above the concrete basin walls, a handsome contemporary building faces the bay.

Giving an unobstructed view across the waiting slips to Naples, Treasure Island and the Alamitos Bay Peninsula, the building soon will be occupied by a restaurant and a marine supply shop.

It also houses the office of Larry McDowell who, as head of the city's Marine Department, will manage the growing Marina.

McDowell, himself a yachtsman, and his staff eventually will have an administration building of their own.

Surrounding the present building and Basin 1 is space for parking more than 500 cars. Not yet black-topped, the parking lot is hoped to be completed soon.

THE BASIN 1 SECTION, itself large as Marina's go, is still just a fraction of the planned development which is transforming the mud flats between Naples and Seal Beach.

Three more big docking basins are coming in the future. The engineering is all done. The money for the construction, which comes from the rich tideland's oil kitty, is waiting to be spent.

Only a legal hurdle in acquiring the rest of the land is holding up construction.

Each of the units will have a concession and utility building similar to the one now overlooking Basin 1.

Between Basin 3 and the big bridge now unconnected to any road that spans Marine Stadium, a boat repair yard is planned.

ON THE POINT OF LAND between the San Gabriel River and the ocean entrance channel, space has been left for a plush ocean-view restaurant and possibly a resort motel.

At the east end of Appian Way in Naples, across from Basin 1, a large plot of land is earmarked for two yacht club sites with buildings, landscaping and private docking facilities.

Such installations as boat yard, yacht clubs and motel-restaurant, will be built by private businessmen on Marina land leased to them for the purpose by the city.

The ground also will include harbormaster and lifeguard headquarters, along with a fireboat and truck station. Space is open for Coast Guard and State Fish and Game Dept. stations, too.

THE SPREADING MARINE playground is expected to attract tourists and vacationers by the hundreds. It has already begun to draw celebrities.

Early slip reservations were made by such eminent yachtsmen as the movies' John Wayne, a former Long Beach schoolboy, Ward Bond and Bill Stewart, Union Oil heir.

They will occupy an Alamitos Bay that has grown from tidal flats to one of the most unique areas in the state just as one of its original developers, Arthur M. Parsons, foresaw 50 years ago.

Parsons started his career in Long Beach selling residential lots on the Alamitos Bay Peninsula which was being developed in 1903.

After doing some speculating in peninsula land himself and building a bayfront businessmen's clubhouse, Parsons became interested in the tidal island across the bay—an area of black mud completely covered with water at high tide.

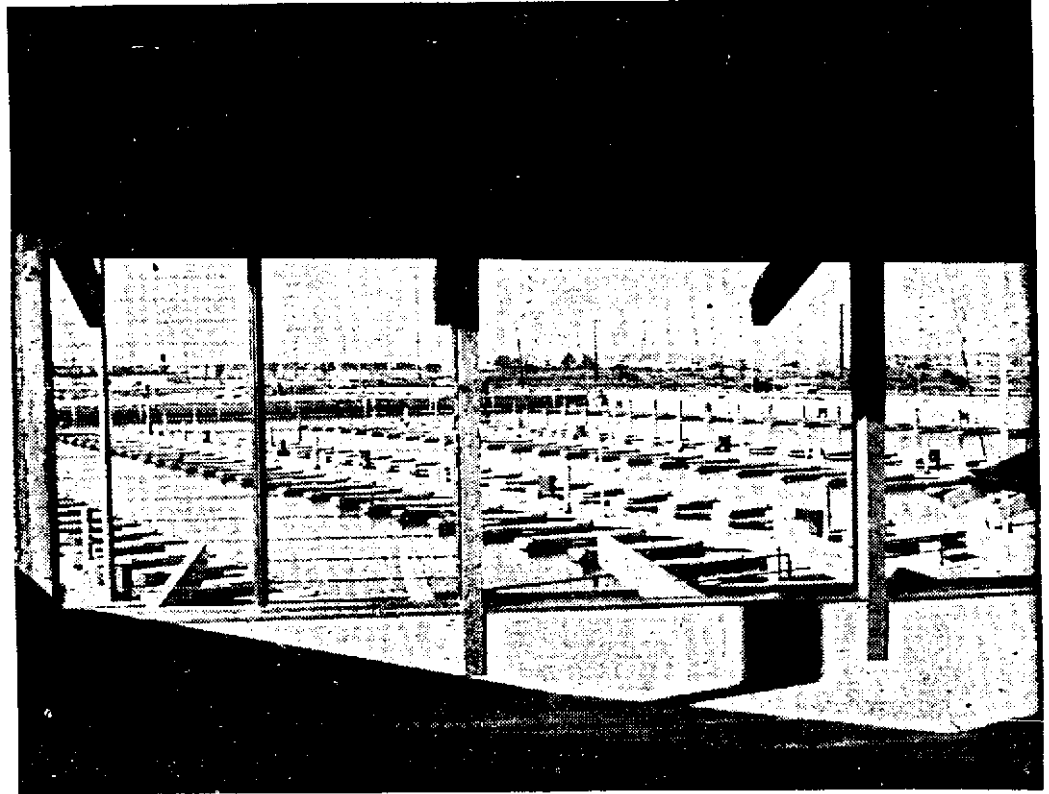

LAND TESTS SHOWED the island to be firm underneath the thin cover of mud. Parsons then talked the Alamitos Land Co. into selling the area to him for development into what he conceived as a Neapolitan-type of residential community complete with canals and gondolas.

Parsons' group dredged the bay, filled the island to a height of six feet above the highest tide, built the circular Rivo Alto Canal and walled the land in.

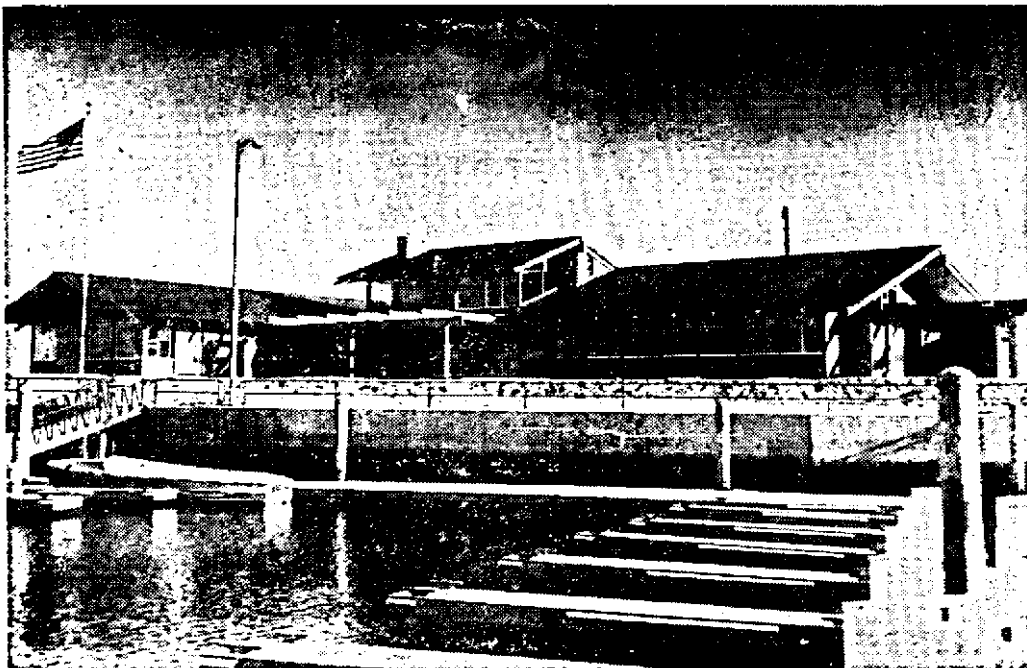

Affected by such factors as the San Francisco earthquake and fire of 1906, World War I and the depression, Naples has grown slowly to its present maturity.

The completion of the Marina will climax half a century of development.

The finished product will be even more spectacular than the grandiose plans of the far-sighted Parsons and the other early-day promoters of the Alamitos Bay area.

Thin coating of enamel is applied to plates for cans by machine operated (above) by Dick Vaughn of American Can Co. plant in Wilmington.

Flat sheets of enamel-coated steel emerge from high-temperature oven and are inspected by Earl Sides, foreman of the coating department.

You Can Buy Time in Steel Cans

CANNED foods saved 35 billion hours in America's kitchens in 1956. Eighty million hours were saved on canned peas alone, according to Miss Edalene Stohr, chief home economist for the American Can Co.

Frozen concentrated juices, one of the industry's fastest growing products, saved 192 million hours.

U. S. canners used about 40 billion cans in 1956, of which 62 per cent were for food. Consumers opened an average of 246 cans per person—160 food cans, 52 beverage cans and 31 non-food cans.

MANY PERSONS do not realize that making cans and filling them comprise two separate industries. Can-makers follow crops from before seeding time to harvest, making continuous studies of the requirements of each customer. Each can is tailor-made for a particular product.

Packers in the Long Beach area are supplied chiefly by American Can Co. (Canco) plants in Wilmington and Los Angeles and by Continental Can Co. plants on Terminal Island and in Los Angeles.

Canco's harbor plant at 110 E. Sepulveda Blvd. is the largest fish-can plant in the world. Its Vernon plant is the largest general can manufacturing plant in the West and one of the six largest in the world.

THE HARBOR PLANT has an annual rated capacity of 776,160,000 cans. It supplies about 20 principal canners of fish products, pet foods and citrus products.

By James Allen

The Vernon plant has an annual rated capacity of 2,073,000,000 cans. It produces flat-top fibre milk containers and cans for carbonated beverages, fish, oil, citrus products, vegetables, beer, shortening, eggs, spices, coffee, paint and chemicals.

The rated capacity of the harbor plant is nearly equal to the total production of the canning industry of the Iron Curtain countries, estimated at about one billion cans yearly.

Canned foods are a luxury in most countries. About 65 per cent of the total canned food production of the world is produced and consumed in the U. S.

J. B. Wickers, 2152 Petaluma Ave., manager of Canco's harbor plant, pointed out that tin cans actually are steel cans. They average more than 98 per cent steel. Some contain no tin at all, others very little.

CAN-MAKING at the harbor plant starts with the application of a thin coating of enamel to the flat metal plate from which cans are made. The enamel is rolled onto the plate in a press equipped with rubber rollers. The pattern for the particular can is cut into the rollers and thus is transferred to the plate.

Different coatings are needed to protect cans from the chemical effects of various food products. Before the enameling process was developed, cans became discolored by some foods. Corn was particularly bad. Contrary to popular belief, the wholesomeness of the food was not affected in any way. Only its appearance was changed.

The enamel coating also makes possible the production of caps with little or no tin.

AFTER THE PLATES are coated they pass through a 129-foot-long high-temperature oven which bakes on the enamel.

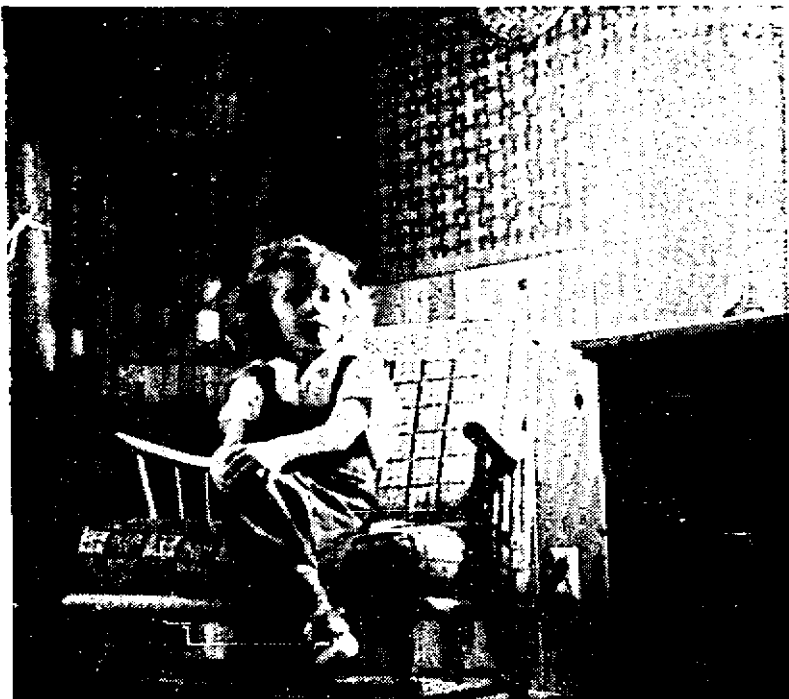

Next, a slitter machine automatically cuts the flat plate to the correct can body size. The blanks are fed into a complex machine called a body maker.

High pressure testing wheel puts completed cans to airpoundage trial. Only two in 10,000 cans fail to pass.

As a babysitter, grandfather has a technique all his own, and Barbara Lee Riehl, 5, daughter of the Robert T. Riehls of Orange, awaits hers.

No wonder Barbara Lee is eager to see her grandfather George Hicks of Balboa. He knows where best pastry shops are. He can work puzzles, too.

Grandfather Babysits

GRANDFATHER has never read a child psychology book. All he knows is love and understanding.

And the best place to get double-dip chocolate ice cream cones, and the best beach, and the best park with the zippiest slide.

Grandfather loves fun.

That's why he's the best babysitter.

His fee is paid with a child's laughter and it's a full reward.

His is a captive audience—a delighted, volunteer captive audience for the stories he knows so well.

Stories of cowboys and Indians, elves and leprechauns, lions and tigers, pioneers and pirates. They're better than television.

There is nobody like Grandfather.

There is no time like the magical hours spent with him in a world of enjoyment. A world made for a child's exploration and a Grandfather guide who carries the map in his heart.

GRANDFATHERS ARE MADE to be loved by children and vice versa. It's a special kind of love that comes wrapped in companionship.

And it's a love package that is tied with bonds of sharing.

Grandfather is the best babysitter in the world because he's old enough to recognize the warmth of a child.

Grandfather knows which beaches are the best and which stands serve the most delicious cones. There's just nobody like grandfather.

At the close of the day, both lives are enriched by true love and companionship. Memories have been established, to live on as the years pass.

Sled Dogs to Have Their Day

By Helen Smith

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Soper pose with three-dog team of Samoyeds. Soper is the chairman of the Sled Dog Derby.

THE SNOWY quietness of crisp mountain air will be split with shrill barks and sharp commands next Sunday, Feb. 3, when hundreds of Samoyeds, Malamutes, Huskies and St. Bernards converge with their handlers on Meadow Park at Big Bear Valley to pit strength and skill in the third annual amateur Sled Dog Derby.

Open to all dog owners in Southern California, the event features three to seven-dog teams who strain in harness while keyed to a driving pitch following months of training.

The derby, which does much to recall the early days of the Pacific Northwest, began two years ago with an exhibition by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Bristol of Agoura who own the Startinda Samoyed Kennels.

IN THE SECOND year more than a dozen teams vied in the long distance haul and this year a large crowd is expected to view the Derby which is kept alive by a group of individual sled dog enthusiasts.

According to Larry Soper of Newhall, chairman of the Derby and president of the Samoyed Club of America, Pacific Coast Division, race day will commence at 10:30 a. m. and conclude at 3:30 p. m. with a sprint race.

The schedule announced by Mrs. Bristol includes the opening endurance test, two-team relay, children's race, furlong race for women only, weight pulling contest, scavenger race, teenage race and lead dog exhibition.

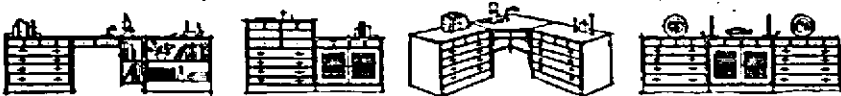

Soper said that all races and the start and finish of the seven-mile cross country event are visible from the grandstand. He and his wife, Ruth, will enter a three-dog team of Samoyeds, Champion Startinda Chimen-Tash, Ru-Lares Chiorara and De-Yata of Enigma.

ONE GROUP SURE to create a stir of interest is the five-Samoyed team owned by the Bristols. It is the only all-champion working sled team in the United States. It is led by the sire, Champion Starchaks Witangemote, the dam, Champion Startinda, and three of their pups from one litter. Ten-year-old Starchak will be retired this year, Mrs. Bristol said.

SOUTHLAND'S SHORT SHORT STORY

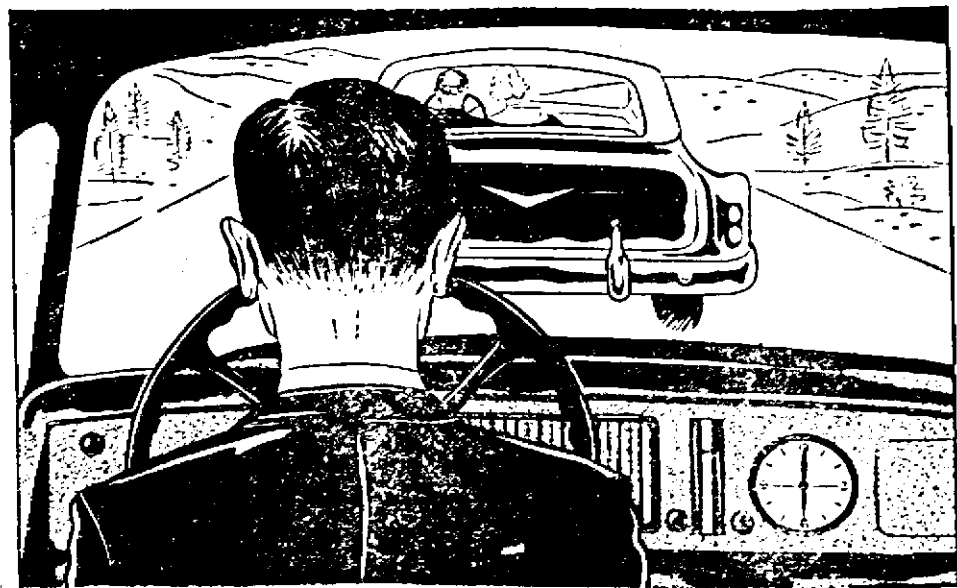

Red Light, Green Light

By Gloria Marie Schwab
Illustrated by Parker Markle

WHAT'LL YOU HAVE, Mac?
The bartender rammed a pouring spout on a new fifth and set it back on the shelf.
"Gimme a beer," Joe Venucci rolled a silver coin across the bar and watched the practiced hand pull down the tap.
"New around here?" The bartender made conversation.
"Yeah. Business call down the street." Joe raised the cone-shaped glass and felt the prickly amber liquid rise through the foam and roll down his throat.
"SAY, YOU WANT to hear a story you won't believe?"
"I'm listening." The bartender placed a clean, folded towel on the pouring rack.
"I just made a thousand clams by gettin' mad at a guy!"
"Never brought me nothin' but trouble." The bartender eyed Joe with more interest.
"I told you, you wouldn't believe it. Listen. I'm drivin' out to this new house I just bought for the small sum of ten thousand dollars. I'm hoping the old bus holds up for another year till I can get out of the hole I'm in from borrowin' the down payment on the house.
"I'm goin' along this road, see. There's one car ahead of me. A big job. Cadillac. We been playin' tag for the last five miles. He speeds up. I lose him. Then I catch up again. He's crawlin' like a snail. I'm trying to pass but there's no chance. Too many curves.
"WE'RE COMIN' UP to the intersection of Valley Boulevard. A drag. You know, lights, traffic. It's a slow bell for this road I'm on. The guy in the Cadillac is crawlin' again. So I try once more to pass him. No good. We're roundin' the last curve. The signal at Valley is green. I'm tailin' this guy so close I can see the bald spot on the back of his head. I can also see this dame leanin' up against him. He's got his arm around her."
Joe shook a cigarette from a crushed pack while the bartender rattled glasses in the disinfected.
"Pretty soft, I'm thinkin'."

Cadillacs, dames. By this time I'm getting to hate the guy. You know what I mean?" Joe's eyes questioned above the flash of flame. He took a long drag.
"He's even got a fancy frame around the license plate. 'Come on, old 12491.' I'm yellin' at him. 'Get off the road and do your lovin' someplace else!' Course he can't hear, but I'm yellin' anyway.
"We're almost at Valley when the light turns to yellow. The old goat steps on the gas and the Cad jumps forward like it's been punted for the goal post. I'm about to do the same, but by the time I get shifted into second it's too late. The red light's starin' me in the face.
"THERE'S NOTHIN' to do but stop. So I stop and I wait. I wait some more. Finally the light changes to green. I'm on my way again. I give her the gas. Anxious to get home to Rose and the kids."
Joe smiled and dropped his eyes. "You'd never believe it to look at me, but I'm a family man. Nuts about the kids, like to putter with new laws; you know the kind." The bartender nodded.
"I settle back and roll along. At least I'm free of the pest in the Cad. I'm thinkin' about the dinner that's waitin' for me. All of a sudden I round another bend and there he is!
"OH 12491!"
"HE'S BEEN crawlin' again. I'm right on top of him. I can see the bald spot. But wait!"
"Where's the dame? She's not leanin' up against him!" Joe flicked an ash toward the floor and raised both hands palms up. "Probably passed out I think to myself. The distance between us widens. He's pullin' away again in a fast smooth glide. Probably he's pie eyed, too. Well, to each his own I figure and turn off into my own street.
"Next night when I get home from work Rose meets me at the door.
"Did you hear about the dead woman?" she asks me.
"Dead woman?"
"They found her this morning in a ravine by the side of Warwood Road. Just this side of Valley. She'd been there all night. They figured she was killed about 6 o'clock. Shot through the head."

"Shot?"
"You were going by there about that time, Joe," she says to me. "Didn't you see anything?"
BEFORE I CAN answer she's talking again.
"Oh, of course you didn't. You never see anything!"
"Now, just a minute. I tell her. I see what's worth seein'. It just might be..."
Next minute I'm on the phone talking to the police sergeant.
"Now this might be something and it might be nothin', I tell him, but last night about 6 o'clock... I tell him the whole story; just like I'm tellin' you."
"12491. Are you sure about that license number?" He don't think I remember, see? Another swig of beer and Joe wiped his mouth with the back of his hand.
"AM I SURE! Look sarge, I says, 'I played tag with this guy for over five miles. I'm positive.'"
"Well, the great wheels of the law luzz into action and before you know it they got this bald-headed guy nailed. Seems he was some sort of nut they'd been after for a long time. A thousand dollars on his head, and who do you suppose is in line for this bundle?"
Joe tapped his chest with a stubby thumb.
"Yea?" The bartender uttered the obvious.
"The same. They had him dead to rights; he admitted everything. Course I had to wait till the trial was over, but the check came through yesterday."
"Me? I'm sittin' on top of the world. Rose thinks I'm a wonderful guy. The down payment on the house is all paid off. Money in the bank..."
Joe's little, shining eyes caught the clock at the back of the bar.
"Say, it's gettin' late!" He jammed out the cigarette and slid off the stool.
"I gotta get down to Murphy's car lot. I'm pickin' up my new Cad today. See you, pal."

"I'm tailin' this guy so close I can see the bald spot on the back of his head. I can also see this dame leanin' against him... his arm's around her."

foods are pre-cooked and do not require cooking after the can is opened. Most foods are cooked in the can, after the top is applied.

In preparing vegetables for serving, housewives are advised to drain the liquid into a sauce pan, boil quickly to reduce the amount, add the vegetable, heat quickly and season to taste.

Instead of reducing the liquid, it can be saved for soups, sauces, gravies or vegetable cocktails. It should never be thrown away, because it contains valuable nutrients.

IN RECENT YEARS, housewives have set a trend toward the number 303 (two-cup) can.

Use of this size has increased from about one billion to more than three billion in the past five years.

The beer can, developed by Canco only 20 years ago, now accounts for about 15 per cent of all can production.

Production of canned sea food has undergone tremendous growth in the past 50 years—up to 25 million cases or nearly 850,000,000 pounds of edible fish, an increase of more than 500 per cent over the turn of the century.

Canned tuna, now the largest fish pack, is valued at more than 100 million dollars annually.

which shapes the cans and solders the sides. A flanger then puts a flared rim on both ends of the can body, preparing it to receive the can ends.

The ends are being fashioned in a separate operation. Scroll shears cut the flat plate into strips and a punch press stamps out the can ends and curls the edges. Another machine pours a rubber gasket material into the curl of the ends, then dries it. The gasket material produces an airtight bond between the body and ends. This is the modern equivalent of the rubber seals used in home canning.

THE PARTS of the can come together in a doubler, which attaches the bottom to the can body. A similar machine in the cannery puts the tops on the cans after they have been filled. When the process is completed, the curled and sealed edges of the can consist of five thicknesses of metal, with the rubber compound between.

Finally, each can passes through a high-pressure testing wheel which rejects it automatically if it fails to meet standards. Only about two cans in 10,000 fail to pass.

Paper labels are applied by the canner. Lithographed labels are printed on the flat plate by the can plant before the container is fabricated.

CAN MANUFACTURE today is a precision operation requiring the supervision of expert mechanics. A variation of even 1/1,000th inch is enough to stop automatically a whole machine line.

Can-making lines can turn out 450 cans per minute, compared to the 600 which a skilled artisan could make by hand in a 10-hour day. Canco maintains specialized machine shops in which most of its machines are built. It also supplies can-closing machines to canners.

Canco nutritionists emphasize that it is unnecessary to remove food from the can before storage in the refrigerator. The can is sterile—cleaner than any dish, they say. Housewives need only cover the can before putting it in the refrigerator.

DENTS AND RUST on cans do not affect the contents unless severe enough to cause leakage.

Nutritional values of canned foods are as high or higher than any other type of food. Canned

Off to good start, Mrs. Kenneth Bristol drives 7-dog Samoyed team in Sled Dog Derby in Big Bear Valley last year. Derby will be held again on Feb. 3.

Bristols make numerous appearances with their beautiful white dogs especially around the Christmas season.

Exciting point of the derby as spectators urge favorites on to victory, is the crosscountry pull. It is run over a closed, marked course exact location to depend on snow conditions on the day of the race.

RULES FOR THIS event are strict and state that each team shall consist of not less than three dogs nor more than seven, to be handled by only one person during the race. No substitution of dogs will be permitted and all dogs starting must be present at the finish.

Sled drivers and meet officials are the only ones permitted on or near the course between start and finish lines. Drivers may be aided in holding and lining up teams. Starting order is determined by lot with teams leaving at three-minute intervals. Any team overtaken must yield the right of way if not able to hold its advantage in line.

If time and weather permits, the derby will end with a novice race where inexperienced dogs and drivers will try their ability in a mode of travel still used in some sections of the country.

Hawaii Boom

MORE VISITORS, more accommodations, more ships and more planes to Hawaii are in sight for 1957. At least, that's the estimate of the Hawaii Visitors Bureau and the schedule of hotel operators and carriers.

Upward of 145,000 vacationers - a great many of them departing from Long Beach - are expected to visit this tropical capital of Polynesia during the year. In line with their expected visit, the scope of things to do and see in Hawaii is being broadened. Entertainment, sightseeing and shopping facilities are on the increase on all major islands.

Three new liners, the Monterey, Lurline and the Matsonia will begin calling at Hawaii during the year. More flights as the demand arises are envisioned by the airlines. Several hundred new hotel rooms are under construction or on the drawing boards.

Hawaii's popularity as an all-year vacation resort registered an increase for the seventh straight year in 1956. More than 190,000 persons came and stayed two days or more. Many of them found the neighbor islands of Hawaii, Maui and Kauai, all growing in popularity along with Honolulu and Waikiki as places to visit. The 1956 total was approximately 21 per cent over the previous year, just as 1955 saw a sharp increase over 1954.

All of this is in line with the "discovery" of Hawaii by countless vacationers in the era since the end of World War II. The combination of an urban, modern American community with all the conveniences of home, tropical Polynesian language and the exotic infusion of the Orient has proved beguiling.

Travel officials see additional visitors coming to Hawaii in 1957 because the Pacific still is pacific in this uneasy era of international tensions. Several world cities have been suspended and many Americans and Canadians are looking West when they think of overseas trips.

Special events of early 1957 in the Islands will include the Japanese Cherry Blossom Festival blossoms in March. Hawaii's racial beauties vie at the Ka Palapala beauty pageant of the University of Hawaii on March 9. Hawaiian societies observe the birth date of Prince Jonah Kūhū at Iolani Palace on March 26. Traditional Lei day on May 1 is one of the Polynesian highlights of the year.

Balmy, springlike temperatures the year around add to the incentives for a visit to Hawaii, as does the continuing program of beach sports, native feasts called lūaʻus, fishing festivals called hula lūaʻus, hula shows, camera shows and cosmopolitan entertainment. Temperatures range from slightly over 72 in winter months to the low 80s in summer.

This is because come January or July it's always springtime in Hawaii.

A Desert Frontier Lives Again

YEARS AGO a promising town flourished in the new frontier that progress had brought to the Mojave Desert. Then the boom faded and the town that was named Hesperia slumbered in the sunshine for more than a half century, awaiting the touch that would re-awaken interest in the many good things of the soil, the sun and the climate that existed there.

Today Hesperia blooms again and observers see brilliance and permanence in the new look on the desert.

Hesperia is situated four miles southeast of Victorville and 23 miles from Lake Arrowhead by the "valley road." The expansive new development, begun in mid-October 1951 by a syndicate headed by M. Fern Phillips of Azusa, has broken all recent national lot sales records and weekly attracts thousands of visitors, its backers say.

HESPERIA ORIGINALLY was founded in the 1880s as an important stop along the Mormon Trail from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles. Of the old town, little remains except the three-story brick Hesperia Hotel, a deserted landmark visible for miles.

In later years, the Tatum

LONG BEACH'S OLDEST AND LARGEST EXCLUSIVE APPLIANCE STORE

This old hotel is relic of 1880's boom in Hesperia.

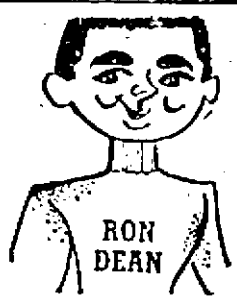

Brothers established huge turkey ranches here, raising thousands of the birds for Los Angeles markets. Finally the Tatum Produce Co. was formed, cultivating thousands of acres of mesa land, and harvesting fine potatoes, onions and onion seed.

The land, largely decomposed granite and extremely fertile, overlooks the Mojave River, "the river that runs upside down." The entire area is watered by deep wells from a gigantic underground basin, constantly replenished by tremendous rain and snow fall on the north side of the San Bernardino Mountains. Experts estimate that the underground sea, lying just beneath the sand, is large as Lake Tahoe, and produces enough water to supply a city the size of Long Beach.

THE DEVELOPMENT covers a 36-square-mile township of approximately 22,000 acres, including the old town of Hesperia and the Southern Pacific and Santa Fe Railroad stations. The land, with an average elevation of 3,200 feet, slopes upward toward the mountains and is covered with juniper bushes and Joshua trees.

Besides residence lots, the company has laid out one-acre to 100-acre sites for business and light manufacturing industries.

Saturday Night Supper

By Mildred K. Flanary
Independent, Press-Telegram Home Economics Editor

SATURDAY Night Supper is the one meal of the week that Mom is most likely to find any number of extras attending. It never fails! The boys meet their pals at the game and before it's over, she has been elected as the "cook of the evening."

For such affairs, Mom learned way back that the best way to handle them is with informal buffet serving, centered around one hearty dish. And Western Souffle with parsley sauce is truly delicious for such occasions since it will stay up right until the very last bite is eaten.

The meal could be rounded out with individual fruit salads, a basket of sliced sesame French bread, lots of hot coffee—served in tin cups to carry out the western atmosphere — and for dessert a large iced cake, made with a mix. This will not only be a glamorous-looking meal, but one that all will enjoy to the very last morsel.

Western Souffle

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1½ tablespoons chopped onion
- 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 3 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ½ teaspoon pepper
- ½ teaspoon thyme
- ½ teaspoon chili powder
- 1 cup canned whole kernel corn, drained.
- ½ cup drained mashed canned tomatoes
- ½ cup tomato juice
- ½ cup light cream
- 2 tablespoons chopped pimento
- 6 or 7 drops Tabasco sauce
- 3 egg whites
- 3 egg yolks

Melt butter in saucepan and saute onion and green pepper for 5 minutes, or until tender. Add quick-cooking tapioca, salt, pepper, thyme, chili powder, corn, tomatoes, tomato juice, and cream. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a full boil. Remove from heat and add pimento and Tabasco sauce. Allow to cool slightly while beating eggs.

Beat egg whites until stiff. Beat egg yolks until thick and lemon colored. Add tapioca mixture to egg yolks and mix well. Fold in egg whites. Spoon into shallow baking dish (10x6x2-inch). Place in pan of hot water and bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes, or until souffle is firm. Serve with parsley sauce or any other favorite cream sauce. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Parsley Sauce

Melt ½ cup butter or margarine in saucepan. Add 3 tablespoons flour and stir until smooth. Add 2½ cups milk gradually, stirring constantly. Add 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon celery salt, and ½ teaspoon salt. Cook and stir over medium heat until sauce is thickened. Makes about 2½ cups.

SOUTHLAND

Every man enjoys an interested listener, especially if she is his wife. (Posed by Mr. and Mrs. Orin Scholar.)

Put Men on a Pedestal?

By Stella George

WHETHER women will accept it or not, there is more than a mere biological difference between men and women.

European women have always acted accordingly, and they are happy and contented to be feminine in their relationship with the men in their lives.

Many American women seem to feel a spirit of competition with men (in some cases even with their own husbands). Too often, the man of the house earns a living for the family, helps out with household chores, does a part-time baby-sitting job with his youngsters, and is rewarded by being allowed to take the family to a drive-in theater on Saturday night, if mom hasn't planned company for dinner. It is a rare wife, nowadays, who busies herself during the day getting things in order primarily for the big moment when her husband comes home from work. Too frequently, his coming home is merely incidental, a minor interruption of a day's activities.

Before marriage, when a girl is being dated by various young men, she is usually smart enough to play a very feminine role, and make her escort feel strong and masculine. After marriage, particularly when children enter the picture, father is often relegated to second place when it comes to attention; and over a period of years male ego can become severely crushed.

IT IS USUALLY after marriage that most women cease to put their men on a superior plane. Career women, of course, often consider themselves equal to or better than the men with whom they work. The mere thought of putting men on a pedestal because they are men would probably bring forth a do-

The developers claim that Hesperia offers the homeowner everything desirable—quiet, sunshine and healthful living the year round, far from the smog-bound city. The clean desert air is cooled by refreshing breezes in summer, and the winter climate is ideal, warm and smog-free.

THE NEARNESS of the mountains and Lake Arrowhead appeals to summer and winter sports enthusiasts. The Hesperia Golf Club offers year-round golfing, and nearby is the Stoddard Jess Trout Farm, where visitors may catch trout up to 14 inches long. Also, nearby is the Victorville State Fish Hatchery, where trout are raised for restocking California's streams and lakes. Previously, from one to two years were required to bring trout from egg to table size. But now in the warm waters of the desert hatchery the fish reach catchable size within eight months.

To reach Hesperia, motorists should take Hwy. 66 through Fontana, through the Devore Cutoff and over the San Bernardino Mountains to the road sign pointing east to Hesperia. It's a beautiful drive on a bright day, especially for those interested in the wonderful American desert.

Hesperia's first schoolhouse was this brick building, now long outmoded. Modern new school serves the area.

THE contemporary home of Dr. and Mrs. Edward Neushutz, E. 5401 La Pasada St., stands for perfect housing for this family of four. Richard Poper and William Lockett, AIA, considered carefully the living pattern of the family before the first sketch was ever drawn for their consideration.

The floor plan, in its final form, involves 2200 square feet of interior living space—area that was conceived to integrate perfectly with the outdoors that includes a covered patio-barbecue terrace, a garden and a large swimming pool.

Essentially, the house is shaped in the form of an "L" and is situated on its corner lot so that it "lends" around the pool. Over each section of the "L" the roof slopes toward the streets in dramatic pitches that give the house an outstanding exterior quality. The two pitches meet at a high point over the porch. One part of the house (that facing south) is faced with redwood vertical siding. The other portion of the house is pale yellow stucco. An abundance of tropicals grow under the roof's sheltering overhang, following the contour of the corner is a wide expanse of lawn.

licity is in keeping with the mood of the house. The material used for this wall is concrete block set in even courses and painted a soft seafoam green, a few inches deeper than the walls of the living room. The masonry stretches to the ceiling and steps in an oblique line to conform with the sloped, exposed-beam ceiling. To the left of the fireplace, standing against the masonry wall, is a small organ.

THE CARPET for the area is pearl gray with a high and low loop. Carrying the wall color are pleated drapes of seafoam green, a nubby fabric flecked with gold.

Slanting up with the glass wall, the ceiling ascends to its highest point at its juncture with the north wall. At the ceiling level are fixed panels of glass that diffuse a soft light. Dropped below the ceiling level is a mahogany lighting trough that spans the length of the room along the south wall and turns to provide an "eyeline" over the opening to the living room from the entry.

The south wall is paneled in natural mahogany into which has been recessed open bookshelves. Displayed here in addition to books are golf and bowling trophies. Below the shelves are storage units behind touch-latch doors.

Over the patio is open concrete lattice spanned with translucent turquoise plastic. Set into the "L" of the house is a sheltered barbecue-patio that is ideal for al fresco dining. Here

THE ENTRY is floored in wavy red tile, a practical underfooting that saves carpet and at the same time sets the entry apart. From here, one can appreciate the abundance of mahogany paneling that was used throughout the house. The entry opens directly into the living room ahead and leads to the den-dining room to the right, an area that is the real "heart" of the house.

As one walks into the living room, a sweeping view of the yard and pool is apparent through a wall that is almost entirely glass with panels that open to the outdoors. On the right, through an open arch to the living room, is a masonry wall that contains the fireplace. Utterly simple, the off-center fireplace has a low, raised hearth topped with wavy red tile. Void of mantel or other embellishment, its striking simis an outdoor refrigerator and picnic table. Down one level is the pool.

To the right of the entry is the den-dining room, the area

that devotes itself to informal at-home hours for the family. Centering the room is a round, plastic-topped table that sets itself readily for dining. The ceiling is an architectural extension of that in the living room, assuming the same slope and similarly spanned with exposed beams. Along one wall is a capacious built-in buffet that eliminates the necessity of a separate, hard-to-clean-around case piece of furniture.

ONE WALL OF the family room is masonry that backs the living room fireplace. On this side is a counter-high, built-in barbecue unit. The floor covering is cork. Opening to this area is the kitchen, a fun-to-cook-in room that is very much a part of the living areas of the house. Separating it from the family room is a serving bar of mahogany topped with heat-and-alcohol proof, mahogany-grained plastic. Four tall bar stools upholstered in deep red leather and trimmed in brass nails attend the bar, affording a spot for the children to eat lunch as well as being a most functional feature for group entertaining.

Mrs. Neushutz desired to have her sink built into the serving counter between the two areas. Thus, when dishes are cleared off the table or the snack counter, the means of rinsing them is close at hand. Cabinets are all natural mahogany, their service counters topped with seafoam green plastic. The built-in countertop cooking unit is located under a window overlooking the front yard. The rather unique arrangement works well for Mrs. Neushutz who can keep an eye on her cooking and on the children at play in the front yard at the same time. The window is sheltered with white eggcrate lattice that extends out from the window to pattern the sunlight into rectangles of light.

ADJOINING THE kitchen is a large and sunny service area that is a real multiple-purpose room. A wide yellow plastic counter top faces a window overlooking the yard, an ideal place for sewing. Modern laundry facilities are arranged in functional order against one wall. An outside door opens to poolside. A half bath and dressing room of the service area serve swimmers as well as the children who can run in from play without disturbing the rest of the house. In the other wing of the house are the bedrooms. Eight-year-old Diana's room is on the corner with windows that overlook both streets. The walls of her room are powder blue.

Maple furniture has been used in Denny's room, which features a scheme of yellow and turquoise. A sandalwood carpet provides a neutral floor covering. The children share a bath that is a warm combination of yellow and sandalwood.

The master bedroom is large with a background of gray, highlighted with accessories of coral. A deep-piled pearl gray shag carpet covers the floor. Windows overlooking the pool are curtained in semi-sheer draperies of coral flecked with metallic gold. Club chairs, ottomans and occasional tables enable the room to fill the role of sitting room (when the children and their friends take over the rest of the house) for partying and television.

WHY PUT YOUR MAN ON A PEDESTAL?

luge of righteous indignation from the majority of women in this country. "What a ridiculous idea!" some would undoubtedly exclaim.

The paradox is that by doing this very thing, they would, in turn, elevate their own standing in the eyes of the other sex. When a man is married to a woman who makes him feel inferior (and often unmasculine), he may, if the occasion or opportunity ever presents itself, seek the company of another woman.

THIS "OTHER WOMAN," in the eyes of a wife who is suffering from hurt pride, is an unscrupulous hussy and a home-wrecker. She may conceivably be, but if a few of her feminine tricks were used by the wife, it is more than likely that the husband would never have left home in the first place.

The role a man has to play in almost any walk of life is a tough one. If he is married, he is expected to earn the family living. Except in rare cases of financial necessity, a wife may or may not work outside the home, as she wishes. Her job at home, by almost any standards is easier than that of her husband who must be at work each day at any cost. If what he is doing is appreciated by his wife (and subsequently by the children), his efforts will be worth while. One might almost say that a man is as important as his wife makes him think he is.

THE AGE-OLD question of the double standard is argued by many women who feel that this mode of thinking is unfair—to them. Whether or not women will recognize the fact, there is a double standard because men are men and women are women. A man can go out alone or with other men at night, have a game of pool, or perhaps enjoy a glass of beer in a local bar without causing raised eyebrows. A woman alone or with another woman engaging in similar evening pursuits is risking her reputation and possibly asking for unnecessary trouble. And yet there are those who have the attitude, "If he can do it, why can't I?" They might well ask themselves if their pleasure is actually in doing what men do, or in proving that they can, rightfully, emulate men's privileges and freedom.

Even a man who by nature is intelligent, strong, ambitious and endowed with a sense of humor needs encouragement in order to realize and utilize his full potentialities. Men who lack one or more of these traits must be inspired by the women in their lives in order to make the most of the attributes they do possess.

THERE IS LITTLE incentive for men to be gallant and attentive to women if they (the women) maintain a competitive status in business and social conduct. The happiest individual women are those who make the men in their life feel chivalrous and masculine. Some of the ways in which they accomplish this are simple and easy.

First: They are good listeners. They listen (and it's not always easy!) when a man talks, and are interested in every word he says. They also realize that the more interested they are, the more interesting they become.

Second: If they are wives, they will center their lives around their husbands'. Even if they work, they are aware that his job is more important than theirs because he is the chief breadwinner of the family (rare cases where a wife must work excepted) and his welfare comes first. If they do not have a job outside the home, they plan the day towards the time when he comes home from work. They make him feel welcome the minute he walks in the door, and see that the children react the same way.

Third: They are not influenced by chit chat of those women (many of whom are frustrated and neurotic because of their thinking) who seem determined to prove that "It's a woman's world!"

Let's face facts and make it a man's world as it was originally intended to be. After all, putting men on a pedestal will only exalt us in their eyes, and, if we are honest, isn't that what we're striving for in the first place?

They Starve on $60 an Hour

Suzanne Alexander, bathing suit model; Kathy Marlowe, pin-up favorite, and Marilyn Honold, a showgirl, show curves that gained them parts in "The Garment Jungle."

By James Bacon

Associated Press Writer

DIRECTOR Robert Aldrich is all for getting up a fund to send those beanpole New York models to camp.

"These girls actually are starving while earning $60 an hour," quips the director, a little on the over-nourished side himself.

Aldrich recently shot most of the footage for the movie, "The Garment Jungle," in the heart of the big city's vast garment industry along Seventh St.

The script called for a number of sequences involving models in high fashion dress and sexy undress. Aldrich, a stickler for realism as his previous record ("The Big Knife," "Attack") attests, wanted actual New York garment models. But he had to come back to Hollywood and use the local—and better developed—product.

"MODELS ARE an important and glamorous part of the garment industry," he says, "but those New York girls are ridiculous."

"I interviewed dozens and for the first time in my career, I was noticing the clothes instead of the girl. Had I been a buyer for a big department store, this would have been great but I was making a movie that I hoped would draw customers—many of them men—to the box office."

Aldrich said some of the girls, dressed in high fashion, were "passable in a weird sort of way."

"Let's say," he added, "that I looked twice at them."

HE RECALLS one in particular who came to the interview from a high fashion posing session, still wearing a frock that was copied from a Paris creation.

"The girl stood during most of the interview even though I offered her a chair. Finally, I asked her why she didn't sit down. She told me that the dress was so made that it was impossible to sit down."

"It's just for standing up at cocktail parties," Aldrich quoted her and he commented:

"The tragic part of this unbending creation is that the original cost $5,000 and even the copy didn't come cheap."

In "The Garment Jungle" most of the model scenes aren't run-of-the-mill type fashion parades.

ONE KEY SCENE, has veteran actor Lee J. Cobb rip off a model's dress, piece by piece, just to demonstrate the amount of material in it to his skeptical partner.

Through it all, the model is supposed to look blasé and expressionless as if having her clothes torn off in a sewing room happens every day of the week.

"The model winds up in the scene with only her flimsy undergarments," Aldrich informs. "Had I chosen one of the New York models I interviewed, she would have been laughed off the screen. I'm sorry to say that too many of them look more like boys than girls in brief attire."

Gloria Pall, who once had a local television show where she

BOOK REVIEWS

Man With Winning Ways

THERE ARE THREE of them —two sons and a daughter—when Banker Morrow dies and leaves a fortune. There's Richard, who takes over at his father's desk, and his sister, Kathy, and there's Charles, the eldest.

Charlie's the black sheep and he knows it. He's long since left the Connecticut town where he grew up and he's the New Yorker. He's neck-deep in debt with a new car and reckless living; and, although he's married, he's having girl trouble. So he buzzes into the old home town to see how he made out in his father's will.

Inside his brother's office he makes time with a pretty new secretary, but he doesn't do so well in the will. In fact, he's cut off without a penny. But Charlie has winning ways, and he plays every trick in Richard's office.

The action of "The Day the Money Stopped" (Doubleday, $2.95) all takes place from mid-morning until time out for lunch—which makes the story git up and git. It is the second novel by Brendan Gill, whose other good one was "The Trouble in One House."

AS SALTY as the corned beef carried on whaleships is "Grey Gold" (The Caxton Printers, Ltd., $1). This book about whale hunters of the oldtime square-rigged New England whaleships is based by Chester S. Howland on the actual diary kept by a young and enthusiastic lad on his first sea voyage around Cape Horn to the South Pacific. The diarist was John Baker, an Indian boy adopted by a whaleman. The voyage lasted four years, most time being spent in search of the great sperm whales, and one stirring adventure follows another in the writing. And in case some of the talk of the sailing men becomes a little obscure to landlubbers (or even present-day seagoing folk) there is a carefully compiled glossary of whaling terms in the back of the book.

BOO HAS GROWN UP. She worries about boys, dates, proms and formals, and how to greet a foreign dignitary. But at heart she stays a little girl—the charming, irresistible little girl of Margaret Lee Runbeck's "Our Miss Boo." The new volume, written by Miss Runbeck shortly before her death, is "Our Miss Boo is 16" (Houghton Mifflin, $3.50). In its understanding of the problems of teenagers, their desperate need to cross the chasm to adults and to life, the book is outstanding. It also has wisdom, love and humor.

VISITORS TO EUROPE in 1957 should not pass up "Handy Guide to Western Germany" (William Sloane Associates, $1.95). Compact and up-to-the-minute in its contents this handy little book, in the words of the publisher, gives English-speaking visitors to the German Federal Republic a picture of the world in which they will find themselves on crossing the frontier, and enables them to select their routes and destinations according to their tastes and interests. Written and compiled by Bernd Roehls, and printed in Western Germany, it contains just about every grain of information the tourist will need from where and how to go, where to stay, what to see, and various customs and regulations. There are more than 400 photos and illustrations, including more than a dozen relief maps in color.

IF THE POINTER on your bathroom scales moves past the mark where you want it to stop, it might be well to get yourself a copy of "How to Lose Weight, the Quick, Safe and Easy Way" (Random House, 95c). Written by Donald Cooley, an authority on diets, this handy pocket guide discusses the need for diets, supplementary diets, speed-reducing diets, with not-too-well-known facts about dieting tossed in for good measure. It also tells what foods to eat to get wanted vitamins and minerals and, best of all, it includes a complete calorie counter.

PRESSURES of the United States Government to move Osceola and his Seminole tribe to an Arkansas reservation, lead to the last-ditch stand by the Indians in their loved "grassy waters" of the Florida Everglades, related by Frank G. Slaughter in "The Warrior" (Doubleday, $3.50). Interlacing the historical account of Indian subjugation and the Seminole War of 1835 is the love story of Charles Paige and Marie Campbell, wife of the Army's hated Maj. Alan Campbell.

Out on Bond

By Blaine Nels Simons

MOST PEOPLE believe that a criminal suspect, upon being jailed, sends up the immediate cry, "Get me my lawyer." These suspects do need a lawyer and do try to get one as soon as possible, but it is slightly incorrect to say that obtaining counsel is their very first move.

Mickey Cohen is credited with having fittingly described the first words of the jailed suspect when he growled, "Get me my bondsman," some years ago.

The lawyer will get the writ of habeas corpus that sends the suspect free, but it is the bondsman who provides the where-withal that is first needed—money.

A THUG IS CAUGHT in the act of robbing a gas station. Another, wanted for some time on a warrant, is finally picked up by the police. A third is found loitering near a bank with a gun in his pocket. A righteous citizen who had "one for the road" is picked up for drunk driving while going the wrong way on a one-way street.

All of these persons have two things in common: They're going to jail and they're going to want to get out of jail. Some of these crimes are, however, more serious than others and so the amount of bail recommended by the district attorney for each will vary. But whether the bail set be $200 or $20,000, the yearning of all prisoners is the same—they want to be "sprung."

At this point the bail bondsman steps into the picture. Through him the jailed suspect will be set free until time of trial or sentencing. The bondsman is, in effect, an insurance salesman. The man whose freedom has suddenly been taken from him is faced, for example, with getting a bond of $1,000. Few will have this amount to put up in cash to secure their temporary freedom. For, say, $100 he will provide a bond to the court in the amount of $1,000 which insures that the prisoner will be in court at the time of trial.

This sounds like a good idea to the alleged lawbreaker, so he puts up the $100 and walks out of jail on bail. In a day or two he will come to court for arraignment; the bond continues in full force.

A FEW WEEKS LATER the trial takes place and again the accused must be present. If he is found "not guilty" the bond is exonerated. If, however, he is found guilty, the time for sentence is generally put over to allow probation investigation. Again the bond is continued in full force and effect without additional premium. After eventual sentence, the bond is canceled.

A $100 premium may be for a $1,000 policy that will be in effect for perhaps only a few days or a month at most.

Sound like an easy way to make money? Sometimes the premiums run into the thousands of dollars, sometimes as low as $25.

Customers? There are always plenty of these—the jails are full of them.

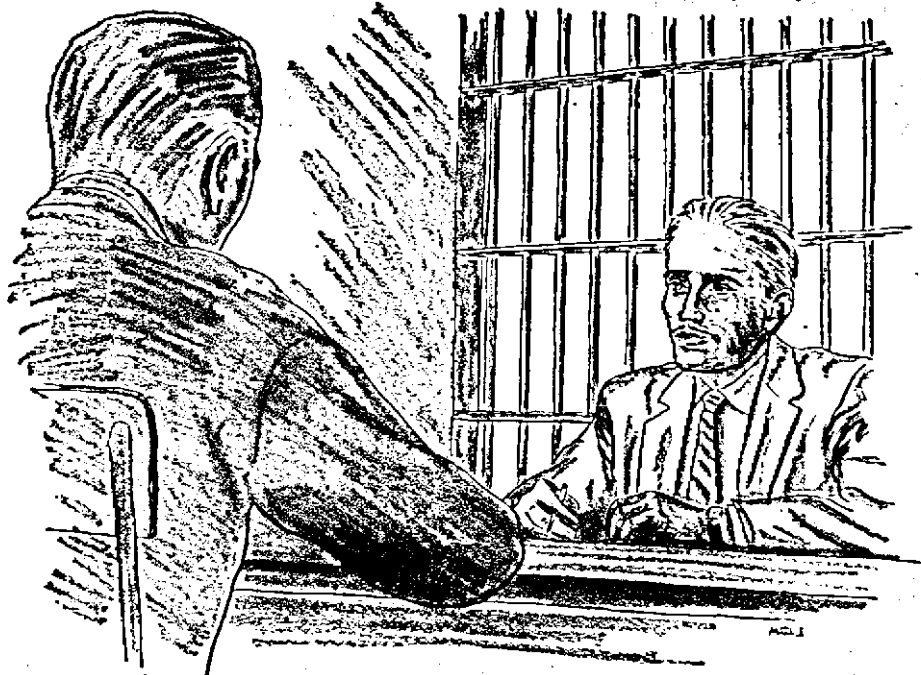

Money for premiums? It's always cash on the barrel head, so there's no problem there.

Why, then, isn't everybody getting rich by being a bail bondsman? Look in the classified section of your phone book for a clue. You'll find very, very few bail bondsmen listed in comparison to the other businesses and professions. It isn't because the business is a new one, and the "word" hasn't gotten around yet, for bail bonds are almost as old as crime itself. The reason is, simply, that financially, the business is perhaps the most difficult and frustrating of all enterprises.

ENTER THE BONDSMAN'S first problem. He is summoned by a suspect who, 99 times out of 100, he has never seen nor heard of before. The man wants out—fast. If one bondsman doesn't take the business there are others who can be summoned by the prisoner. Again, let's say, the bond is $1,000. The jail guest can raise the $100 premium. But there is still the gap of $900 between the amount of the premium and the total amount of the bond.

The bondsman in a few brief hours must decide whether he

The bondsman is a confirmed gambler in human nature. He must decide, often with only a summary check, whether the person seeking bond is a good risk.

ARMY SPECIAL SERVICES
A maintains a regular travel bureau on this sort of thing. Or he can go to the German Travel

Bureau. There's one in every railroad station.

Personally, I like Austria in the Tyrol. Catch the Paris-Arlesberg Express over to Innsbruck and work out of there. Every Austrian town has a local travel bureau, too. They make hotel and train reservations and probably are the most efficient travel bureaus I ever saw. American Express in every town has tours. And there are countless inexpensive tours especially for the Army.

We will be in Mexico in February. Is it the bull-fight season then?

THIS IS THE SEASON for the bull fights in Mexico. In Mexico City your hotel will get tickets for you. It is an easy taxi ride getting to the ring. But, getting out! I've spent over an hour wrestling for cab space.

My husband will be retiring at the end of the year. Do you know of any places, not necessarily out of the country, where our small income will go farther than in a large city?

THE HARIAN PUBLICATIONS, Greenlawn, N. Y., puts out a book called "Where to Retire on a Small Income." I haven't read all the fine print yet but it describes retirement areas in the East, the Gulf States, the Southwest, California, the Pacific Northwest and Hawaii, Virgin Islands and Puerto Rico.

In what section of Madrid shall we concentrate our shopping activities? We don't have too much time there.

THE BEST STREET to walk in in Madrid is Jose Antonio or what is called the Gran Via, the Fifth Avenue of Spain. A long stretch of banks and shopping boulevards where you can buy a pigskin cigarette case branded with the marks of Spain's best bull-breeding farms for $1. An alligator wallet goes for $3. This is fine finished alligator equal to French work or better. An alligator cigarette case for $1. Women's pigskin belts with little enameled flags of the bull-breeding farms for $1. Gloves at Zarro's (at Carmen No. 1, corner of Tetuan) for $1 to $1.50. But if you get brown, black or blue, try them by rubbing on your hands first to see if the color comes off.

With a new 150-ton dragon imported from the Orient, San Francisco's Chinatown will mark New Year Feb. 1-3.

Year of the Rooster

ALWAYS particularly fascinating to the Occidental eye, San Francisco's Chinatown, a transplant from the Orient, will be even more colorful when the Year of the Rooster, 1955 on the Chinese lunar calendar, is ushered in on Feb. 1.

The celebration in San Francisco, southern portal of the Redwood Empire, will be a three-day affair, and plans are in the making for a festival which promises to eclipse all previous Chinatown presentations.

Even a new dragon, a synthetic beast 150 feet long, has been manufactured in Hong Kong for the glittering night parade to be held on Feb. 2. Nearly 100 men will furnish the motive power to wind the dragon along from the City Hall past the Street of Virtue and Harmony and the Lane of Golden Chrysanthemums to Grant Ave.

CHINESE DANCING and music will be featured on an outdoor stage to be erected in the heart of teeming Chinatown, and plans are also afoot to produce at least one of the ancient, formalized Chinese plays beloved by the oldsters who still pad softly around the quarter as they dream of Old Cathay.

Strictly American will be another facet of the celebration—the coronation of the Chinese New Year Festival Queen on Feb. 2. The loveliest girls in Chinatown are vying for the honor.

ALSO OF THE Occident, but contributing to the gala parade, will be units from all branches of the armed services, augmented by Chinese marching units, bands and drum corps and an array of colored floats.

was billed as "Voluptua," got the job. She measures 33-23-35.

Aldrich had to conduct the search for models all over again when the company returned to Hollywood.

"It was a pleasure," he confesses. "There was not one surken chest, not one hollow cheek and not one applicant carrying her femininity in a hatbox."

Aldrich is not prejudiced against New York as such. He is of the Aldrich family, a nephew of Winthrop W. Aldrich, former ambassador to the Court of St. James. He also is related to the Rockefellers.

HE BLAMES New York's worship of the starved look on a snob aping of Paris fashions.

"There's some excuse for the malnutrition of Paris models. As children they actually starved through the Nazi occupation but these New York girls deliberately live on a diet of broiled lettuce and coffee."

However, he adds, there is always that enclaved exception.

Aldrich, patting his own ro-tundity, smiled:

"I hate people who can eat like that and never gain an ounce."

Aldrich, maybe with a little tongue-in-cheek, sees mankind affected by the conflict between the New York fashion model concept of femininity and the Hollywood promotion of the full-bodied types such as Marilyn Monroe.

"I CAN'T see either one of them pulling a covered wagon out of the mud, as our pioneer women often did, but I'll let Marilyn could pull it a little further than some of those 93-pound wonders I saw in New York."

"Don't forget the sons who have won our wars came from mothers who ate steak for breakfast."

The Hollywood girls who landed the model jobs in the movie are all steak eaters. They include Kathy Marlowe, a pin-up favorite; Jane Tolley, a starlet; Marilyn Hurrell, a statuesque brunette who works as a show-girl at the Moulin Rouge night club at night, and Suzanne Alexander, a real model. Of her, Aldrich comments:

"She models bathing suits—not dresses that won't bend in the middle."

This Is Hawaii?

By Joseph Grant
Associated Press Writer

FRENCH Frigate Shoals, a collection of coral specks in the Pacific, is officially a part of the Hawaiian Islands — but there are no waving palms or hula girls.

In fact, there are no trees or girls at all — just 15 Coast Guardsmen living on a coral landing strip smaller than the flight deck of an aircraft carrier.

They measure time by airplane arrivals.

A plane brings mail and supplies every two weeks. Twenty-six planes make a year, the length of a tour of duty on the shoals.

The chief activity is growing beards.

French Frigate Shoals lie 450 miles northwest of Honolulu. There are nine coral spits in the group.

A FRENCH EXPLORER found them in 1796 by almost banging his frigate into them. He gave them the name that has stuck.

A few birds and seals were the sole inhabitants — until World War II.

The Japanese were the first to use them during the war, when they launched a nuisance raid over Honolulu with a patrol plane refueled at the shoals by a submarine.

As a U.S. fleet moved toward the Battle of Midway in June, 1942, Adm. Chester Nimitz sent two destroyers ahead to check the shoals.

They found and frightened off a Japanese submarine, which could have spotted and reported the American fleet. The fleet went on to blast the Japanese navy at Midway in a battle considered a major turning point in the Pacific war.

LATER THE NAVY set up a landing strip, bulldozed out of coral, although personnel lived in barges anchored offshore. It was used only briefly and soon the shoals were turned back to the birds.

In 1944, the Coast Guard took over and established a loran (long range aid to navigation) transmission station.

The current loran base, on which is known as Tern Island, was built in 1952.

It isn't much, unless you like solitude.

THE COOK, Glenn Bashman, from Holland, Mich., helps break monotony by making pastel-colored mashed potatoes with cake dye.

"We usually have them blue," he explained during our visit, "but I wouldn't want you people to think I'm crazy, so I made them green."

Commanding—and only—officer is 24-year-old Lt. (j.g.) Robert T. Getman, whose wife Diane lives in Ilion, N. Y.

Second in command is Ensign Billie D. Archer from Eureka, Calif.

"I used to wonder, when I first got there, what was going on in the rest of the world when our radio went dead," Archer said.

"But after a few months I decided no matter what happened, it wouldn't make much difference here anyhow."

LIVING QUARTERS are comfortable and immaculate. Lt. Getman and Ensign Archer each has his own room with private shower.

Enlisted men live two or three to a large room.

Motion pictures are shown free every night and Coast Guard supply headquarters in Honolulu fills every food request that cook Bashman submits.

No hard liquor is allowed on the Shoals, but the men can have beer.

"People see pictures of a Pacific atoll with coconut trees, beautiful lagoons and lovely girls," Bashman said. "We get paid to stay here — we have atolls and beautiful lagoons — and none of us even miss the coconut trees."

"But no girls!"

can write the bond. He can make only a summary check of the man's assets. He can call the man's wife, his place of employment or his attorney to verify his trustworthiness. As those seeking his help are not always the "solid citizen" type the bondsman, in writing the bond, more often than not, has shaky security for the balance in case the suspect "skips" before trial. He is betting $900 (in our example) that the man will show up in court each time he is called there, as against only $100 put on the line.

AND DON'T THINK these persons bailed out always show up in court. Bondsmen would quail at the thought that anyone would think so. If they don't show up the bond is forfeited to the court and the bondsman pays the entire amount of the bond. In our case then, he would have lost $900. It will take nine of these premiums to make up for this one loss.

Even the confirmed better of horse races would not wager at these odds. But the bondsman would because that is his business. He can then only go after the person who has "skipped out" and attempt either to bring him back or collect the money lost. Doing this, however, entails more time and expense and, if the suspect doesn't want to go back, a certain degree of danger! Every bondsman, at some time or other, has a pot shot taken at him by a "skipper" who is reluctant to return to jail. Thus, even if the man is brought back, or the money collected, the total loss will not be completely made up.

IT'S NERVE-WRACKING, too. At every call of the courts' criminal calendars you will find bail bondsmen standing in the rear of the courtroom. They are there to see if their bets on human beings have paid off. They may have a dozen or more persons due in court in whom they have had the faith to place bonds. For days on end they may clock off a 10 per cent average on faithful clients. Then may come a drought where some fail to show and cannot be found.

Someone once said that bail bondsmen have no homes. The statement must have been made by a bondsman for they know this as a truth. The layman has only to consider when the heaviest traffic for a bondsman will occur—at night and on weekends. So it is that at these times the bondsman must be in his office to handle "the trade." If, therefore, he spends his days in court, chasing "skippers" and going over his books, and his nights and weekends at the office, there is little time left for relaxation at home.

HE NEEDS MONEY, too. If his first $1,000 bond goes away and he must kick $500 of this to the court, he'll need something in the bank as a starter. Then there are the usual items of office rent and overhead and family needs. These have a way of adding up, too. Just when he thinks he has it "made" for the month, that nice appearing old gentleman he bailed out a couple nights before high-tails it for South America and drops a card to say he's sorry. So much for the profits that month, and so much for a permanent feeling of financial security.

A strange and fascinating business, bailbonding. On top of its other problems it calls for the bondsman being a confirmed gambler in human nature. The odds are always about 10-1. There is always only one person to each race—the individual bailed. There is no win, place or show. It's win or lose and nothing else.

CAMERA ANGLES

Put Wings on Your Camera

By the Shutterbug

THE OTHER DAY we spotted this item in a winter vacation booklet put out by one of the nation's leading commercial airlines: "There's room beneath your seat for briefcase, vanity, or camera."

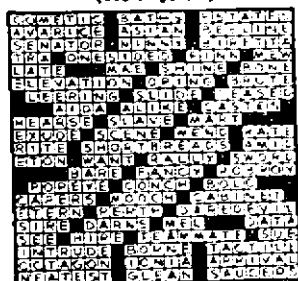

But we're willing to wager that if you're aloft with your camera, you won't leave it idling "beneath your seat" for long! There's just too much excellent picture material around that no self-respecting snapshooter will want to miss. Rivers, mountains, massive cloud formations, dams, bridges, harbors, farmlands—an everchanging kaleidoscope of views and patterns invites your camera to action as you cruise the sky.

We'll concede that a camera with a good fast lens and a highspeed shutter enjoys a definite advantage. But, under ideal conditions and at relatively high altitudes, even a simple camera can take memorable pictures from the air in both color and black-and-white.

HERE ARE A FEW basic points to remember whenever you use your camera in flight: (1) Be sure you don't let your camera touch any part of the plane, or vibration will blur the picture. (2) Minimize the effect of the plane's speed and motion by shooting "oblique" views, with the camera pointed ahead of the plane or to the rear rather than straight down or straight out the side. (3) To avoid reflection, hold your camera at an angle to the window or shield the lens. And (4) Use a filter to cut through atmospheric haze.

chrome Pan, Panatomic-X, and Tri-X in the 127, 120 and 620 sizes. A simple twist separates the two individual cartons joined by concealed, non-defacing tape. While the amateur snapshooter may buy both cartons of film, or only one if he prefers, the new double packaging is planned to serve as a reminder to buy that extra roll of film which is always so handy to have. The two-carton pack or a separated individual roll will fit easily into pocket, purse or gadget bag. The roll films are available at Kodak dealers.

PET PARADE

An Ounce of Prevention

Rebecca, Panama parrot, keeps things lively and jolly around home of the Dr. D. J. Crawford family.

By Eleanor A. Price

RECENTLY this column carried an article titled "Pets Are Good Medicine." The response from those in the medical profession seems to indicate that pets are not only good therapy, they are often the ounce of prevention that is better than a pound of cure.

The writer talked at some length with Mrs. Bess Crawford, school nurse, whose husband is Dr. Donald J. Crawford, 5221 Arbor Rd. Both Dr. and Mrs. Crawford are devoted to animals and find that pets keep them so wholesomely occupied that more pressing problems come into better focus.

"We like canaries," Mrs. Crawford said, "because they radiate happiness and well being. We have 35 canaries and are much interested in breeding for lovely song and plumage."

THE CRAWFORDS also have 15 finches and find them very companionable and adaptable. In fact, centuries ago children kept goldfinches as pets and tethered them by the leg with string.

"Our Panama parrot, Rebecca, adds a dash of humor to the home. Her chatter is funny, her actions of joy when we come home from work are still funnier, and her intense enjoyment of TV is even funnier yet. She prefers Western and Spanish music and often tries to screech out her own melody."

THE CRAWFORDS are teaching their children, Cissy (Carol), age 4½ years, and Jimbo (James), age 3, to be kind to Rebecca and never to tease her, for parrots have formidable claws and beaks and can make their displeasure known.

"But Rebecca is very fond of the children and can imitate their voices more easily than ours," Mrs. Crawford said.

Doves and pheasants are also in evidence at the Crawford home. There is much satisfaction in watching eggs hatch and then seeing the young develop, and the Crawfords believe that the cooing of doves gives a charm to the garden.

Another feathered favorite of the Crawfords is the Cochon bantie. They have three and find them clean and quick. The birds roost naturally in the trees, and have an endearing way of following the Crawfords around home environments.

OF COURSE, the Crawfords have a dog, Black Dahlia, a miniature schnauzer. The Crawfords believe that dogs are particularly fine as gloom chasers and as pets for children because a dog's love has no strings attached.

The Crawfords own several aquariums of tropical fish and are highly in favor of fish as a hobby. "And we don't overlook the good qualities of the children's two tiny terrapin turtles," they say. "Their names are Hustle and Bustle. Rightfully treated, turtles show their friendliness by sticking their heads out of their shells and waddling about or climbing small sloping rocks."

THE SILVER BAY Kennel Club of San Diego presents its benched winter dog show and obedience trial Feb. 17 in the Electric Bldg., Balboa Park, San Diego. Entries, which close at noon Feb. 5, should be sent with fees to Jack Bradshaw, 1112 W. 12th St., L. A. 15.

THE BOMER CLUB of Southern California will hold its Futurity Feb. 10 at Glendale Armory. For other information write Vivian McFarlin, 125 S. Buena Vista, Burbank.

How to Plant a Bare-Root Rose

FEBRUARY brings us into the big planting season for all bare root stock. Today, I want to pass along a few suggestions on the planting and care of bare root roses. Inasmuch as approximately 50 per cent of our residents in this area are newcomers to Southern California, we must keep in mind that growing conditions locally are altogether different from those in other parts of the nation.

Because of our mild climate, the rose must be treated as an evergreen shrub. This is true because, botanically speaking, the rose has no dormant season in local gardens. Even during January and February, our so-called "dormant" months, we find our roses swelling their new bud growth.

Acknowledging this fact as we must and adding to this the fact that our roses here give us at least nine months of bloom each year, we find that the only way to control the life of the rose is by intelligent planting, pruning, feeding, irrigating and spraying.

THE ROSE, like any other shrub or tree, becomes a permanent feature of your garden once it is planted. This in turn means that any extra attention you give to your bare root roses as you set them out in the garden will pay big dividends in the years to come.

In selecting your roses, use only No. 1 stock and you can very easily tell a No. 1 rose—it must have at least three or four good strong healthy canes. If you are a bargain hunter don't expect too much from bargain-priced roses. They are usually very disappointing in performance.

I like to prepare a new rose bed about three months in advance but at this late date we can't do this. Advance preparation eliminates the possibility of burning bare root stock so be sure in setting out your bare root roses that you refrain from the use of fertilizers around the roots of the shrub.

THERE ARE A NUMBER of good planting mixes on the market that will produce excellent results in planting all bare root stock. These are usually a combination of equal parts leaf mold and peat moss. You can make your own mix if you so desire. Mix the leaf mold and peat in equal amounts and use this one part mix to two parts soil.

In addition to using this planting mix at time of planting, it is a good idea to dust the entire rose bed with soil sulphur using this at the rate of three pounds to 100 sq. ft. Soil sulphur is not a plant food. It is a soil conditioner used to counteract the alkalinity of the soil but it is just as important as any plant food.

Coming now to the actual planting of the rose, if you will hold the rose in front of you, you will notice that the roots are at an angle of approximately 40 degrees. This is the posi-

Dorothy Digs

And now let's talk about roses. It's time to prune. Regardless of what kind of a season we are having, it's a pretty sound guess that between now and February 15 the danger of heavy frost will be past and your rose bushes will be far enough advanced in growth for you to get the greatest selection of the best buds to retain in order to promote new growth.

After you prune, the most important thing you do for the entire season is to give the bushes a thorough clean-up spray with a lime-sulphur-oil emulsion. This is both an insecticide and a fungicide and breaks down overwintering insect life as well as spores of such fungus diseases as rust, blackspot and mildew.

tion the rose was in when growing in the field and this is the position it should be in when planted in your garden.

DIG THE HOLE large enough to accommodate the roots (approximately 18 inches wide and 18 inches deep) and make a small hill or mound the top or apex of which should be just about one inch below the surface of the bed. Place the roots of the rose over this mound, draping the roots equally around it. Don't ever cut the roots on your bare root roses unless they are injured. If one or two of the roots are a little too long to fit in the hole, simply bend the roots around the bottom of the mound.

As you set the rose over the mound, be sure that the main bud or union is ABOVE the surface of the bed. This is all-important and might be of interest to those of you who come from other parts of the country where winters are very severe. In those places, the rose is planted with the main bud below the surface to protect it against freezing.

As you fill in the soil over the roots, stamp this down firmly with your foot, being careful that you don't injure the roots with the edge of your shoe. This stamping is very important. Most failures with home gardeners in setting out bare root roses is due to the fact that the soil is not tamped firmly over the roots. A rose that is properly planted cannot be pulled from its position without using some real effort. This is a good rule to follow in planting your roses.

FILL UP THE HOLE with soil to about three inches from the surface then fill up the remainder with water repeating this watering three times as the water drains off. This will wash the soil in around the roots eliminating any air pockets that might exist.

Following this, the hole is filled up with soil to the level of the rose bed. Basins around roses are frowned upon by better gardeners unless the roses are planted on a slope. Basins never look neat and are not necessary. Irrigation by means of a portable sprinkler will produce excellent results.

* Until the roses have become established and have produced their new growth, they should not be allowed to dry out. On the other hand, they must not be kept continually wet. After the first soaking at time of planting, water only as the soil begins to dry out.

DON'T FORGET DEPARTMENT . . . Don't forget that this is the best time to do all bare root planting including roses, fruit trees, bush berries, grapes and strawberries. . . Don't forget to prune your deciduous trees immediately if you haven't already done so. . . Don't forget this is the best time of the year to do most heavy planting. If you are a new home owner do as much basic planting now as you possibly can. . . Don't forget the garden section next Sunday and don't forget that the man who goes to church on Sunday will enjoy his garden better on Monday.

LUNCH

Cartoon by Milt Reppert
LEON GRIVEL
A New Policy

IN RECENT months, hundreds of guests put this question to Leon Grivel, owner of the unique Gay 90's Cafe.
2508 Palm Dr., Signal Hill:
"Why don't you serve lunch-cons up here? We'd just love to bring our friends and club
groups."

Well, sir, Grivel heeded the call. So last Thursday the Gay
90's Cafe inaugurated a policy of serving a continental buffet
luncheon Mondays through Fridays from 11:30 a.m. to 2 p.m.
The guests are offered a lavish spread of 15 different fresh salads, cold meats, relishes, cheeses, coffee and choice of a different hot entree daily or dessert. The price is $1.25 a person.

The entrees include such delicious things as chicken a la
king, round of beef, French fried shrimp, scallops or short-ribs. The guests receive the salads and relishes at a serving counter, with waitresses serving the entrees at the individual tables. Lively entertainment is provided by the cafe's two 50-year-old nickelodeons. The guests receive additional entertainment merely by strolling around the large sawdust-floored
dining room admiring the authentic turn-of-the-century relics and gimmicks which adorn the walls.

DINNERS ARE SERVED
starting at 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Sundays. Among the fine entrees are tender 12-ounce
Kansas City steak, $2.25; sweet
broiled lobster, $2.45; 14-ounce
marinated Spencer steak, $2.75;
frog legs, $2.75; shrimp, $1.75,
and fried chicken, $2.25. All are generous dinners including second helpings of French onion soup, chilled relishes, tossed green salads, spaghetti or French fries, hot rolls, coffee
and peanuts (you may toss the shells on the floor).

REG. U.S. PAT. OFF.

I'll always remember...

My long night at the South Pole

by ADM. RICHARD E. BYRD

CHECKING HIS GLOBE, the author ponders his latest trip to Antarctica for Operation Deepfreeze.

On one of my expeditions to the bottom of the world I found myself alone during the long polar night, living in the shadow of the South Pole. I had established a meteorological station to study the inland weather of an area still in the clutches of the ice age. My tiny shack was buried under the snow and there were 800 feet of ice under the shack. Cut off by darkness, cold and ice from any physical contact with the rest of the world, I had the strange feeling of being on another planet.

As the weeks of the long night wore on, the temperature got lower and lower. The barrier of ice contracted and began cracking as if with the sound of cannons. Bottomless crevasses opened up around my shack. My records began to show that probably I had come upon the world's coldest area.

Suddenly disaster struck. In the middle of the polar night I was poisoned by carbon monoxide from the faulty burner of my oil stove. To cut down the poison I had to keep my stove out 12 hours of the 24. The ice started crawling up the walls of the shack and then across the ceiling. Soon the poison affected my eyes so that the flickering candles no longer afforded enough light to read the books I had on a shelf.

Thus, most of the time I lay in my sleeping bag in the months of darkness with nothing to do but think. Soon my gloomy thoughts began to take charge of me. So I found that I must somehow completely control them. Gradually, with great effort, I did. In the field of imagination, I learned that I could throw my thoughts backward or forward in the stream of time and space to any place I chose.

IN THIS HUT the famed explorer spent seven months of 1935 in total isolation.

But these mental adventures were in the physical field and were not enough. So I explored as best I could into the uncharted areas of the mind. It was then I discovered how much a man's world can be a world of the mind. And that a man himself determines or makes his world, which to a degree is the reflection of his inner self wherein dwells the universal spirit of good.

It seemed to me that if a man could bring about the domination of his spiritual self over his material, he could dry up the springs of fear and could then be captain of his ship and invulnerable to any fate, even to the sting of death.

And so man's problem in the last analysis is man himself. A man beset by evil within and from without can mobilize his spiritual resources to conquer that evil. Just so can the human race mobilize its moral and spiritual power to defeat the material power of evil that threatens it.

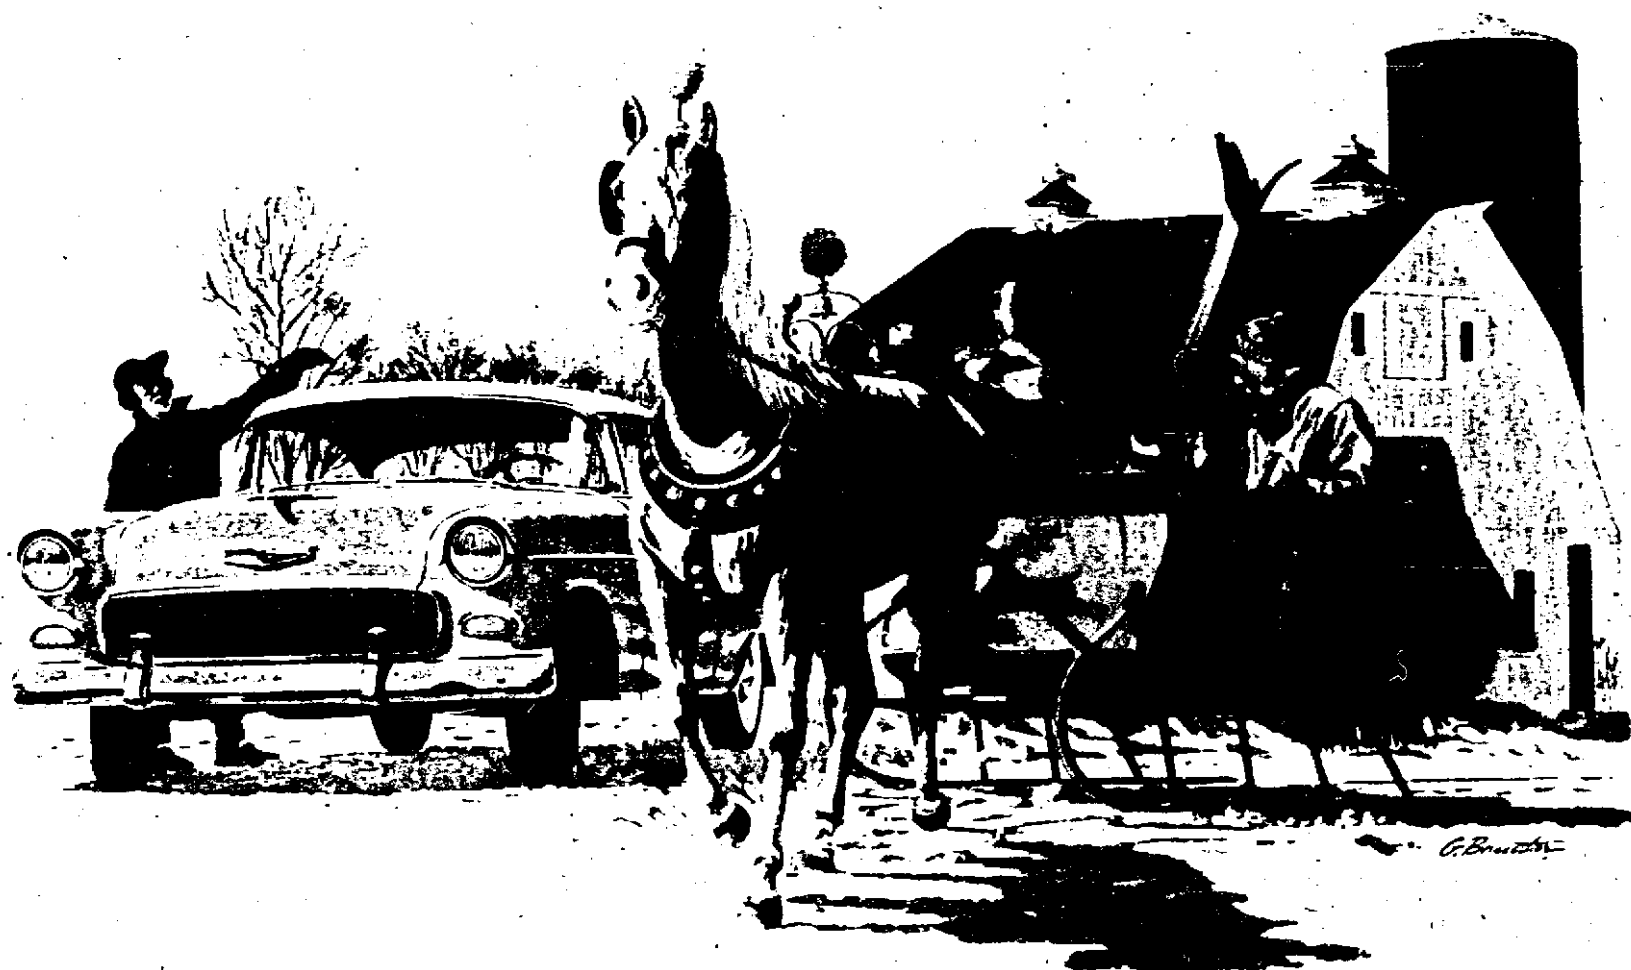

For seven months — in complete isolation from the world — I pondered these matters. Then the rescue party came and once again I returned to civilization. But when I left that tiny shack at the Pole I had reached the conclusions written on this page. They have never left me.

That's only a part of what we mean when we say OK Used Cars are RECONDITIONED FOR VALUE

An important point in the purchase of a used car is the degree to which it has been skillfully restored—inside and out—to enhance appearance and protect against future wear. We refer to this process as "Reconditioned for Value" when we cite the six reasons why OK Used Cars are the thoroughbreds of the lot (read the other five below). At the sign of our red "OK," you'll find the skill, training and modern facilities required to give our cars that "almost new" look that everyone admires. Come in and see for yourself how our volume trading on the new Chevrolet (first in sales last year again) results in volume savings. You'll get a far greater selection of makes and models to choose from, too!

Only franchised Chevrolet dealers display these famous trademarks

CAREFUL INSPECTION

Only the best can pass this test. They've got to satisfy our experts.

RECONDITIONED FOR PERFORMANCE

We have trained experts and modern facilities to do this job properly.

RECONDITIONED FOR SAFETY

We rebuild that "like new" feeling of safety into OK Used Cars.

HONORABLY REBUILT

Our cars live up to what we say about them. Our reputation depends on it.

What about
"bedtime rituals"?

Care and feeding of baby's hair!

How To Help Baby Toward 3 Meals A Day

ANYWHERE from 4 to 10 months—as your baby seems able to wait longer between feedings—he'll be ready to switch to the 3-meal schedule you're been hoping for! No fair hurrying him—but you can help. Give him a big breakfast, not just a bottle. If he fusses around 10 o'clock, see if a ride or a "creeping tour" will help him wait for a big noon meal.

• Some days, when he first goes on his "grown-up" schedule, he'll get ravenous by 11:30. Fortunately, you can open baby food containers in a jiffy! Ask the doctor about giving baby a drink of orange juice or a teething biscuit—midmorning or mid-afternoon—to help him "survive" until the next big meal.

• A fine way to "wind down" your busy toddler's day is the bedtime ritual. Dolly gets her teeth brushed, Teddy goes into his crib, Mommy sings a song, everybody says their prayers. Some toddlers insist on the same routine each night—others like a change. But every little charmer will add something to the ritual!

• Coming soon: a new Heinz Baby Food label to cut shopping time. Extra-easy-to-read lettering will help you find the Heinz Baby Foods you want in a hurry.

• Do you know your baby's hair—as well as his body—needs a well-balanced diet for nourishment? Proper "care and feeding" of hair includes good food, exercise and cleanliness. A shampoo once or twice weekly is usually enough.

Gentle brushing, with a soft brush, supplies exercise. (If baby is bolder than his granddaddy, don't worry. Hair-do's change fast in these early months!)

• Egg yolk brings a golden supply of nutritional goodness to your baby: protein and Vitamin A to grow on plus blood-enriching, health-protecting iron. Happily, babies love the taste of Heinz Egg Yolks. It's the deliciously fresh taste of top-quality eggs, captured and kept fresh in protective glass jars. Each jar contains more than 3 creamy-textured yolks.

• If you wrap a newborn's tight-fisted little hands around a rod, he can support his own weight—to the vast delight of his Daddy. This strong-man trick is due to an automatic reflex, which lasts only a few weeks. But baby soon produces many other remarkable talents for his Daddy to brag about.

• Today's grandmothers, who spent countless hours scraping expensive meal for babies, are big boosters for Heinz mother-saving and money-saving Strained Meats. A new fast-cooking process—used only in Heinz baby-food kitchens—gives Heinz 8 Strained Meats a smooth, moist consistency that feels as good on baby's tongue as it tastes. By keeping ahead of the times in cooking techniques, Heinz folks have produced better-tasting foods since 1869.

RICHER by $2,500, thieves spelled out their gratitude.

FOND FAREWELLS

by JOHN R. ADVENT

Driving up to the state penitentiary in Walla Walla, Wash., to deliver two prisoners, a deputy sheriff opened the back door of the van. Instead of felons he found this note: "Dear Jim, sorry to eat and run but we have to catch a train."

contribution to my Alma Mater during the current emergency."

Bread-and-butter note left by a prisoner who sawed his way out of a jail in Gastonia, N.C.: "Sorry to have run out. You folks have been real nice to me."

Three years after his wallet had been lifted from his pocket, a man in Manitowoc, Wis., got it back via the mails—along with $30 and a note that read: "I have picked many a pocket, but ever since I picked yours I have been having bad luck."

Apology from a prowler who broke into the office of the Walnut Hills, Ohio, high school: "Dear all of you: I didn't mean to break into this office, but I need money bad. I did not find any. Please forgive me. It won't happen again. Duck."

Having stolen $2,500 from a Cambridge, Mass., car dealer, thieves spelled out one grateful word in coins on his desk: "Thanks."

Critical comment from burglars who emptied the safe of a lumber firm in Forest City, Ark.: "Your safe is still a tin can. See you next trip."

Thoughtful thieves in Lake Orion, Mich., left this message for a woman from whose car they had filched three hub caps: "Don't drive too fast. We also stole your oil can."

Postcard to the chief of police in Sidney, Neb.: "Drop dead."

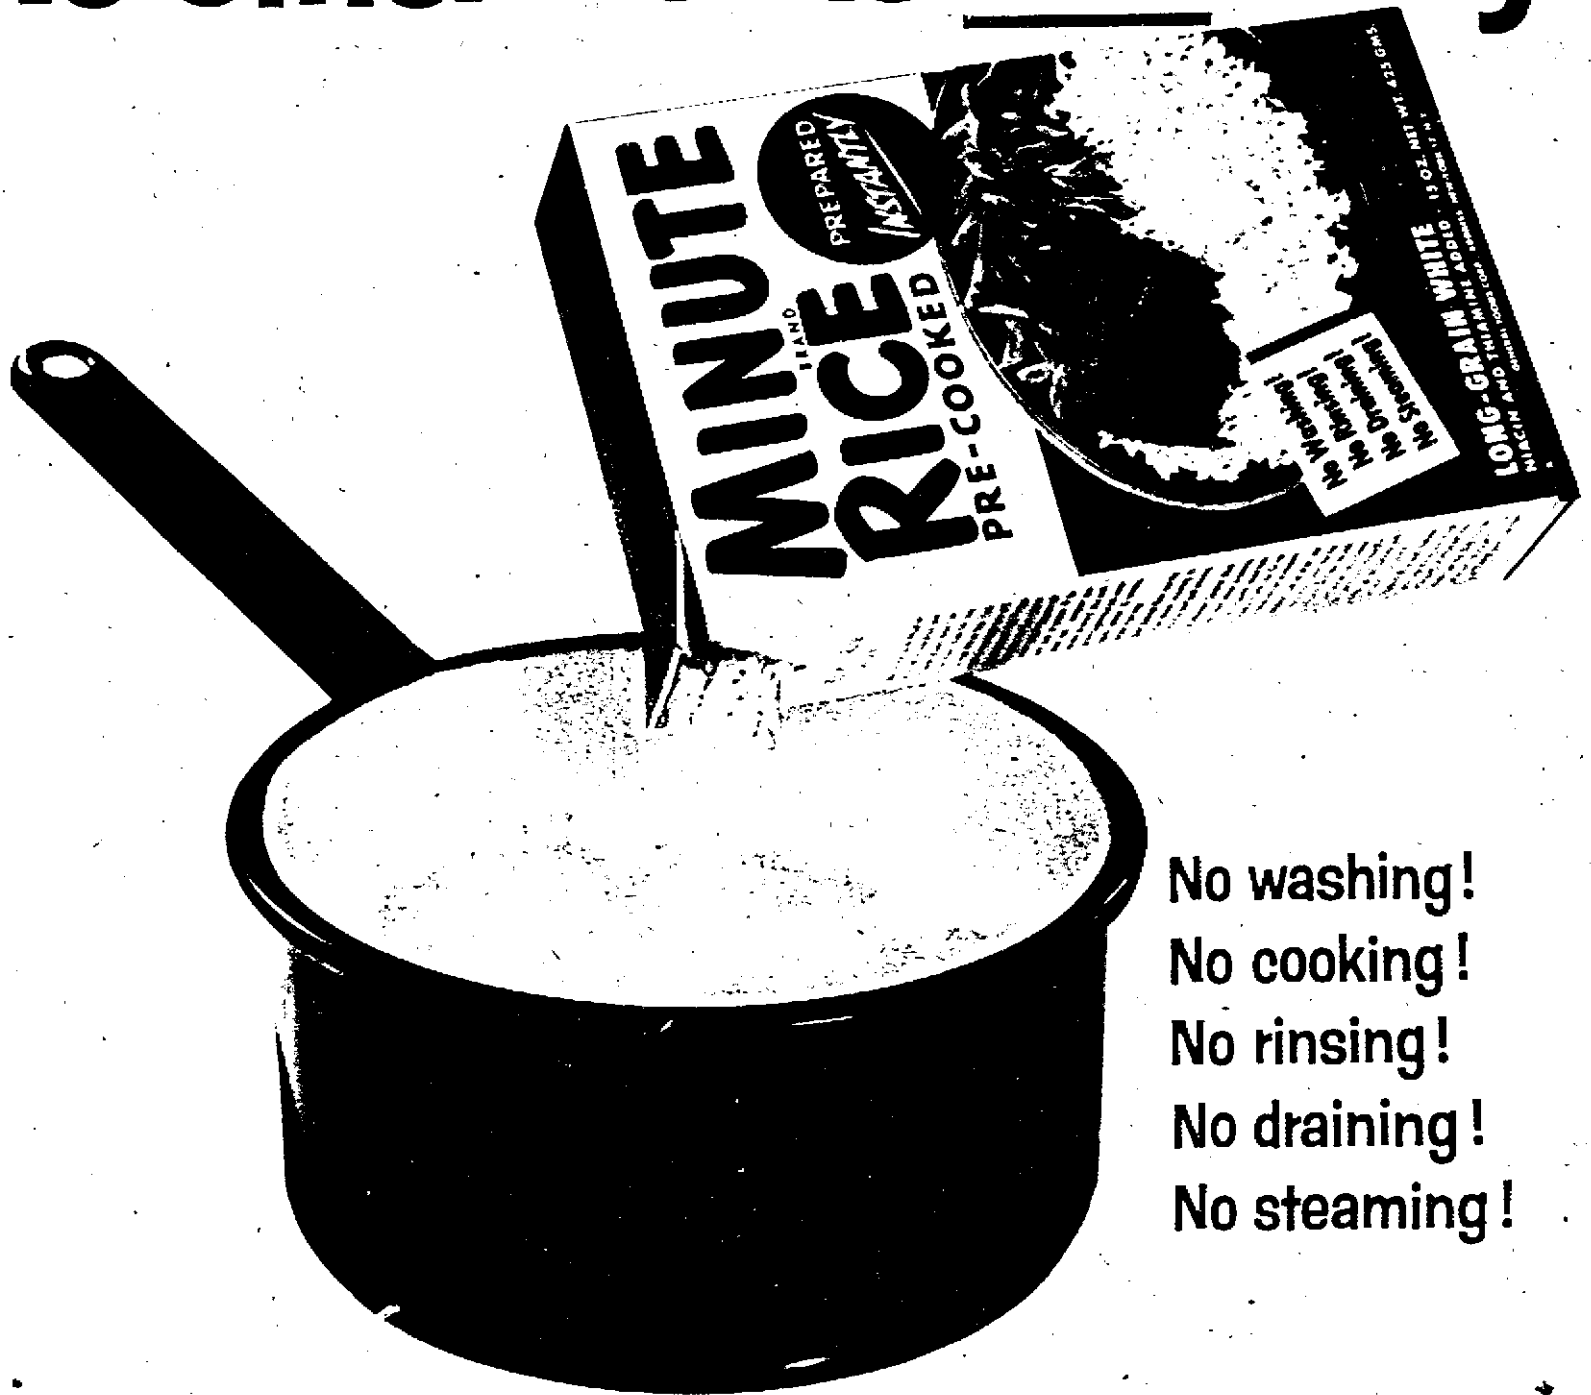

After 37 of his prize homing pigeons had been stolen, a Chicago fancier was happy to see seven of them back on their roost—until he read a note tied to one bird's leg: "You'll never see the rest again."

In St. Louis, a patient gentleman hauled a 250-pound safe from a second-floor office to a first-floor workshop, where he laboriously ground off the door hinges, only to find the safe empty. He then left a note apologizing for damaging the safe and signed it, "The Friendly Burglar."

tell how they improved their figures with the famous Knox Eat-and-Reduce Plan

"Here we are before we discovered the famous Knox Eat-and-Reduce Plan."

"Today we like ourselves much better, and so do our husbands and children."

Read their own story

"We used to look at each other and joke about our figures. But, honestly, we hated being overweight, and several times we tried various ways to reduce. We love good food, and we just couldn't stick very long to those monotonous diets. Other reducing gadgets didn't help much, either.

"A friend told us about the Knox Eat-and-Reduce Plan, and skeptically we started in. Well, after only three weeks of it, one was down 14 pounds, the other 11. But, best of all, we found it actually was fun. The Knox Choice-of-Foods Chart let us pick and choose most of the foods we like best. Three good meals a day, even desserts, and between-meal snacks, too.

"We used lots of the recipes in the Eat-and-Reduce book and followed the easy rules. Our husbands loved these meals, too. We did our housework and took care of our children as usual, and each week we seemed to have more pep—weren't all tired out by nighttime as we had been before. The doctor weighed and measured us as we went along, and the news was wonderful. Today one of us is 42½ pounds lighter, the other 35 pounds lighter. Today, one's hips are 8½ inches less around, the other's waist is 5½ inches less. Our friends can hardly believe it, and now, at least a dozen of them are on the Plan. As for us, we never felt better in our lives."

MOTHER AND DAUGHTER, close friends and confidantes, work together on Eleanor Hollandsworth's formal gown. The St. Joseph, Mo., mother couldn't date until she was 18, wonders what her own mother would think of Eleanor's privileges.

• by SID ROSS

"NAGGING," Eleanor rearranges Jim's hair. Possessive and a little demanding, she frequently criticizes his clothes.

WATCHING TV, Jim, Eleanor and brother Bruce sprawl in Hollandsworth living room. Jim drops in for "house dates" as often as he is allowed.

A 15-YEAR-OLD'S MOTHER SAYS:

EDITOR'S NOTE: To many U.S. parents, steady dating by teenagers is an explosive subject. Recently it has been questioned by some sociologists, teachers and religious leaders. Not every parent agrees, yet most eye the subject with real concern. Here PARADE brings you a mother who feels just the other way.

ST. JOSEPH, MO.

ONE DAY LAST SUMMER, 14-year-old Eleanor Hollandsworth hung her neck chain and scarf on the rear-view mirror of 17-year-old Jim Lisenbee's car. Simultaneously Jim gave Eleanor his gold football and his name disk, and she clipped them around her neck. In the ritual of the St. Joseph teenager, they were officially "going steady."

Most parents become uneasy when children "get serious." So it was with Eugene Hollandsworth, a bakery-truck driver here, and his wife Dorys, state editor of the St. Joseph News-Press. Almost overnight their daughter had blossomed into a slender, pretty young woman, well along toward physical and mental maturity. And Eleanor had had her first date, with some stout parental strings attached, at 13½. The Hollandsworths still didn't know that they liked the idea.

After six months of Eleanor and Jim, however, they know. Mrs. Hollandsworth is not the type to hurl challenges at experts, nor to advocate her course for every worried parent. She realizes she is taking the unpopular side of a major controversy.

But for herself, she says flatly: "I'm glad my daughter goes steady. I think it's the best thing for her."

The Hollandsworths, of course, have faced a drumfire of arguments and warnings. They have read repeated blasts against steady dating. They know that some psychologists say limiting teen-age friendships to one person can damage the budding personality; that others say the physical and emotional stresses are too great; that some youth counselors predict earlier marriages and more teen-aged pregnancies as the result; that many marriage counselors fear steady dating and whirlwind marriages will drive up divorce rates.

In addition, the Hollandsworths have seen the consequences of steady dating at first hand. These include a great deal of Jim Lisenbee: on the telephone, at the door, in the living room watching TV; a shutout of other boys and a sharp dropoff in activities with girl friends; and an increase in open affection, with its hand-holding and cuddling, and the resultant fears in a mother's mind.

Against all this, why is Eleanor Hollandsworth, now barely 15 and only a sophomore in high school, allowed to go steady?

Part of the answer is Jim Lisenbee. The Hollandsworths know Jim as a quiet, respectful boy who treats them courteously and yields to Eleanor's every whim. He has his drawbacks — Mrs. Hollandsworth, for instance, is disappointed that he quit high school as a junior to work for his contractor father — but they like him and trust him.

Again, Eleanor is mature for her age. In spite of her whispered "serious" conversations with Jim, she remains the typical teenager, excited by good times and anxious for more of them. "It's a good feeling, going steady," she says eagerly. "It's not being serious, not quite. It means giving up other boys and even some of my running around with other girls, but it suits me fine."

Arguments in Favor

Her mother adds: "A girl can give you innumerable reasons why she should go steady. I think we've heard them all. And many of them, oddly enough, make more sense than you would believe."

For one thing, the Hollandsworths have found steady dating a new source of family unity. Instead of driving Eleanor away with their disapproval, they are more in her confidence than ever. Eleanor's first stop when she comes home from a date is her mother's bedroom, where she gives a full report — because she wants to.

Almost as convincing an argument, the Hollandsworths found, was that Eleanor's going steady DANCING, Jim is backward as Eleanor tries to teach jitterbugging. A patient type, he usually gives in to her demands.

VISITING, Eleanor eats dinner with Lisenbee family. Eleanor is a favorite of Jim's 2-year-old brother, often spends afternoons reading to him.

ALWAYS TOGETHER, Eleanor and Jim tramp through snow-covered field on Saturday-afternoon "date." He's teaching her to shoot—a hobby of his. Often, she rides with him on truck trips.

daughter goes steady'

increased their control — over curfew, companions and choice of entertainment. This had been a constant source of friction since Eleanor's first-date, not so much with her as with her escorts.

"After that first time," Mrs. Hollandsworth recalls, "it was a steady parade of crew-cuts. All kinds of boys, and we didn't get to know any of them, really. They pop in once or twice, and how can you find out anything about them, or their parents, or their reputation? We'd try to explain our rules, but they didn't always take. And then next week there'd be a new one to straighten out about our rules."

Her parents always have felt they could trust Eleanor, and she has tried to live up to their code: dates Friday or Saturday only, a 10 p.m. curfew except on very special, prearranged occasions, certain places off-limits, "showoff" driving forbidden. Eleanor didn't like all the rules — "I thought I should be able to stay out later" — but she obeyed. Several times she even left a movie at the climactic moment to be home on time.

But there were hitches. Once a boy's parents took the youngsters to a night baseball game in Kansas City, assuring Eleanor it would be all right. They didn't tell the Hollandsworths, who were frantic by the time Eleanor arrived at 1 a.m. And double dates meant trouble; Eleanor hated to be a spoil-sport who insisted on going home. Several times, her dating privileges had to be suspended for a while.

All this has changed. "Jim knows what we expect," Mrs. Hollandsworth points out. "He'll make sure I know exactly where they're going and what they're going to do. Occasionally, they'll change their plans and then Eleanor will call and tell me so."

Mrs. Hollandsworth still stays awake until Eleanor comes home, but without the worried floor-pacing of the past. And she need not stay up so often: frequently Jim and Eleanor spend their dates at home, watching TV or just sitting around. Often they spend an evening with the Lisenbees, who like Eleanor as well as the Hollandsworths like Jim.

And Jim spends some evenings trying to help

Eleanor with her homework. Both know that if her grades — now in the "average" bracket — slip, there will be no more dating. As a result, her report cards have improved a little. "That's something else on the positive side," says Mrs. Hollandsworth. "It's a kind of inspiration to her."

As her husband sees it, there is another kind of inspiration. "These kids look after each other and take care of each other," he says. "If one tried to do anything wrong, the other would crack down."

Mr. Hollandsworth's job keeps him at work from 1 a.m. to noon, so he hasn't taken too much part in handling the dating question. But he is a stickler for safe driving and for keeping his daughter out of shady places. Often in the past he made a point of lecturing boys on wildness at the wheel.

A Taxi Always Handy

Jim's driving, however, has the Hollandsworths' approval, and Eleanor takes advantage of it. "He's hooked," she says, reflecting on another asset of a steady. "I can always call him to take me places or do things for me." Her mother has told her pointedly that perhaps Jim resents being a taxi service. "Mother, if he didn't want to, he'd tell me," Eleanor replies.

Mrs. Hollandsworth confesses that a "taxi service" is soothing to a worried mother. "I never liked her even to go to school activities by herself if I knew she had to come home alone," she says.

And Jim doesn't seem to mind. Nor does he mind Eleanor's fussing over his clothes, or insisting he help her at home, or deciding where they'll go. "That's sort of the price you pay for going steady," he says. "But it's worth it. Eleanor's different — she's more mature, she's good looking, she's a lot of fun. Well, I like her. And she's always there if something comes up you want to go to."

From a mother's angle, this last point also has a certain appeal. Mrs. Hollandsworth is pleased that Eleanor is popular and never has to worry about being asked to a party or dance. "I think that's important, for a young person," she says. "Eleanor feels secure. She always has someone to go out with, to take her places."

And she feels Eleanor has matured in her view of dates. "It used to be, she felt that if a boy had a car, and could dance well, and was kind of breezy and sloppy — yes, and was popular with the crowd — he was just fine for her," Mrs. Hollandsworth says. "Jim has more character, and Eleanor has grown to realize that that's important."

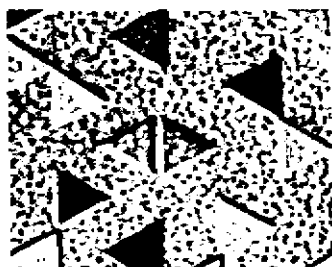

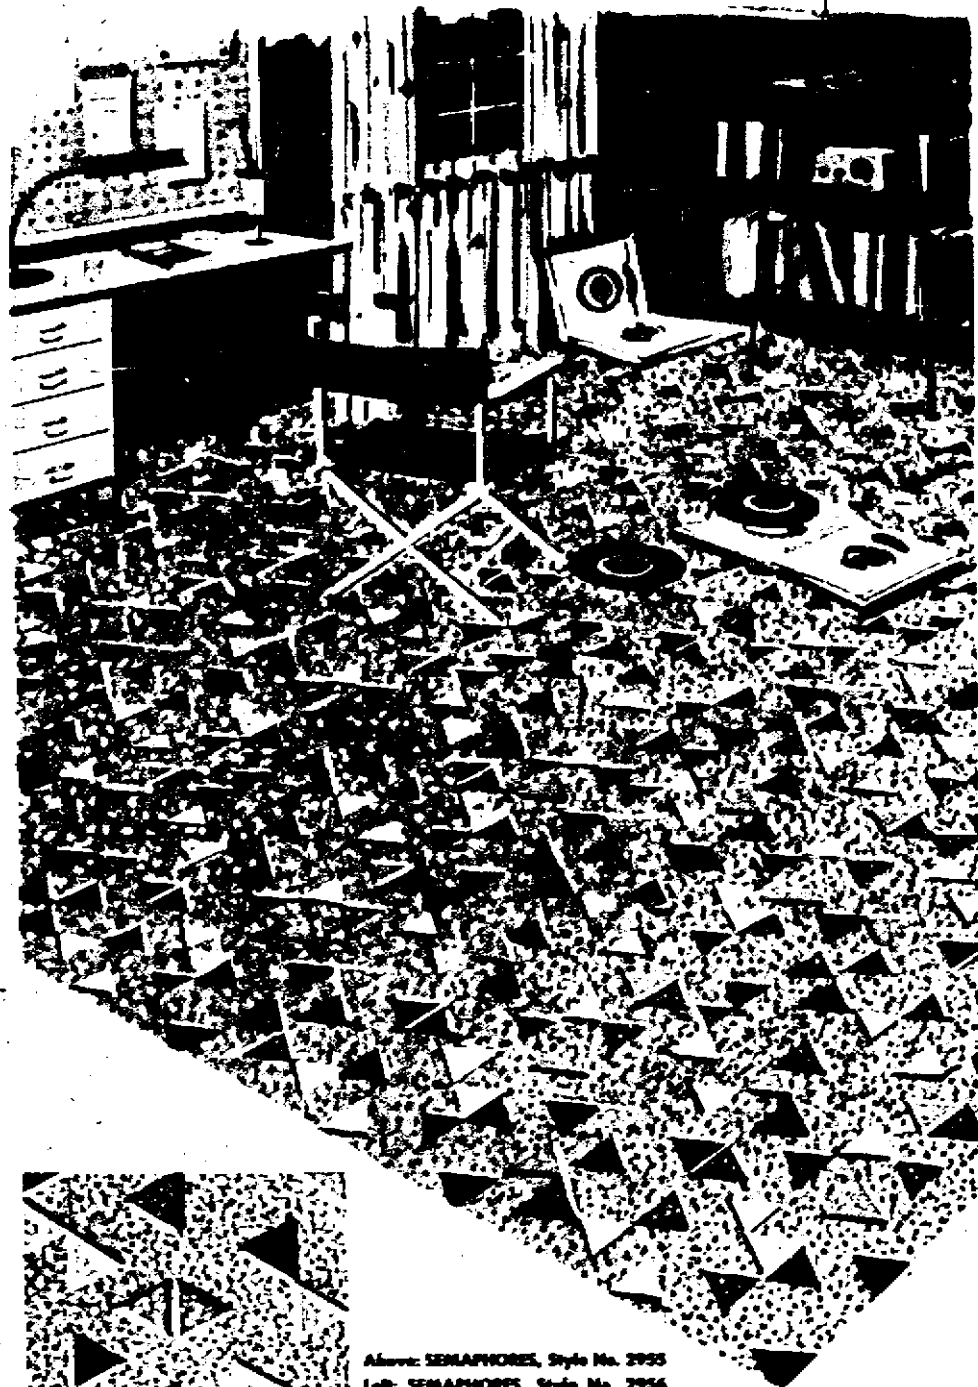

But a few doubts remain. "Their affection makes me a little uncomfortable," Mrs. Hollandsworth sighs. "Still, I'd rather they'd do it in front of us than somewhere else. I've told Eleanor that often a girl's emotions can betray her."

"We've always been very frank, Eleanor and I. I think she knows everything that could happen to a girl — you know what I mean. But I think she's had a good upbringing and sound Christian training, and I think she is impressed with the lesson that marriage is something sacred."

ELEANOR'S FAMILY—brother Bruce, 9; father Eugene, Eleanor, mother Dorys—start for First Baptist Church. Eleanor regularly attends Sunday School.

An early marriage? It's still in the dreaming stage

What about marriage? Jim and Eleanor admit they have discussed the possibility. Eleanor at times is impatient because "you have to wait so long—until you're out of school" before marriage. But both know neither the Hollandsworths nor the Lisenbees would approve an early marriage. And both sets of parents trust the youngsters not to be too hasty.

Mrs. Hollandsworth, of course, still worries a little about it. "A friend of mine told me about her daughter," she says. "She was allowed to go steady pretty early. Now she's only 19 and there's a grandchild in the playpen." But Mrs. Hollandsworth also believes steady dating may postpone marriage.

"I think that if you forbid a girl to go steady, hold her down and treat her like a child, she'd be apt to run away and get married just to show she was an adult," Eleanor's mother says.

"I don't want to treat my daughter like that. I don't want her to have to sneak out, lie to her parents, run away. I want to treat Eleanor as an adult, almost an equal. I think allowing her to go steady has given her more of a sense of responsibility."

EMBRACING, Jim and Eleanor illustrate one of the privileges of going steady: public affection. Says Eleanor's mother: "Better here than in a parked car."

They DREW their way from "Rags to Riches"

Now they're helping others do the same

By REX TAYLOR

ALBERT DORNE was a kid of the slums who loved to draw. He never got past the seventh grade. Before he was 13, he had to quit school to support his family. But he never gave up his dream of becoming an artist.

Although he was working 12 hours a day, he began to study art at home in his spare time. Soon he discovered that people were willing to pay good money for his drawings. At 19 he was well launched in the field of commercial art. By 22 he was earning $500 a week. Dorne rose higher and higher—until he became probably the most fabulous money-maker in the history of advertising art.

Dorne's "rags to riches" story is not unique. Norman Rockwell left school when he was 15. Steven Dohanos, famous cover artist, drove a truck and worked in a mill before turning to art. Harold Von Schmidt was an orphan at 5. Robert Fawcett, known as the "illustrators' illustrator," left school at 14. Austin Briggs, who struggled to support his family in a cold-water flat when he first broke into art, today lives in a magnificent contemporary home, over 100 feet long.

A plan to help others: Nearly ten years ago, these men gathered in Dorne's luxurious New York studio for a fateful meeting. With them were six other equally famous artists—Al Parker, Jon Whitcomb, Fred Ludekens, Ben Stahl, Peter Helck, John Atherton. Almost all had similar "rags to riches" backgrounds.

Dorne outlined to them a plan for sharing their good fortune with others. Dorne pointed out that artists were needed all over the country. And thousands of men and women wanted very much to become artists. What these people needed most was a convenient and effective way to master the trade secrets and professional know-how that the famous artists themselves had learned only by long, successful experience. "Why can't we," asked Dorne, "develop some way to bring this kind of top-drawer art training to anyone with talent . . . no matter where they live or what their personal schedules may be?"

The idea met with great enthusiasm. In fact, the twelve famous artists quickly buckled down to work—taking time off from their busy careers. Looking for a way to explain drawing techniques to students who would be thousands of miles away, they turned to the war-born methods of modern visual training. What better way could you teach the art of making pictures, they reasoned, than through pictures? They made over 5,000 drawings specially for the school's magnificent home study lessons. And after they had covered the fundamentals of art, each man contributed to the course his own special "hallmark" of greatness. For example, Norman Rockwell devised a simple way to explain characterization and the secrets of color. Jon Whitcomb showed how to draw the "glamour girls" for which he is world-famous. Dorne showed step-by-step ways to achieve animation and humor.

Finally, the men spent three years working out a revolutionary, new way to correct a student's work. For each drawing the student sent in, he would receive in return a long personal letter of criticism and advice. Along with the letter, on a transparent "overlay," the instructor would actually draw, in detail, his corrections of the student's work. Thus there could be no misunderstanding. And the student would have a permanent record to refer to as often as he liked.

School is launched; students quickly succeed. Thus was born the Famous Artists Schools—whose campus is the U. S. mail, whose classrooms are the students' own homes and whose faculty is the most fabulous ever assembled in the history of art teaching. The school's activities started in a converted old barn in Westport, Conn. It grew rapidly. Today it occupies its own modern building and has 5,000 active students in 32 countries. The twelve famous artists who started the school as a labor of love still own it, run it, and are fiercely proud of what it has done for its students.

Don Smith is a good example. When he became a student three years ago, Don knew nothing about art, even doubted if he had talent. Today, he is an illustrator with a leading advertising agency in New Orleans.

Lillian Ashby—Canadian student—reports: "I'm losing count but believe I have painted 57 and sold 41 pictures since beginning your wonderful training."

John Buskett is another. He was a pipe-fitter's helper with a big gas company until he enrolled in the school. He still works for the same company—but now he is an artist in the advertising department, at a big increase in pay.

Elizabeth Merris—busy housewife and mother—now adds to her family's income by designing gift wrappings and greeting cards, and illustrating children's books.

John Whitaker of Memphis was an airline clerk when he enrolled. Two years later, he won a national cartooning contest. Recently he signed a contract to do a daily cartoon feature for a group of newspapers.

"Where are the famous artists of tomorrow?" Dorne is not surprised at all by the success of his students. "Opportunities open to trained artists today are enormous," he says. "We continually get calls and letters from art buyers all over the U.S. They ask us for practical, well-trained students—not geniuses—who can step into full-time or part-time jobs."

"I'm firmly convinced," Dorne goes on, "that many men and women are missing an exciting career in art simply because they hesitate to think that they have talent. Many of them do have talent. These are the people we want to train for success in art . . . if we can only find them."

Unique art talent test: To discover people with talent worth developing, the twelve famous artists created a remarkable, revealing 12-page Talent Test. Originally they charged $1 for the test. But now the school offers it free and grades it free. Men and women who reveal natural talent through the test are eligible for training by the school.

Would you like to know if you have valuable hidden art talent? Simply mail coupon below. The Famous Artists Talent Test will be sent to you without cost or obligation. And it might lead you to become one of the "famous artists of tomorrow."

WRAPPING patient in the G-suit, a nurse puts the double-layered plastic blanket under him, folds it over, laces it. Note tubes leading from suit to a nearby gas supply.

G-SUIT

FOR PATIENTS IN SURGERY

CLEVELAND, OHIO.

The photos on these pages show something new in surgery: an adaptation of the jet pilot's "G-suit," with its head-to-toe lacing, for use in complicated head and neck surgery.

Purpose of the inflatable G (antigravity) suit is to prevent "pooling" of blood in the lower part of the pilot's body during a power dive, with an attendant sudden drop in blood pressure and subsequent blacking out. Applying the same principle, Drs. W. James Gardner and Donald F. Dohn, of the Cleveland Clinic Foundation here, have designed a medical G-suit and used it in surgery on some 500 patients. In their most dramatic case, a woman accident victim was bundled up 36 hours to prevent further lowering of blood pressure. Thanks to this emergency care, she lived.

The Cleveland Clinic G-suit consists of a double-layered blanket of vinyl plastic which is laced tight from the patient's waist to his ankles. If, during surgery, the patient's blood pressure drops dangerously the G-suit is inflated (usually for an hour or so) by pumping gas between the plastic layers. Several pounds' pressure can be delivered in seconds.

Typical of G-suit operations at the Clinic is the repair of a condition doctors call aneurysm. This is a weakening and stretching of an artery—somewhat like the ballooning out of an old inner tube. In the operation, the stretched section of the artery is removed, then the ends are rejoined.

Traditionally, lowered blood pressure during such surgery has proved one of its prime dangers. With the G-suit, however, this danger is overcome.

The G-suit also has been helpful in reducing the dizzy feeling some patients experience under local anesthesia. It is used on some patients who are operated on in a sitting or half-sitting position (see photos). And it can be employed to raise blood pressure temporarily, which is necessary at the end of certain operations.

Applying pressure to lower parts of the body is not a new idea. Doctors tried the G-suit principle at the turn of the century, using layers of rubber. But there was a snag: the rubber leaked. Now, modern plastics have made the G-suit a practical addition to the operating room.

HOISTING patient with a hydraulic lift, nurses place him gently in the "neurosurgical chair" (also designed by Cleveland's Dr. Gardner).

TEEN-AGE TOPICS

Today I shall answer briefly as many questions as possible from my teen-age readers.

Q. My mother is against my stopping in for a soda with a group of girls after school. Is she right? — S.S., Madison, Wis.

A. Yes. She would prefer to have you go to the home of one of the girls.

Q. My girl friends and I like to have a certain group of boys over to listen to records. Sometimes the boys get quite loud and the neighbors complain. What should we do about it?

— M.S., Randolph, Mass.

A. Just explain to the boys that if there is a lot of noise, they'll have to leave.

Q. Why are parents and other adults against rock and roll? Why do they tear down Elvis Presley? — A.G., Washington, D.C.

A. Parents are for the most part less concerned with rock-and-roll music and with the music of Elvis Presley than they are with the reaction some teenagers have to them. My own children enjoy both, but their enthusiasm is properly restrained.

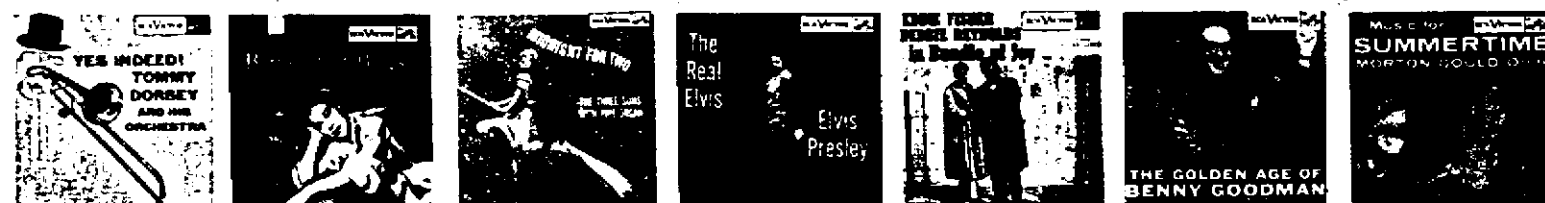

Q. I am 10. My parents have taken back the promise to get me a dog because we now have new carpets. — S.S., Forest Hills, N.Y.

A. Puppies can be terribly destructive. Eventually your parents may let you get an older dog who is trained.

ABOUT WILLS?

by SAMUEL G. KLING

Today's quiz, prepared for PARADE by a noted Baltimore attorney and author, deals with a subject that sooner or later concerns everyone. Test your knowledge of wills in these everyday situations. The answers (opposite page) may surprise you.

- 1 A man makes a will leaving all his property to his wife. A few years later he secures a divorce. Before he can make a new will, he dies. Does the divorce revoke the will and keep the ex-wife from inheriting?
- 2 A man leaves his house to his brother, then dies. Shortly before his death, however, he sells the house to a third party. What can the brother do?
- 3 While at sea, a sailor suffers a heart attack. Before he dies, he tells the attending mate that he wishes his buddy to have his belongings and wages. Can the sailor's friend legally claim the money and effects?
- 4 A father executes a will and has one of his sons witness it. The son also is named as beneficiary. Can he inherit?
- 5 A person dying of cancer makes a will which later is sought to be upset on the ground that the testator lacked the capacity to make a valid will. Would the court, in the absence of other proof, allow the will to be set aside?
- 6 An aged and infirm father disinherits a faithful son, under the influence of his wife with whom the son has quarreled. Is the will valid?
- 7 A father, on slight and insufficient proof, clings to the mistaken belief that his wife is unfaithful and that one of his children is illegitimate. In his will he completely disinherits a daughter. Can the will be set aside?
- 8 A man leaves $10,000 to his wife, $5,000 to a son and $5,000 to a daughter. But his estate is worth only $15,000. What happens?
- 9 Does an executor named in the will or a court-appointed administrator charge a fee for his services?
- 10 A man makes a will. Later he marries, and a child is born. Is the will he executed before the marriage still valid?
- 11 To avoid a court battle, two beneficiaries under a will enter into an agreement whereby one of them agrees that he will not contest it. Is the agreement binding?
- 12 After a row with his wife, a husband changes his will in order to leave all his property to two brothers and one sister. The next day he dies. The widow now seeks to have the will set aside. Will she succeed?

2. Buttermilk Biscuits
3. Quick Cinnamon Rolls
4. Quick Caramel Nut Rolls

parade quiz...ANSWERS

1 No. Revocation of a previously executed will is not implied from the fact that the testator obtained a divorce.

2 Nothing. When the testator sold the house the will was revoked, insofar as the house was concerned.

3 Yes. Such an oral will is known as a nuncupative will. Soldiers in actual service and mariners at sea may orally dispose of their wages and personal property, provided they are in actual peril or expectation of death.

4 No. State laws usually provide that a bequest to a witness to the will is void, but that the will shall be otherwise valid.

5 Probably not. Capacity to make a will exists as long as the testator's mind functions normally. Without stronger proof that the man's mind has been affected by the ravages of cancer, the will could not be set aside.

6 Undue influence is that which persuades the testator to dispose of his property in a way he could not have done had he been left free to act according to his own wishes. But mere advice, argument or persuasion, which does not deprive an individual of his mental freedom, is not considered "undue influence." In this case the court would probably hold that the wife had exercised such undue influence over her husband as to make the disinheritance of the son invalid.

7 No. An ill-founded belief not actually amounting to insanity does not destroy capacity to make a will.

8 All the bequests are reduced proportionately, unless the testator has made specific provisions that some bequests are to be preferred over others.

9 He usually is paid a commission ranging from 2 to 10 per cent of the estate.

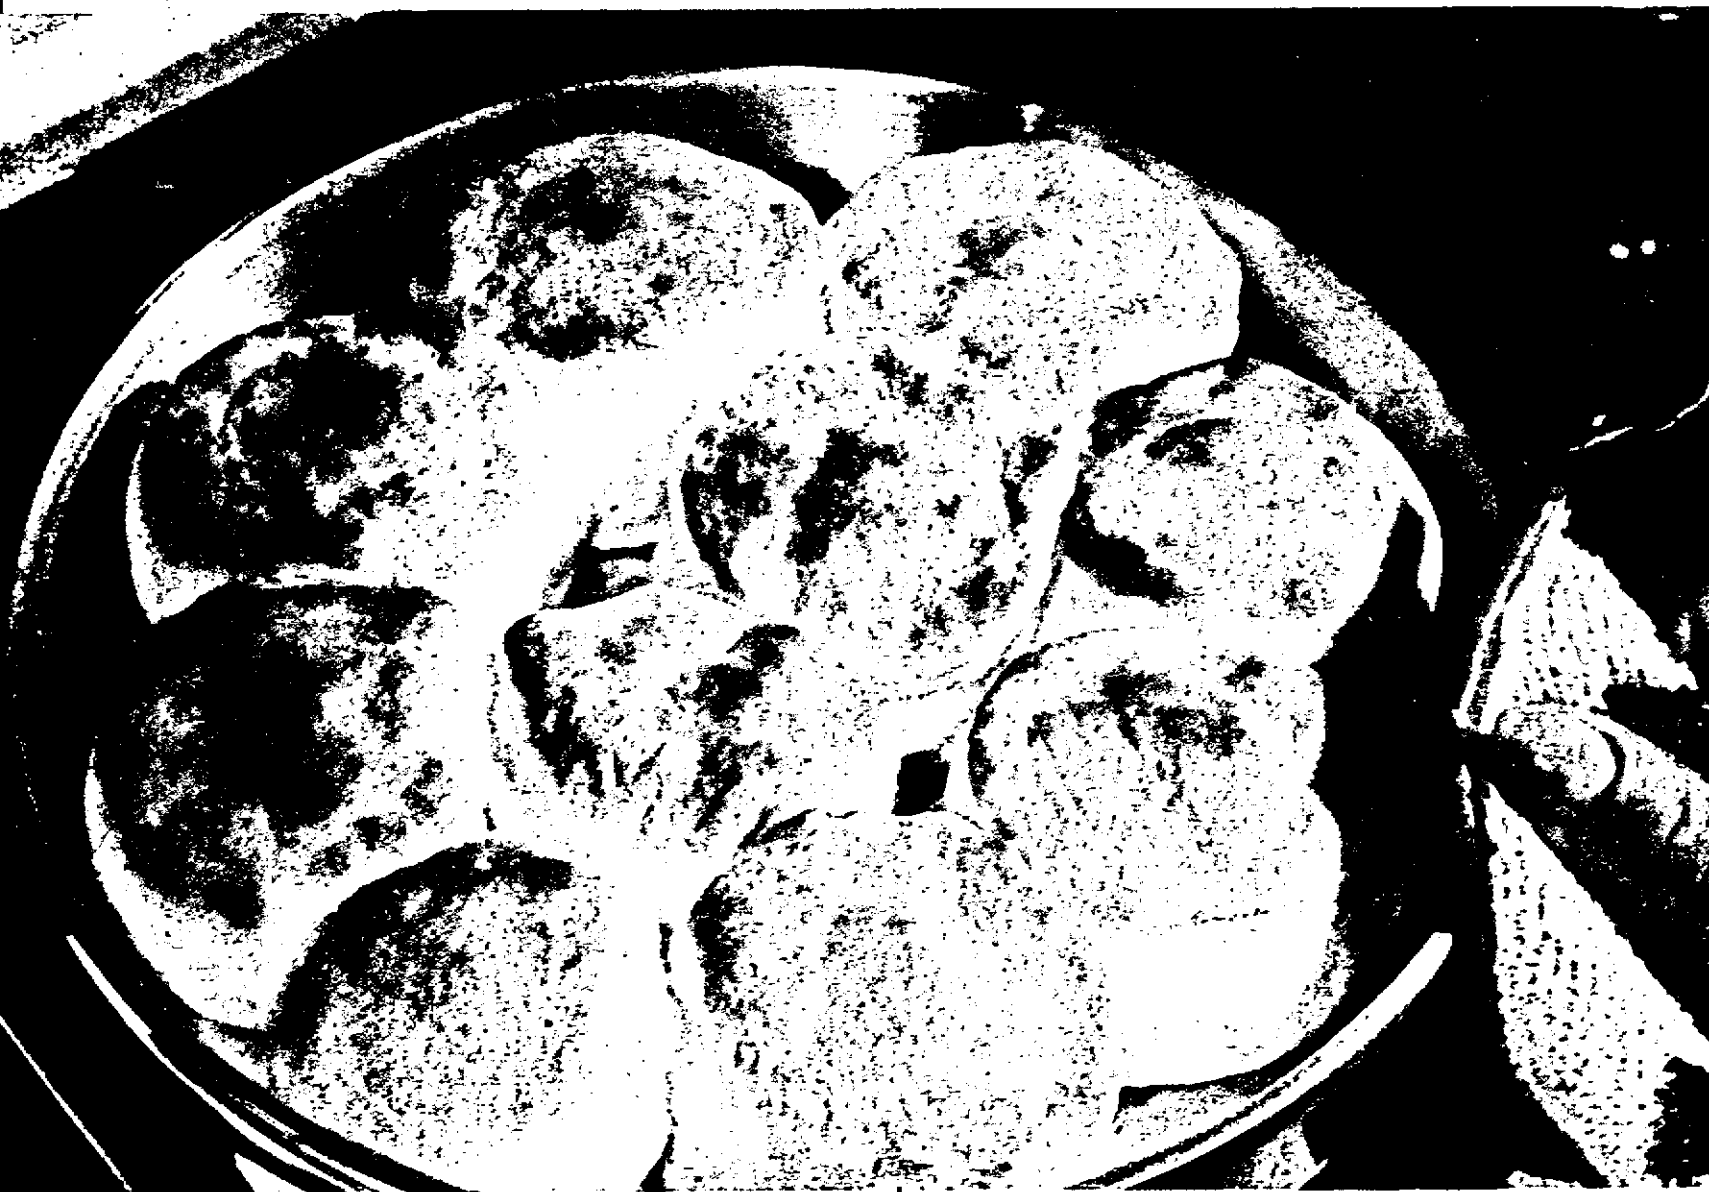

10 No. Marriage, followed by the birth of a child, automatically revokes a will, and the wife and child will inherit the property in the manner prescribed by law in cases of intestacy (i.e., where no will is left), rather than in accordance with the deceased's wishes.

11 Yes, if made with full knowledge of all the facts.

12 Yes. No husband or wife can completely cut off the spouse in a will. Under statute law in most states, the surviving husband or wife is usually entitled to one-third of the deceased's estate.

SCORING: Between 10 and 12 correct answers qualify you as a legal expert. From 6 to 10 scores you as average. Under that, you obviously don't have a rich uncle who calls you his favorite relative.

Wife Vivien Leigh watches Olivier look stern, Marilyn turns to Miller.

A kiss for

Marilyn Monroe ends a

by LLOYD SHEARER

PARADE WEST COAST CORRESPONDENT

As Vivien smiles broadly and Miller tightly, Olivier gives Marilyn a brief kiss.

A famous foursome plays out a scene

These three photos, caught by PARADE's Lloyd Shearer as Arthur Miller and Marilyn Monroe were leaving London after filming of The Sleeping Prince, tell a lot about Marilyn's relations with Sir Laurence Olivier, who directed her in it.

The top picture shows Marilyn turning to her husband after a newsman asked whether she and Olivier had argued all through the film. Next, Sir Laurence kisses her as though to deny any rift. At right, Marilyn returns the gesture. Note that she is clutching her husband's hand throughout.

Once the Millers were gone, the Oliviers sighed in evident relief. The camera missed that.

Marilyn returns the kiss, thus capping a pretty scene that fooled practically nobody.

Sir Laurence

Marilyn came over last summer to star opposite the great English actor, Sir Laurence Olivier, in the film version of Terence Rattigan's The Sleeping Prince (a stage comedy triumph here, though a flop on Broadway later). On arrival, she was given a fantastically enthusiastic reception. The local press described her, among other things, as warm, witty, outgoing, charming, beautiful and diplomatic.

Two months ago, having finished the picture (also directed by Olivier), Marilyn flew back to the States with her husband.

By then things were different. As I was covering her departure at the airport, a British photographer cracked to me, "You can give her back to the Indians!" And next day British newspapers carried such headlines as, "Rows with Sir Laurence?" — Well, not exactly, says Marilyn.

What happened in between Marilyn's arrival and departure to bring on such a change in a nation's attitude? The answer lies with Marilyn herself.

Stories have it that, during shooting of The Sleeping Prince, she 1) fought steadily with Olivier, 2) was often late or absent, 3) needed constant encouragement, 4) was snobbish to the rest of the cast, 5) flailed her hands violently before "takes" to help her circulation, 6) consulted her drama coach, Paula Strasberg, before every scene, 7) had to have her husband on the set, 8) was fear-ridden throughout the picture, never trusting even Olivier, 9) had Sir Laurence himself on the ropes by the time they were done.

Some of these stories are pure fabrication, others true — with an explanation.

Despite her success, Marilyn Monroe still suffers from a profound inferiority complex. She has no confidence in her acting ability, desperately needs support and encouragement, demands from directors their utmost tolerance and tact.

Billy Wilder, who guided her through The Seven Year Itch, managed to keep his temper although some of Marilyn's scenes required 30 or more takes. Josh Logan, director of Bus Stop, says, "She is very difficult to work with. Often we shot and re-shot a single scene over and over. She is frightened of making mistakes..."

Sir Laurence Olivier knew all this beforehand, and was determined to cope with anything Marilyn might do. As The Sleeping Prince progressed, he often gave the impression of Vesuvius about to erupt — but he never let go. He even tried to appear politely fond of Marilyn; he and his wife, Vivien Leigh, accompanied her and Miller to the London opening of the latter's play, A View from the Bridge, and again all four were at a party together. Otherwise they did not mix socially.

Marilyn wouldn't work when her husband went to New York

Meanwhile, to protect Marilyn from newsmen, Olivier ordered a closed set at the studio. Fellow-workers were told they would be "sacked immediately" if they talked about her to reporters or even friends. Roger Hunt, ex-Superintendent of Scotland Yard, was hired as Marilyn's bodyguard (three rooms, compared to Olivier's two) rather than the studio commissary. None of these things was calculated to win her widespread admiration.

When shooting began on Prince, Marilyn got companionship and support from her husband and her secretary, Hedda Rosten. When the latter returned to the U. S., Paula Strasberg took over.

Wife of the director of the Actors' Studio in New York and mother of actress Susan Strasberg, she was on the set almost every day, giving Marilyn encouragement and teaching her to flail her hands.

"I'm here as a friend," she explained. "The reason Marilyn does those hand exercises is to relax."

The flailing didn't relax Olivier, however. The Sleeping Prince was the first comedy he had directed, and he was somewhat on edge trying to make it as entertaining as possible. It was no help to his mood when Marilyn wanted more close-ups than he thought she should have — or when his female star, who has virtually no sense of time, kept reporting late.

It then happened that, after several days' tardiness, she failed to show up at all. Denying rumors of pregnancy, she said, "I've just had bad tummy aches."

The truth was that her husband had gone back to New York to see his children, and his absence threw her into a tizzy. Without Miller, friends say, Marilyn feels lost and incapable of independent action. Thus she simply stayed off the set until he returned to London. "It's nice to have you back," Olivier told her icily when she resumed work.

A Test of Patience

As the film rolled on, Marilyn would stop between takes to seek Paula Strasberg's advice on how to play a scene. She had done the same thing on an earlier picture with another dramatic coach; that time the director had blown his top. But Sir Laurence kept his temper.

He refused to explode when Marilyn forgot her lines, said the wrong lines, fluffed while the cameras were turning — even when he had to shoot one scene 29 times before she got it right. All this shocked the technicians and other players, who had thought she'd be more professional. But cameraman Jack Cardiff told me,

"There were differences between Marilyn and Larry because she couldn't understand what he was trying to do. He doesn't use the technique she studied in New York. But his knowledge of acting and film-making is gigantic. She couldn't see that he was making an actress of her. She didn't trust him."

When Marilyn and her husband took off for New York Sir Laurence and his wife were on hand to bid them farewell. Marilyn was dressed in a too-tight jersey dress and a mink coat. A newsmen asked, "Is it true you and Sir Laurence had a lot of arguments on this picture?"

For a moment she looked stunned. "I wouldn't say we argued, exactly," she said. "We had differences of opinion, but that's to be expected. I think Sir Laurence is" — long pause — "well, a great actor, and I respect him very much."

Added Olivier, "We did have our difficulties, but they were not unusual difficulties. We have enjoyed working together." This dialogue accompanied the three-part scene pictured on page 18.

Whether Monroe and Olivier will make another picture together remains to be seen. Bet's anyone?

'Gold Rush' peach cobbler

-Here's a hearty dessert—popular for over 100 years!

by BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

Just 100 years ago the first California cling peaches were packed in jars for consumers. It happened this way: During the Gold Rush, a few prospectors realized that some California gold was growing on fruit trees, so they gave up their stake-outs and planted peach orchards. Time has proved the wisdom of their venture.

In those days food was simple, hearty and good. So is the Gold Rush Peach Cobbler (below) that honors the centennial of the cling peach—a delightful dessert, rightfully as popular today as it was in that lusty era!

GOLD RUSH PEACH COBBLER

- 2 cans (1 lb. 13 oz. each) cling-peach slices
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup firmly packed brown sugar
- $\frac{1}{2}$ cup granulated sugar
- 2 tablespoons cornstarch
- $\frac{1}{4}$ teaspoon each cinnamon and nutmeg
- few grains salt
- 2 tablespoons cider vinegar
- 1 cup peach syrup (from cans)
- 1 tablespoon butter or margarine

TOPPING

- 1 cup sifted enriched flour
 - 1 teaspoon baking powder
 - $\frac{1}{2}$ teaspoon salt
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
 - $\frac{1}{4}$ cup butter or margarine
 - $\frac{1}{4}$ cup light cream
 - 2 teaspoons grated orange peel
 - 2 tablespoons sugar
- Set oven for very hot (450°). Drain peaches, put in shallow baking dish. Combine sugars, cornstarch, spices and salt in a saucepan; stir well to mix. Add vinegar, syrup and butter or margarine. Bring to a boil, stir and simmer until thickened and clear (about 5 minutes). Pour over peaches.
- To make topping, mix and stir first four ingredients; cut in butter or margarine; stir in cream. Pat out about $\frac{1}{2}$ " thick; cut into 3" squares, then cut each square into halves on the diagonal to make triangles. Place around the edge of baking dish. Combine grated orange peel and remaining sugar; sprinkle on biscuits. Bake 15 minutes, or until biscuits are golden brown. Serve warm, with cream or ice cream. Serves eight.

KITCHEN HINT

An idea for juice oranges: grate peel before squeezing, mix each tablespoon of peel with $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar, store in tightly covered container. Sprinkle on biscuits, rolls or cookies before baking.

What it's like to be a RED athlete

Here's the inside story—from Hungarian Olympians who chose freedom

by JOHN DEVANEY

ONE OF THE proudest boasts of international Communism has been that its classless society helps athletes bloom into champions. This, they bugle loudly to neutral nations, is another example of the superiority of the Soviet system.

To some degree, the Reds have come up with the champions. Russia and its satellites—particularly Hungary—dominated the 1956 Olympics.

How have they done it? And at what price?

For the first time, the full answers are at hand from the athletes themselves. When a group of Hungarian athletes decided to come to the U.S. instead of returning home after the Olympics, they were interviewed by PARADE. They spoke frankly, asking only that their names not be used, since they still had relatives in Hungary. Here is the interview:

Q The rest of the world was amazed by the performances of Hungarian athletes in the past two Olympics. Though your country is small, you finished third in 1952, fourth in 1956. How did you do it?

A Hungarians always have been keenly interested in sports. But since the Communists took over, that interest has been put in harness. Since 1946, a government program has been turning out champions the same way you turn out big automobiles.

Q How is the program organized?

A Every athlete in Hungary must belong to a sports club. There are many. The biggest is Dozsa, the policemen's club. It is controlled by the Hungarian police, but open to everybody. Most of the best athletes are in the Honred club, made up exclusively of soldiers.

Besides these, each occupation—iron workers, railway men, students, government workers and so on—has its own sports club.

Talent Scouts

Q Is it easy to join these clubs?

A Oh yes. In fact, if a youth shows any promise at all, he's usually besieged with offers from clubs.

Q What sort of offers?

A Better training facilities, better coaching and so on.

Q How are these clubs supported?

A By money from the government.

Q How many members does each club have?

A That was a secret. Most of them, however, seemed to have at least 5,000 members.

Q How are the clubs set up?

A The nation is divided into over a dozen sports districts. In each district there is at least a Soldiers' club and a Policemen's club; most districts have many other clubs as well. Each club puts up a team for every sport to play against others.

Q How do the athletes train?

A Under a system long in favor in Hungary—and now being adopted by American sports figures—we trained 12 months a year, six or seven days a week. We believed that layoffs hurt an athlete.

Q How did you have the time to do this?

A All promising athletes are allowed time off from their jobs to train. So if you miss four hours a week from your job because of training, you are not docked four hours' pay. The employer is required by the government to pay you for that lost time.

Q Do athletes get other special favors?

A If you are a promising athlete, you might get an extra $5 a month. If you become a national champion, an extra $20 a month might be given to you. And if you become good enough to win in the Olympics, you might get as much as $40 or $50 a month.*

Q Did this money come from the employers?

A No. It came directly from the government.

A The average factory worker in Hungary, before the recent fighting started, earned about $35 a month.

Q What reason is given for granting this money?

A To buy the extra food needed to keep the athletes in perfect condition.

Q How does the extra money compare to the sums given Russian athletes?

A From our talks with them, it was obvious they got more. This, naturally, caused some discontent among our athletes.

Q Do athletes get as much publicity in Hungary as they do here?

A At least as much—possibly more. Every newspaper and magazine carries stories. However, most of us felt that this publicity was really political propaganda, an attempt to show the people that Communism built strong bodies. As a result, most of the athletes avoided publicity.

Q Do athletes receive any special awards?

A Yes. The highest award is "Excellent Sportsman of the People's Democracy of Hungary." The medal is given to European champions, Olympic winners or record holders. But because we felt the giving of political medals to athletes was a Russian idea, very few of us wore the medals in public.

Q Do athletes receive political training?

A Up to 1950, we were fed much propaganda about Communism. Each sports club held political classes which we had to attend. But as people got more and more sick of Communism, the classes were held less and less. The club's leader would fill out a card, falsely stating that the week's prescribed class had been held, and send it to the government.

Q What is the most popular sport in Hungary?

A Soccer. For an ordinary game, about 80,000 would come out. The most popular team was the Kiniesi, the club for restaurant workers, because many non-Communist athletes belonged to it.

Q How does the man in the street look upon champion athletes?

A With about the same warm feeling you have toward popular people, say like the way you feel about Bing Crosby.

Q At what age do athletes start training?

A When 9 or 10, children are recruited into the clubs. Each club has activities for four age groups: from 10 to 13; from 14 to 18; from 19 to 25, and people above 25.

For each age group—both boys and girls—there are teams in every sport. And there are both senior and junior teams, so that practically every able-bodied person under 30 gets to compete.

Q This must be a huge program.

A It is so huge that a special government agency, of cabinet rank, is needed to administer it.

Q Would such a program work here?

A Certainly. You have a wonderful supply of raw material in the form of healthy bodies. We have never seen so many well-built youths. If a program were available (though not necessarily run by the government), the raw material could be made into champions.

Q What would you say is the biggest difference between athletes on each side of the Iron Curtain?

A On this side, an athlete trains and works hard to break records and gain glory. On the Communist side, at least in Hungary, we trained and worked to get on the national teams and thus gain the most precious thing in the world to people in the satellites—a passport. With that, we could travel in the free world. And now some of us are here for keeps—or at least until things improve a lot at home.

HUNGARIAN star Laszlo Tabari wins a 3-mile race. He was not among athletes interviewed by PARADE but with them will make a U.S. tour run by Sports Illustrated and welfare organizations.

*Dollar figures given in this interview are based on the black market rate of 40 Hungarian forints to the dollar.

The inspiring story of a blind man who is not handicapped...

SIGHTLESS BUT SURE-FOOTED, blind Lew Carlisle scrambles up ladder to fix antenna for wife's TV set atop his Pennsylvania home.

He built his home in darkness

by ED KESTER

PROUD BUILDERS Lew and Leona Carlisle smile outside finished home, which they share with a dachshund and a collie. Lew built doghouses in his spare time.

DARLINGTON, PA. Brick by brick and pipe by pipe, the five-room ranch house in these pictures was built by the spare, spring-stepped man vaulting onto the rooftop at left. He did it with very little help, with very little money — and completely without sight.

Lew Carlisle, who drove every nail and laid every brick (there are 9,500) in his new home here, about 40 miles southeast of Youngstown, Ohio, does not consider it particularly inspiring. "Too many people associate 'blind man' with a white cane and a tin cup," he says. "I'm willing to tackle anything anyone else can do."

A few things, he admits, are beyond him — decoration, for instance. "No blind man can work with colors," Lew says ruefully, and leaves it to his wife, Leona, a secretary who has been decorator, laborer, bricklayer's helper and roofer's helper during the five-year project.

Colors are one of the few things that have defeated Lew. He was 10 when his vision began to fail. When he learned that an incurable eye disease made blindness inevitable, he cried: blindness would interfere with too many of his elaborate plans for the future.

But as vision slipped, determination stiffened. He bought a trumpet, taught himself to play it and for 20 years — the last 10 in total darkness — played in dance bands. He taught himself to swim and ice-skate. He learned to cane chairs, to read Braille — and to shoot, relying on hearing to locate the target. And tools fascinated him. At one time, he considered opening a workshop to build birdhouses and lawn furniture. Later, he taught woodworking classes at a blind-institute workshop.

Always he nursed the idea of building his own house. And in 1951, he found the incentive: he married Leona Davenport, a secretary at the institute. Their honeymoon cottage was an abandoned, two-story, concrete-block service station without lights, plumbing or water. You see it above as it looks today, after five years of sightless work.

A BLIND MAN'S TOOLS:

HOMEMADE LEVEL

Laying blocks for cellar entrance, Lew Carlisle feels for fix on level made of a punch, a phonograph bearing and a steel pin (since he can't see a spirit level). When block is level, suspended pointer (the punch) just touches pin.

WOODEN RAMP

Wheeling barrowful of mortar, Lew walks slowly; edge of board tells him he's safe and going straight. Once, in a hurry, he failed to check the edge, tumbled into the ditch backwards, with the wheelbarrow landing on his chest.

SAW GUIDE

For sawing, Lew marks grooves at each end, clamps another board in place as guide and follows it. Scratches and grooves serve as his pencil marks. He also has mastered the use of power tools without endangering his hands.

PAINTER LEONA touches up window trim while Lew uses specially notched folding rule. Big picture window gives them a sweeping view of wooded property. They plan a patio outside.

The worst is over— now the Carlises' problem is money

Blind building meant Lew Carlisle had to devise a whole new set of tools and figure brand-new methods of doing things. His folding rule, for instance, needed to be notched instead of printed; even now, Leona says, "he's better at measuring than I am." He learned to gauge the consistency of mortar by feeling instead of sight. He practiced hammering until he could go as fast as most sighted carpenters — and probably hit his thumb less often.

Lew's first step was to outfit the building with necessities. Then he began to expand. Estimating and pricing all the materials himself, he added another room and a garage. At the same time, he tunneled out the foundation for an additional wing, making the house an L-shape.

Once that wing was complete (he did all the framing, and even made his own casement windows), Lew began work on the interior. The old oil stove was junked; in its place went a new oil furnace — after he had excavated a basement room for it, trundling the wheelbarrow himself.

Radiant baseboard heating and plumbing Lew was able to install. Wiring he did under the supervision of his father-in-law, an electrician. When it came to tiling the kitchen, he applied the adhesive and allowed Leona to set the tiles in place.

After that, Lew lopped off the second floor and roofed over the whole building on one level. Then he put up the brick exterior, which he finished early last fall. He is spending the winter on indoor projects like the fireplace, laying floors and working on the cellar.

Often he will work until late at night. "Darkness doesn't mean a thing to me," Lew points out. During bricklaying, he often put in a 15-hour day.

Still to be done are landscaping, a patio and a barbecue. All the Carlises' savings, plus what mortgage money they could obtain, have gone into the place. It is sparsely furnished, and furnishings and finishing touches may be long delayed because of money shortages. Their income consists of her $3,000-a-year salary, plus his $60-a-month blind pension.

But Lew and Leona are not dejected. "One of the first things I learned when the darkness came is that God helps those who help themselves," Lew says. "You'll notice that God promises to help. He doesn't promise to make it all smooth sailing."

LUNCH BREAK finds Lew eating pie Leona made at counter he made. He built cabinets; she laid tile. "I couldn't have done it without her," he says fondly. "She's been more than my eyes."

'These made me LAUGH'

— JACK BENNY GUEST CARTOON EDITOR

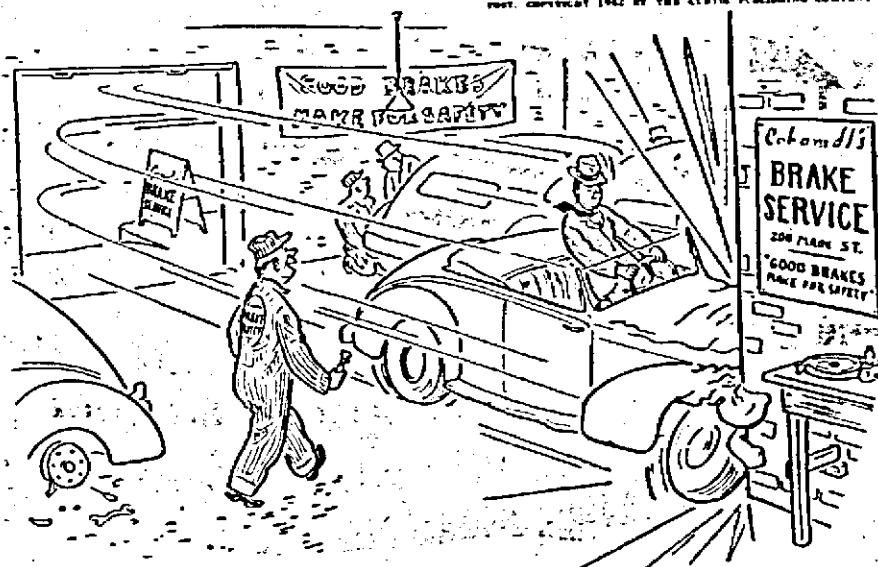

Tennessee-born Dave Huffine, some of whose cartoons previously have been reprinted on this page, is back today with drawings chosen by Jack Benny (CBS-TV, alternate Sunday nights). As Mr. Benny often does, Dave is "playing a return engagement by popular demand."

Huffine

"Of course I feel all right! Why do you ask?"

"Boy, is he going to turn into a spoiled brat!"

"How can I make it absolutely clear, beyond any shadow of doubt, that under no circumstances will I be a candidate — without making it sound like a flat refusal?"

"Sometimes I think the high point of my career was just before my first fight."
